POLICE BILL FACES DELAY ON ORDER OF PENDERGAST MAN

Lafferty, as Chairman of House Perfection Committee, Expected to Cause 10-Day Tieup.

WORK IN SENATE BEING SPEEDED UP

That Body Probably Will Pass Measure If It Gets Chance to Vote Before Adjournment.

By CURTIS A. BETTS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 6.—The scheme of the Pendergast political machine representatives in the House to delay further action on Gov. Lloyd C. Stark's Kansas City police bill in the hope of a final adjournment of the Legislature before the bill can be reached for a vote in the Senate, has centered attention on the House Committee on Perfected Bills, of which William H. Lafferty, Pendergast man, is chairman.

Lafferty and Representative Edgar J. Keating of Kansas City, also a Pendergast man, indicated in the House Thursday that every possible obstacle would be placed in the way of the bill. Lafferty is in a position to delay it a full 10 days unless the House by a majority vote of the elected members takes it away from his committee.

The Senate, which probably will pass the bill if it reaches a public vote on the floor, is speeding up its work, and there is a strong probability that it will get its calendar in shape for final adjournment by May 27, the date tentatively fixed in a House resolution adopted Thursday. It is known that several Senators, who would feel forced to vote for the bill, are in reality opposed to it and would welcome an early adjournment.

Senator Frank P. Briggs, majority floor leader, told the Senate yesterday that he expected the Senate to work all day next Friday on appropriation bills, and that he would oppose the taking of the usual week-end adjournment at 11 o'clock next Friday morning.

10-Day Delay, Perhaps More.

Lafferty refused on the floor of the House Thursday to promise that the police bill would be out of his committee in time for its consideration for final passage in the House Wednesday. It is the expectation here that he will attempt to hold it the full 10 days permitted under the rules, and perhaps even longer, that expectation being based on the fact that in the legislative session two years ago he arbitrarily held the sales tax bill in his committee for three weeks, twice the length of time permitted under the rules.

Without the exercise of any haste it would be possible for him to have the bill back in the House Monday, the work required for perfecting a bill being purely clerical and consisting only of incorporating in the bill the amendments adopted by the House. Even a legisltaive clerk could do that in two hours or less. The bill as amended must be printed before the committee's report is made, but that is merely an overnight job.

Lafferty's control over the bill is a result of his reappointment to head the Perfection Committee by Speaker John G. Christy, notwithstanding Lafferty's record of arbitrary action on the sales tax bill in the last session.

Interest in Another Bill.

Leaders of the Governor's forces are waiting with interest Lafferty's action on the omnibus appropriation bill, which the House ordered perfected late yesterday, several hours after similar action was taken on the police bill. "There were more than 80 amendments to the appropriation bill, and the work of its perfection will be much more difficult than that of the police bill, on which there are very few amendments.

If the appropriation bill should come from Lafferty's committee before the police bill, a motion from the floor to require a report on the police bill is virtually certain. Representative William B. Weakley, who is handling the bill, was urged Thursday by Representative O. B. Whitaker, Republican, of Hickory County, to present a motion directing that the bill be perfected in time for a vote on it Wednesday, but Weakley refused, apparently timid about possibly offending the Kansas City members by making the very unusual motion to take a bill from a committee before the expiration of the 10-day period.

Throughout the House fight over the bill, in which Weakley was successful at every stage, he has shown the greatest deference to the opposition, which, on the other hand, has taken advantage of every pos-

ARMED WOMAN ROBBER HOLDS UP OIL STATION

Gets $23 From Attendant—Accompanied by Man in St. Charles Road Raid.

Joseph Hager, attendant of a filling station, 8644 St. Charles Rock Road, was held up last night by a woman, armed with a pistol. A man who accompanied her took $23 from a cash drawer and the two drove away in a large, black sedan.

Hager said the pair went into the filling station while he was putting gasoline in their car. When he went inside, the woman, who was well-dressed, stepped from a washroom and pointing a pistol at him, ordered him outside.

The man, tall and well-dressed, opened the cash drawer and took the money. Hager was too frightened to comply with their order to leave the station. The robbers drove east on St. Charles Rock Road.

ROOSEVELT'S HYDE PARK HOME ENDANGERED BY FOREST FIRE

Blaze Halted After Destroying 10 Acres of Timber Adjoining Estate.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., May 6 (AP). —A forest fire which had threatened to spread to the Hyde Park estate of President Roosevelt was brought under control tonight after it destroyed 10 acres of timber adjoining it.

District Forest Ranger H. F. Hedgecock said the fire started at noon on the 400-acre estate of the President's sister-in-law, Mrs. J. R. Roosevelt.

Thirty-five men succeeded in halting the spread of the flames after a six-hour battle. Mrs. Roosevelt's estate is one quarter of a mile south of that of the President.

Hedgecock said the cause of the fire was unknown.

ABERDEEN, Scotland, May 6 (AP).—An injured Royal Air Force flyer, who had been trapped in a wrecked military plane for about 24 hours, was found today by a gamekeeper after a search in the Clochnaben Mountains.

The injured man was carried on a stretcher across the moorlands to an ambulance.

A flying officer who also was in the plane escaped and made his way to a farm house to tell the story of the crash.

The plane, which left Montrose Airport, crashed yesterday morning. It was the fifty-fifth R. A. F. crash of the year.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, May 6 (AP).—E. B. Erwin, former Mayor, and Harry L. Finch, former chief of police of Salt Lake City, were sentenced today to one year in the county jail for conspiracy to permit the operation of gambling and vice establishments in 1936 and 1937.

They resigned in 1938 during an investigation of vice conditions.

COAL CONFERENCE RESUMED AFTER ROOSEVELT PLEA

QUICK AGREEMENT AT ONCE IS URGED

On Reading of Telegram, John L. Lewis Releases Policy Committee but Gives No Explanation.

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP). — President Roosevelt intervened today in the deadlocked bituminous coal contract negotiations, calling on miners and operators to reach a workable agreement promptly to end the industry's worst shutdown in 17 years.

He told them that their "differences in viewpoint" did not appear to be insurmountable, and said "the orderly process of collective bargaining should suffice to bring about their adjustment."

"Because of this," the President said in a telegram to Dr. John R. Steelman, head of the United States Department of Labor conciliation service, "I urge that the present negotiations with the Federal Commissioner continue, and that all sit down with the intention to reach a fair, honorable and workable agreement in a spirit of give and take."

While it was sent to Dr. Steelman, an observer at the negotiations since April 25, the message was directed to the Joint Labor and Management Negotiating Committee, which continued its sessions today after being virtually commanded by Steelman yesterday not to abandon its efforts.

Hope Held for Agreement.

When today's negotiations session adjourned shortly before 5 p. m., Dr. Steelman again reported no progress and once more stressed the need of an "immediate settlement." He said he would meet individually with the operator and union groups beginning at 11 a. m. tomorrow and that another joint meeting would start at 2 p. m.

The conferees, however, in a formal reply to President Roosevelt, held out the hope of an agreement. In a telegram signed by W. L. Robison, operator-chairman of the Standing Joint Appalachian Conference, and Thomas Kennedy, United Mine Workers (CIO), secretary and conference secretary, they said:

"With your message before us and with a full realization of the public interest, we will again make every effort to adjust the matter on which the conference is now deadlocked to the end that an agreement may be concluded as promptly as possible."

Parley Watched by Roosevelt.

It was the first time the President publicly had taken a hand in the situation, although one of the conferees said Roosevelt had been in telephonic communication with the negotiators previously to determine what progress was being made.

One of the negotiators said the group seemed to accept the President's telegram as a command, and thought it possible that the President would urge the fixing of a deadline should there be a further delay in coming to an agreement.

A short time after the reading of the telegram, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America (CIO) and chief negotiator for the miners, released the 150 members of the union's policy committee, but gave no public explanation for sending the men home.

Last week when he summoned them to New York, he said it was his notion that the operators, after weeks of negotiating, should be in a position to know by Tuesday (May 2) whether they intended to sign a new contract, to replace the one which expired March 31.

460,000 Idle in 26 States.

About 460,000 miners in 26 states were idle as the negotiators sought anew to end their differences, and while it was estimated that soft coal supplies in the country totaled from 21,000,000 to 26,000,000 tons—a month's supply if equitably distributed—reports of scarcity in many communities increased.

The Government had watched the negotiations in the coal industry, the oldest collective bargaining group in the country, since March 14 when miners and operators opened their sessions.

Almost from the start James F. Dewey, Federal Conciliator for 20 years, had been on the job, conferring with negotiators and keeping Washington apprised of developments.

Dewey's role was solely that of an observer, as the conference maintained its traditional attitude

LAMANCE GIVEN 18-YEAR TERM FOR KILLING WIFE

Laclede Osteopath Found Guilty of Second Degree Murder at Keytesville, Mo.

HE IS BITTER OVER VERDICT

Jury Out Nearly Three Hours — Defendant Free on Bond Pending Argument on Retrial July 1.

KEYTESVILLE, Mo., May 6 (AP).—The State won a second degree murder verdict today against Dr. William F. LaMance, the osteopath accused of beating his wife to death because she objected to his drinking. The State alleged he kept her body hidden in a fruit cellar six days before he reported her missing.

"If ever a man was railroaded, I am the man," the 33-year-old former amateur boxer said after a mandatory sentence of 18 years was pronounced by Judge James S. Rooney. "I didn't kill Ella and I know it."

Chief Defense Attorney Vane Thurlo immediately filed a motion for a new trial, a step preliminary to an appeal. It will be argued July 1. Meantime the Judge permitted LaMance to go free on the $15,000 bond that has been in force during his trial.

La Mance based his defense on a contention his wife killed herself.

The jury received the case last night but did not begin deliberations until shortly after noon. Members said a conviction was voted the first ballot. The rest of the time was spent discussing the sentence recommendations. The entire deliberations required two hours and 57 minutes.

"I know that when this case gets before a fair and impartial body it will be reversed," said the osteopath's mother, Mrs. W. N. LaMance, discussing the verdict.

The osteopath, seated with an arm on the shoulders of his mother and his father, the Rev. W. N. LaMance, Manitou Springs, Colo., evangelist, received the verdict calmly, as did his mother. The father, however, sobbed and pounded a table with his hand.

The jury's recommendation for an 18-year sentence is mandatory upon Judge James S. Rooney, who had instructed the jury not to consider a charge of first degree murder, which carried a possible death sentence.

Prosecuting attorneys charged Dr. LaMance killed Mrs. LaMance the night of Aug. 9, hid her body in a fruit cellar and then made a pretended search for her which ended Aug. 15 with discovery of the body.

SHOOTING OF WOMAN KEPT SECRET 16 DAYS

Miss Chemel, Pittsburgh, Says She Accidentally Wounded Self in A. F. L. Organizer's Suite.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 6 (AP). —Detective Inspector Walter Monaghan tonight investigated the shooting of 26-year-old Anastasia Chemel in the hotel suite of Nicholas Stirone, American Federation of Labor organizer.

The shooting, held confidential for 16 days, was described as accidental by the victim, who, with Stirone, was called to Monaghan's office.

The inspector said Miss Chemel told him she picked up Stirone's small-caliber revolver and accidentally discharged it. She was in a hospital seven days for treatment of the wound.

Stirone, 37 years old, said he was legally separated from his wife who lives in New Jersey, where he formerly resided.

ENGLAND'S KING AND QUEEN AT SEA, AMERICA-BOUND

George VI and Elizabeth Leave Portsmouth Amid Cheers of Crowd and Roar of Naval Guns.

FIRST BRITISH RULERS TO VISIT NEW WORLD

Liner Due at Quebec May 15 — Freighter Almost Spoils Home Fleet's Farewell Demonstration.

ABOARD THE EMPRESS OF AUSTRALIA, May 6 (AP).—King George and his Queen, standing on the bridge in the late afternoon sun, received a final farewell salute from ships of the British Atlantic fleet and sailed on tonight for American shores.

As the fleet, led by the mighty battleships Nelson and Rodney, fell astern, George and Queen Elizabeth turned from the cheers and gunfire to a quiet dinner with members of the royal suite aboard this liner.

They left Portsmouth for a tour of Canada and the United States, and headed into the English Channel, the King with field glasses and the Queen with sun glasses as protection from the glare.

It was a dramatic picture, but almost spoiled by the presence of a merchant ship which came too close to the line of the fleet and prevented it opening out at the approach of the Empress of Australia. The King's ship, however, was able to proceed down through two lines of warships as the royal salute of 21 guns was fired.

The King stood saluting. The cannon salutes and the roar of diving aircraft from the carrier Ark Royal were almost deafening. The seamen and Marines, at first ordered to stay in ranks, finally were allowed to break and cheer, with the Marines waving white helmets from the Nelson.

Message From Fleet Commander.

Admiral Sir Charles Forbes, commander-in-chief of the home fleet, made the following signal to the Empress of Australia: "With humble duty, officers and men wish Your Majesties an enjoyable and successful journey. We look forward to welcoming you back in June."

The Empress signaled back: "I thank you for the splendid send-off which the home fleet has given the Queen and myself and congratulate you on the fine appearance of the ships. I wish you all good luck. Thank you for your signal and good wishes. The King."

As the signal flags broke out three last cheers arose from the men of the fleet, bands began the national anthem aboard the Nelson and Rodney and guns barked a final salute. The glittering Empress steamed into the sun with her escort, and the fleet turned away in wide circles to port and starboard.

As the fleet fell behind the Empress increased her speed to 17 knots, which is to be maintained throughout the night. The escorting cruisers Glasgow and Southampton mounted guard on each side, with the battle cruiser Repulse following astern.

After dinner tonight the Royal party listened to a concert of classical music—in contrast to the navy's "Godspeed and come back soon" expressed by the thundering guns.

First Rulers to Visit New World.

British sovereign and his Queen visited the New World.

The King's mother, Queen Mary, wiped tears from her eyes as she watched the King and Queen depart. The Queen Mother will celebrate her seventy-second birthday during the more than six weeks that King George and Queen Elizabeth will be gone.

Their daughters, Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, excitedly waved big white handkerchiefs as the German-built liner moved slowly out of the harbor and the King and Queen waved back from the forward end of the promenade deck, just below the bridge.

Thousands of spectators massed on the shore to watch the Empress of Australia, with the royal party of 30 as its only passengers, slide out toward the sea.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor were the only members of the royal family who did not bid the King and Queen bon voyage. The King's brothers, the Dukes of Gloucester and Kent, were there with their wives, and the King's only sister, the Princess Royal and her husband, the Earl of Harewood, came to say good-by.

To Enter U. S. on June 8.

With an average speed of 20 knots and a top speed of 22, the Empress

REVIVAL OF 'APPEASEMENT' TALK IN BRITAIN AS TO GERMANY'S DANZIG CLAIM

POLES AND GERMANS IN DANZIG TENSE, RINGED ABOUT BY ARMED CAMPS

DANZIG, May 6 (AP).

THE population of Danzig, object of conflicting German and Polish claims, apparently was straining anxiously tonight to avoid incidents that might be seized by either as an excuse to occupy the territory.

Both Poles and Germans in the Free City seemed to share that uneasy state of mind with large forces of German troops on one border and of Poland mobilized on the other.

Business was being done on a day-to-day basis because of the uncertainty.

German soldiers are near the Free City's borders and Polish soldiers are still nearer—on the Western side they stand between Danzig and Germany.

The main German troop concentration was understood to be at Elbing, in East Prussia, about six miles from the frontier and about eight miles from Danzig. Across the bay is the German naval base at Pillau, East Prussia.

Poland, still under mobilization put into force weeks ago, was estimated to have 200,000 men in the Corridor.

Important for Poland is the narrow Hela peninsula which stretches from above Gdynia into the bay outside Danzig. Polish artillery was reported emplaced at Hel, on the tip of the peninsula 12 miles across water from Danzig harbor.

RUMORS IN BERLIN STALIN AND HITLER PLAN TO MAKE UP

Quiet German Soundings Looking to Accord With Soviet Russia Reported to Have Been Made.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER.

BERLIN, May 6 (AP).—Reports of quiet German soundings in the direction of Soviet Russia reached trained Berlin observers tonight while the world's attention remained fixed closely on the Free City of Danzig and Poland.

Indications that German strategy pointed to a plebiscite in Danzig to decide whether it should return to Germany meanwhile were the object of diplomatic preoccupation.

It was thought that a German proposal for such a plebiscite, in which a vote to return to Germany was regarded as a foregone conclusion, had been taken by Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop to Milan for his conference with Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Danzig Officials See Hitler.

Von Ribbentrop conferred with Reichsfuehrer Hitler in his Bavarian mountain retreat yesterday for six hours and it was admitted officially today that Albert Forster, Nazi district leader in Danzig, and Arthur Greiser, president of the Danzig Senate, were with the Fuehrer at the same time.

Officials also admitted that Mgr. Cesare Orsenigo, papal nuncio in Germany, was with the Fuehrer yesterday but they intimated his mission was concerned with Catholic matters rather than international political events.

Paradoxical as it may seem, indications were increasing that pointed to the possibility that Joseph Stalin and Adolf Hitler might yet figuratively speaking, shake hands and make up. Much water will have to flow over the dam, however, before this could be achieved.

Some Significant Straws.

The following facts, however, have been noted:

1. Hitler, in his Reichstag speech of Jan. 30, commemorating six years of Nazi rule, said almost nothing about Soviet Russia.

2. On either April 24 or 25, Russian Ambassador Alexej Merekalov and the counselor of the Russion embassy Sergei Astacvhov,

HOW FAR ENGLAND WILL GO IN AID OF WARSAW NOW POINT IN QUESTION

HALIFAX TALKS TO RUSSIA'S ENVOY

They Take Up London Proposals for Military Alliance Offered as Substitutes for Soviet Suggestions.

LONDON, May 6 (AP).—Revival of "appeasement" talk in influential quarters close to the Government today aroused political controversy in Britain with tension developing between Germany and Poland over Danzig and Pomorze (the Polish Corridor).

Among groups, both in and out of Parliament, which have advocated a stronger British foreign policy suspicions have been expressed about the firmness of Britain's guarantee to Poland of aid in resisting any aggression.

British-Russian negotiations looking toward an alliance, which these anti-appeasement groups have advocated, continued today with a conference between Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax and Russian Ambassador Ivan Maisky. They were known to have discussed British proposals which countered earlier Russian alliance suggestions and which responsible sources said included a British expression of readiness to join the existing military alliance between Soviet Russia and France.

Hopes for Early Agreement.

Main purpose of the British proposals, embodied in a note approved yesterday by the Goverment's Foreign Affairs Committee, was to add Russia's military might to the British-French system of alliance.

Optimism in Government quarters as to eventual success of the British-Russian negotiations was considered evidence that Britain had made concessions to the Russian demands for a military alliance that promised early agreement. The Foreign Office, however, declined either to confirm or deny Britain's acceptance of the alliance principle.

It was understood that Britain's rejoinder on other points of Russia's proposals—for an all-inclusive guarantee by Britain-France-Russia to small European countries instead of individual guarantees such as Britain suggests—was that they were sound in theory but not practical in the present situation.

Emergence of suggestions in Germany that the Danzig issue be settled by a plebiscite—which Nazis are confident would vote for the city's return to Germany—were interpreted here as a move to weaken British support for Poland and lay the groundwork for repetition of procedure such as Adolf Hitler used in last year's Czecho-Slovak crisis.

Questions in the Press.

Some sections of the press began to question whether Britain would allow Poland a completely free hand in using the British guarantee of support in negotiating a Danzig settlement with Germany.

The new furor over alleged softening of British policy toward Germany began with a letter to the Times of London from Lord Rushcliffe, who, as Labor Minister, sat with Chamberlain in the Baldwin Cabinet and is close to members of the present Cabinet.

It argued that Hitler's Reichstag speech of April 28 offered hope that Germany might yet find an acceptable compromise on British-German issues and advocated further efforts at accord.

Other similar letters followed, and then appeared a line in a Times editorial saying that "Danzig really is not worth a war."

POLAND PRESSING BILL TO INCREASE MOSCICKI'S POWER

NATION AWAITING GERMANY'S MOVE

Only Definite Suggestions Will Be Considered — Reports of Pope's Move Develops Interest.

WARSAW, May 6 (AP).—The Legal Committee of the Sejm (lower house of Parliament) unanimously approved today a bill granting special powers to President Ignace Mascicki.

It would give the President wide authority to issue decrees on matters concerning national defense, economics and finance until the next regular session of Parliament in early December. The measure now will go to the Sejm and the Senate.

Eugene Kwiatkowski, Vice Premier and Minister of Finance, told the committee the main purpose of the bill was to enable prompt settlement of economic and financial matters connected with the defense of the country.

He pointed out, however, that the Government was not resorting to Article 79 of the Constitution which allows the President automatically, without the permission of Parliament, to issue decrees when the country is "endangered."

Poland as a whole remained calm while awaiting Germany's next move following the rejection yesterday by Foreign Minister Col. Joseph Beck of German demands for Danzig and a sovereign right of way between East Prussia and the rest of Germany across Pomorze (the Polish Corridior).

Reports that Reichsfuehrer Hitler may seek a plebiscite in the Free City of Danzig on the question of its return to Germany were termed "too vague for comment" in Polish official circles.

The official Polish attitude is that only definite suggestions, in keeping with the limits defined by Col. Beck yesterday, were entitled to the direct attention of the Polish Government.

There was a developing interest in reports that Pope Pius XII might seek to mediate among the nations of Europe.

They apparently were based largely on the meeting yesterday between Hitler and Monsignor Cesare Orsenigo, Papal Nuncio to Germany, but Catholic leaders were skeptical.

(A Vatican City dispatch said that sources familiar with Vatican policies reported that the Papal Nuncios to Germany, Poland, France, Italy and other countries had been instructed by the Pontiff to confer with high officials in an effort to safeguard peace).

Poland expelled two families of German land owners in Pomorze in retaliation for the ousting of Poles from the German eastern frontier zone.

sible parliamentary trick to block him.

There would seem to be no question that such a motion would be successful, 104 votes having been cast for the perfection of the bill, while only 76 will be necessary for the adoption of the motion and the passage of the bill.

Makeup of Committee.

There is no expectation that the members of Lafferty's committee will take any action within the committee to force a report on the bill, four of the seven members having opposed its perfection, and a fifth having been unfriendly on most of the amendments offered, though he voted for perfection. The remaining two members are Republicans and have been consistent supporters of the bill.

Lafferty, Edward M. Brady of St. Louis, Frank W. Robison of Kansas City and J. W. Farley of Platte County are the four members who have fought the bill at every stage. Claude I. Murry of Macon is the fourth Democratic member. He voted for perfection, but was antatgonistic to the Governor's program on consideration of important amendments. The two Republican members are Charles T. Wolf of Ste. Genevieve and Wayne V. Slankard of Neosho.

CHINA PLANNING TO SHIFT ITS CAPITAL TO CHENGTU

Air Bombings of Chungking Cause 4000 Casualties—Fourth Time Chiang Kai-shek Has Moved in 22 Months.

HONGKONG, May 7 (Sunday)—(AP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek was reported today planning quickly to shift his capital again, from ruined and still vulnerable Chungking to Chengtu.

Both Japanese and European sources said Chiang would transfer his seat of government 175 miles northwest to the Szechwan Province capital.

Parts of Chungking were on f ire today after repeated Japanese air raids, which have caused between 4000 and 5000 casualties and have driven out foreign diplomatic officials, as well as thousands of Chinese.

A new capital would be the fourth for China in exactly 22 months since the undeclared war broke out, July 7, 1937.

The advance of the Japanese inland from Shanghai forced the Chinese from Nanking, their established capital, before it was captured Dec. 13, 1937. The government seat shifted then to Hankow and from that city, which fell to the Japanese Oct. 25, 1938, to Chungking.

A Japanese navy spokesman of the Imperial Headquarters in Tokio declared today that Japan's air force would pursue Chiang's government to "the ever remotest corner of China."

The Japanese bombing range covered all of China, he declared, and as China's capital was moved from place to place Japan's air forces would follow. With the approach of summer China's best flying season, he said Japan's flyers would make Chiang's government "lament there is not a safe retreat for it under heaven."

The British Consulate and Embassy were moved from their badly-damaged buildings to the south bank of the Yangtze River. Staffs of the German Embassy and Consulate, whose buildings were not damaged, took new quarters in the outskirts.

Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, British Ambassador to Tokyo, informed Renzo Sawada, Assistant Secretary of Foreign Affairs, of the gravity of the bombing of the Britsh Consulate in Chungking and described as entirely unacceptable the Japanese explanation that anti-aircraft units were near the Consulate.

The United States consular and embassy headquarters, located on the south bank of the river and outside the bombed area, were untouched.

Chungking, whose normal population of about 650,000 had been swollen by refugees to 2,000,000 before the raids on Wednesday and Thursday, began to assume a deserted aspect as hundreds of thousands crossed the river or fled to the countryside. Nearly all foreign firms in Chungking proper prepared to move across the Yangtze.

Gen. Chiang Kai-shek himself assumed direction of the civil evacuation Friday. Twice he inspected damaged areas and ordered that all motor cars and trucks be commandeered to transport refugees to the country. His wife supervised the flight of war orphans.

On the Han riverfront in Hupeh Province the Chinese reported advances in a counterattack against Japanese forces. The westward drive of the invaders was said to have been halted, with their lines driven back to the east bank of the stream in four places.

Additional Chinese gains were reported in Kiangsi Province, where Chiang Kai-shek's commanders said their men had fought their way back close to Nanchang, provincial capital which fell March 27. Dispatches received at Amoy said Japanese naval aircraft bombed Foochow, in coastal Fukien Province, heavily last week. Several hundred people were reported killed there and in surrounding towns.

RUMORS IN BERLIN STALIN AND HITLER PLAN TO MAKE UP

spent more than an hour conferring in the Foreign Office with Secretary of State Baron Ernst von Weizsaecker.

3. Merekalov then left for Moscow. Te was there when Maxim Litvinov resigned as Commissar of Foreign Affairs, an event of which the Ambassador was reported to have advised Germany about five days in advance.

4. Soviet Russia received no attention in Hitler's Reichstag speech of April 28 in which he replied to President Roosevelt.

Goering Reputed Mission.

5. Persistent but unconfirmable rumors in Berlin have it that Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, who has gone to San Remo, Italy, "for a short stay," will meet Boris Stein, Russian Ambassador to Rome. Stein is one of the men said to have been working consistently for a rapproachment between the Soviet Union and Germany.

6. Speculation in German officialdom as to who might succeed Count Friedrich Werner von der Schulenberg, Germany's Ambassador to Moscow, already is so concrete that there is unanimity of opinion the post will be offered, if and when a rapproachment materializes, to retired enG. Baron von Hammerstein-Equord.

7. Like a mushroom's overnight growth, the capital has become filled with rumors about negotiations with Russia.

Gen. von Hammerstein-Equord was Chief of Staff of the army when Hitler rose to power and was one of the chief promoters of Russian-German friendship, both during the pre-Hitler Republic and the early days of Naziism. He had differences of opinion with the Fuehrer and resigned in December, 1933.

The question presented to foreign observers is: Is all this talk concerning Russia preliminary to a real Russian-German rapprochement or is ot a shrewd, calculated drive to throw monkey wrenches into the diplomatic machinery now engaged in an effort to construct a British-French bridge to Moscow? Even if it is only a maneuver it is considered likely to have its effect in Moscow. Persons who are optimistic over it believe that at least it may prevent Stalin from entering the Chamberlain-Daladier camp.

DANISH PRINCE PAYS VISIT TO WASHINGTON

Calls Roosevelt "Charming," and Expresses Surprise at America's Vastness.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP). — Prince Frederik and Princess Ingrid of Denmark began a sightseeing trip here today, declaring that everything in America is "wonderful."

The first of three royal pairs expected in Washington this year, they were received informally at Union Station by the Secretary of State and Mrs. Hull, in contrast with the ceremonious reception yesterday for President Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua.

The military display with which Somoza was welcomed will be seen again, however, when King George and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain arrive in June.

Prince Frederik and Princess Ingrid, taking turns receiving reporters before a White House tea and a Danish official dinner at the Legation, related that in a 30-day trip across the United States, they had not had a flat tire nor had to wait for a train.

Prince Frederik said there was no time on such an official trip to have fun, but that he thought America, Washington and the trip were marvelous.

Briefly, he had dismissed hot dogs, served by the Roosevelt's at Hyde Park, as "all right," democracy as "all right" and said he was surprised by America's "vastness."

President Roosevelt, he said, "was just as charming as all other Americans have been." Boulder Dam and Yosemite Park stood out among the sights he saw. He said he is not here to make trade arrangements.

"I am from Denmark," he corrected a reporter who asked him about Norway. The Norwegian Crown Prince and Princess are coming after the British visit.

Princess Ingrid, who wore a white and silver lame gown and jewels in her hair to the dinner tonight, described the dress briefly to reporters earlier after exclaiming that she liked to keep clothes for a surprise.

After the White House tea, Princess Ingrid visited the Girl Scout Little House, where an honor guard of girls in woodsy green scout uniforms, and one little girl in the navy blue of the Danish Girl Scouts, welcomed her. A bouquet of red, white and blue flowers was presented to her.

Earlier she and Prince Frederik went to Mount Vernon to lay a wreath on George Washington's tomb.

ARGENTINE NAZI LEADER'S RELEASE ORDERED BY COURT

Prosecutor Requests Action; Arrest Followed Charge of Plot in Patagonia.

BUENOS AIRES, May 6 (AP).—Federal Judge Miguel Jantus ordered today the release of Alfred Mueller, Argentine Nazi leader arrested April 6 after disclosure of alleged German designs on Argentina's territory of Patagonia.

The court acted on recommendations of Federal Prosecutor Victor Paulucci Cornejo, who said there was no evidence to justify further detention of Mueller.

An inquiry into Nazi activities in Argentina and Mueller's arrest followed newspaper publication of the facsimile of an alleged report to the German Colonial Ministry describing Patagonia as a "no man's land" and suggesting its annexation by Germany.

PARIS LUKEWARM TO RUSSIAN PLAN OF MILITARY PACT

French Diplomats See Danger of Breakdown If Moscow Rejects London 'Compromise.'

PARIS, May 6 (AP).—The danger of a breakdown in French-British collective security negotiations with Soviet Russia was reported in diplomatic circles tonight unless Moscow accepted the latest "compromise" proposals of the Western Powers.

The French Foreign Office described the new plan, by which France and Britain are seeking to draw Russia into their bloc, as a combination of the features of the original memorandum sent to Moscow separately by London and Paris when the negotiations first opened.

French spokesmen declined to go further into the details of the proposals, but diplomatic circles understood they were lukewarm to the Russian idea of sweeping guarantees to small European states.

These circles expressed belief the compromise, drafted in London with French approval, would limit Russian military action to aid for Baltic states or Rumania in case of aggression. In London it was said the proposal would go forward to Moscow "shortly."

While the new British-French suggestions were not expected to represent their last word, diplomatic circles expressed belief that Russian failure to accept them would endanger the negotiations.

CUBAN DECREE RESTRICTING JEWISH IMMIGRATION SIGNED

Necessitated by Number Entering Country to Live, President Laredo Bru Says.

HAVANA, May 6 (AP).—President Laredo Bru signed tonight a decree restricting immigration with the announcement it was necessary because of an increase in the number of Jews coming here to live.

The decree requires immigrants to deposit a $500 cash bond and orders all Cuban consuls to refuse passport visas without previous approval from the State, Labor and Treasury Departments. This does not apply to North American tourists.

that it could settle its own differences. Twice Dewey was admitted at his request but it was not until the arrival of Dr. Steelman that a Government representative took an active role as a mediator.

In Washington, Secretary of Labor Perkins on several occasions expressed hope for peace, while White House officials indicated the President would not intervene until all the other resources of the Government had been exhausted.

Text of Roosevelt's Message.

The text of President Roosevelt's message:

"The Secretary of Labor has reported to me that your committee has been deadlocked on the question of negotiating a new wage agreement. The differences in viewpoint of representatives of workers and operators appear not to be insurmountable and the orderly process of collective bargaining should suffice to bring about their adjustment.

"Because of this I urge that the present negotiations with the Federal Commissioner continue and that all sit down with the intention to reach a fair, honorable and workable agreement in a spirit of give and take.

"Time is now important and agreement must be reached promptly.

"It is in the public interest as well as your own that you arrive at such an adjustment. The public interest is paramount and above that of any group. As President of the United States, I caution the negotiators on both sides to keep this in mind and continue negotiations until a speedy settlement is made in justice to the two groups in conference and to the American people."

POPE REPORTED MAKING DIRECT DRIVE FOR PEACE

Conferences of Nuncios With Hitler and Bonnet Cited as Evidence of Definite Plan.

VATICAN CITY, May 6 (AP).—Pope Pius XII was reported on good authority tonight to have put the moral force of the Catholic church and the diplomatic resources of the Vatican into a campaign to preserve the peace of Europe.

Sources familiar with Vatican policy said that the Papal Nuncios to Germany, France, Italy, Poland and other countries had been instructed to confer with high officials—in some cases the heads of governments—in an effort for peace.

These informants cited interviews yesterday between Mgr. Cesare Orsenigo, Nuncio to Germany, and Chancellor Hitler, and Mgr. Valerio Valeri, Nuncio to France, and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet.

The Vatican was officially silent on such moves.

Some indication of the Pope's plans may be forthcoming tomorrow when he addresses a message to the Eucharistic Congress in Algiers, to be broadcast from the Vatican radio station at 5 a. m. (St. Louis time). No announcement of the subject has been made.

Some diplomats express the opinion that Vatican envoys are working on a specific plan of campaign. They said they had learned that voluminous and meticulous instructions had gone to the Nuncios from Luigi Cardinal Maglione, papal secretary of state, and that some reports from Nuncios telling of progress already had been received at the Vatican.

Peace has been a subject of nearly all Pope Pius' public utterances since his election March 2.

AMERICANS REPORTED ARRESTED BY GESTAPO

Nazi Secret Police Said to Be Holding Cameraman, Wife and Assistants.

VIENNA, May 6 (AP).—Richard Rosson, American motion picture cameraman, and his wife were reported today to have been arrested by German secret police at Graz because of pictures they took. Rosson was described as a professional photographer working for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Two British subjects, John Whitehead and a man named Allen, also were reported to have been held.

They were taken into custody, it was said, by the Gestapo (secret police) on a charge of photographing military objects. Their case was said here to have been passed on to the Gestapo headquarters in Berlin.

Authorities here said three other British subjects were being held in Vienna for foreign exchange offenses. They are understood to include two women and one man. So far, however, only the name of one woman, a Miss Church, has become known.

Producer Says Photographer Was Making Movie of Horses.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 6 (AP).—Richard Rosson, Hollywood motion picture photographer, was arrested in Austria by German secret olice while photographing livestock scens, not fortifications, Producer Winfield Sheehan said today.

Sheehan said the contemplated picture contains no military scenes, although the report from Vienna said Rosson and his companions were arrested for photographing military objects.

Rosson's wife, arrested with him, is the former Vera Sisson, actress.

Rosson is a brother of Hal Rosson, also a camera man, who was the third husband of the late Jean Harlow, actress.

The producer felt certain "this mistake will be cleared up within the next few days." Sheehan sent Rosson to Austria to photograph pictures in connection with the production "Florian," written by Felix Salten, a continental author.

SIMON DEFENDS CONSCRIPTION AS A NECESSARY MEASURE

Asserts Britain Must Be Ready in "the Very First Hour" in Any War.

GREAT YARMOUTH, England, May 6 (AP). — Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said in a speech today that Britain's decision to adopt military conscription was made necessary by its need to be ready for "the very first hour" in any war.

"We could not begin to build up our armed forces, as Kitchener (Earl Kitchener, War Secretary) did a quarter-century ago, after the conflict started," Simon said, "for the need to show our strength and our preparedness would exist in the very first hour."

ITALY SAID TO APPROVE BALTIC ISLAND FORTS

Britain, Germany Back Defenses for Finnish Aalands, Opposed by Russia.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, May 6 (AP).—Italy was reported today to have joined Britain and Germany in approving a proposal by Sweden and Finland to fortify the autonomous Aalands, a group of Baltic Sea islands which may vitally influence Europe's "next war."

Russia was said heretofore to have objected to the proposal, contending that neither Sweden nor Finland were strong enough to defend the islands against aggression. Seizure of the group by a hostile Power would be a menace to Leningrad, Russia's western port.

Straddling the narrow entrance to the Gulf of Bothnia, northern extension of the Baltic, the Aalands are 50 miles from Finland, which has sovereign rights over the group, and 25 miles from Sweden, whose language the islanders speak. The islands were Russian until 1917, when Finland declared its independence.

Finland and Sweden, who quarreled after the World War over who should control the Aalands, think the start of a European war would see a race between Germany and Russia to occupy the group, carrying virtual control of the Baltic.

Demilitarized in 1921 by a League of Nations convention which guaranteed the neutrality of the islands, they are regarded by the two Scandinavian countries as a provocative temptation to a third Power.

Strategic importance of the islands lie in the fact that a modern bomber could fly from Aaland, main island of the group of 300 small islands and rocks, to Stockholm in less than 15 minutes.

During the September Czecho-Slovak crisis Finland massed troops on the mainland ready to cross to the islands if war came. Sweden, which also had heard a "major Power" was planning to seize the islands, mobilized an expeditionary force.

That crisis passed, but Finland and Sweden still think there is a big risk. So they worked out the plan to rebuild fortifications, garrison the main island and introduce military conscription, already in force throughout the rest of Finland.

JACKSON COUNTY COURT AGREES TO PAYROLL CHECK

Consents to Civic Groups' Demand for Audit of Books—Tax Reductions Are Sought.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT FIRES 218 EMPLOYES

Director Acts After Mayor Says Bureau No Longer Will Be Dumping Ground for Party Workers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 6.—The purge of Kansas City's municipal government extended today to the Jackson County Court, which, yielding to pressure of civic organizations, consented to a check of payrolls and an audit of its books.

This action followed another payroll slash at the City Hall, when Dr. Edwin H. Schorer, director of the Health Department, dismissed 218 employes.

The County Court, which had stubbornly held to a "let us alone" policy, finally agreed to meet with committees of the Real Estate Board and Chamber of Commerce Tuesday for a "full discussion" of demands by the board for tax reductions, publicity on county payrolls and an audit. The Kansas City League of Building and Loan Associations joined with the other groups in the demand for county tax cuts.

The discharges in the Health Department came a week after Mayor Bryce B. Smith, in the clean up that followed indictment of Boss Tom Pendergast by a Federal grand jury on charges of income tax evasion, notified Dr. Schorer that his payrolls no longer would be used as a dumping ground for party henchmen who did little or no work. More than 500 other city employes were fired previously as part of the Mayor's drive.

Director Cancels All Contracts.

Dr. Schorer said all contracts of his department had been canceled, including one with a North Side undertaker for burial of persons without funds who died at a city-owned hospital. In some instances, he disclosed, bodies had been turned over to the undertaker before relatives learned of the deaths. Some relatives complained of this hasty action.

All vacations have been canceled this year and a new system of employment, purchasing and bookkeeping is being inaugurated, Dr. Schorer said.

In another phase of the clean-up, a deposition hearing in the city's suit to recover $342,500 paid to the Rathford Engineering Co. for surveying leaks in the water system was postponed until Monday. Investigators have found that John J. Rathford, a $140-a-month water department employe, and two partners, J. G. Halpin, attorney, and Carl D. Higgins, received the money over a six-year period at the rate of $5000 a month.

Records of the State Insurance Department, it was learned yesterday, show that during part of the six-year period, from March, 1934, to July, 1937, Halpin was on the payroll of the department as a clerk at $150 a month. Employes on the staff during those years were unable to recall having seen him in the department offices.

During this time the department was headed by R. Emmet O'Malley, now under indictment with Pendergast on income tax evasion charges. After being fired by Gov. Lloyd C. Stark as Insurance Superintendent in October, 1937, O'Malley became director of the Kansas City water department, a job from which he took a leave of absence following his indictment.

Acting City Manager Eugene C. Zachman, whose permanent appointment was opposed yesterday in a resolution by the Forward Kansas City Committee, organization of civic leaders, announced today that he was "ready to step aside when my usefulness has ended." He said he had "no other desire or ambition than to be of service in carrying out Mayor Smith's program."

Zachman, former private secretary to the Mayor, was appointed acting city manager recently after H. F. McElroy resigned.

Funeral of Pendergast Aid.

The boss was represented by his son, T. J. Pendergast Jr., and other members of their family at the funeral today of Edward L. Schneider, officer of six Pendergast corporations and key witness in the Government's investigation of Pendergast affairs, whose body was recovered yesterday from the Missouri River.

Schneider, who testified before the Federal grand jury three and a half days just before Pendergast was re-indicted on a charge of evading taxes on $433,550 income in 1935-36, disappeared last Monday. His automobile, containing two suicide notes, was found on the Fairfax Bridge.

The funeral services, at a mortuary, were attended by about 500 persons. There were many flowers, including a wreath of roses, snapdragons and sweet peas from Pendergast.

The Rev. Andreas Bard, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, who conducted the services, praised Schneider as one "always ready to render service."

"I cannot but feel that a man who loved life as he did, who had not reached the prime of life, must have had some grave reason for his act," the minister asserted. "Was it entangling alliances? Something must have happened. We are not here to judge that. There are pitfalls for men, as the temptation for money and power is great.

"Did he commit suicide under pressure? Did he choose to end his life? Perhaps we shall never know."

Schneider's Movements Checked.

Intensive efforts to find the answer to these questions have been under way by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation since Schneider disappeared. His every movement from the time of his appearance before the jury to his disappearance has been checked.

All but two hours of that period—from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. last Saturday—have been accounted for, it was understood. Persons who saw Schneider that morning said he was apparently in good spirits. When he returned home that afternoon, his wife told authorities, he was so overwrought that a physician had to be called to quiet him.

District Attorney Maurice M. Milligan is convinced that disclosure of where Schneider went and with whom he talked during that two hours will throw much light on his death.

The grand jury, in recess for a week, will reconvene Monday morning, summoning as witnesses four of Schneider's associates.

They are Otto P. Higgins, ousted police director, who visited Schneider shortly before his disappearance; Carl Braun, office manager of one of the concerns employing Schneider, who said he saw him writing one of the suicide notes a week ago Thursday; Walter Colburn, a business associate, and Robert P. Lyons, superintendent of the Ready-Mixed Co.

20 SEEKING AID CONTINUE STAY-IN AT RELIEF OFFICE

Police Refuse to Let Others Enter, but Permit Food to Be Sent in to Group.

The stay-in demonstration begun Friday by 20 relief applicants continued last night, with the demonstrators remaining in the offices of the St. Louis Social Security Commission at 2221 Locust street.

Two policemen assigned to the offices permitted food to be delivered to the demonstrators, but refused to allow others to enter. No effort has been made to evict them. The demonstration was indorsed yesterday by the Project Workers' Union, which adopted a resolution calling on unemployed persons to give their moral support to the demand for immediate aid.

Relief Administrator John K. Rowland has stated his staff is too small to handle applications. About 200 persons seek aid daily and there are now 8500 cases on St. Louis relief rolls.

WIFE CONFESSES PLOT TO MURDER HUSBAND

Neighbor, Also Arrested, Tells of Plan to Hang Victim to Simulate Suicide.

MOUNT CARROLL, Ill., May 6 (AP).—Sheriff Ray Westfall said tonight he had arrested a young widower and a 37-year-old school teacher in connection with a plot to slug the woman's husband, hang his body in the hayloft of a barn and make it appear a suicide.

The Carroll County Sheriff said John Solt, 27, the widower, and Mrs. Charles Adams, the school teacher, were charged with attempting to commit bodily harm with a deadly weapon and placed under $2500 bond each. Sheriff Westfall said Mrs. Adams had signed a confession admitting that she had asked Solt to do away with her husband.

State's Attorney John L. Brearton announced the case would be presented to the grand jury next month.

Adams, who is 54, told the Sheriff he climbed up to the hayloft last night, snapped on a flashlight and saw a masked man advancing, a hammer in one hand and a rope in the other. In his fright Adams fell from the loft. He and his wife summoned neighbors and the Sheriff to their farm, six miles west of here. A manhunt was organized, but the mysterious masked man had vanished. Later, the Sheriff said, Adams told him the man resembled his neighbor, John Solt.

Sheriff Westfall said that Solt admitted he was the masked man and that he had planned to slug Adams and hang him. In the back of Solt's car officers found the rope, hammer and a handkerchief mask, the Sheriff said.

"Solt drove Mrs. Adams home from the rural school yesterday," the Sheriff said. "He told me she had promised him a favor if he would waylay her husband. She didn't tell him just what the favor would be."

Mrs. Adams was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Frank Schroeppel and the $2500 bond was posted by her father, John Rausch, a retired farmer of Lanark, Ill.

CONVICTED OF KILLING INDIANA GIRL STUDENT

Adrian H. Miller Found Sane; Verdict Carries Death in Electric Chair.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., May 6 (AP).—An Allen County Circuit Court jury convicted Adrian H. Miller, 31-year-old Technical College student, late today of the first degree murder of Alice May Girton, 18, business college student, last October.

The jury deliberated less than two hours, and returned a finding that Miller was sane at the time of the killing. A first degree murder conviction carries the penalty of death in the electric chair.

Miller fainted when the jury foreman announced the verdict.

Judge Harry Hilgemann did not indicate when he would pass sentence on the Racine (Wis.) student, who had based hopes for acquittal on an insanity plea. Neither did defense attorneys say whether they would appeal.

Later, Miller called his jailer and said he had swallowed poison. He was taken to a hospital, where physicians, after using a stomach pump, said they found no trace of poison and that Miller apparently was suffering only from shock. Sheriff Walter Felger, suspecting a scheme to escape, allowed Miller to stay in the hospital overnight, but shackled him to his bed under heavy guard.

Prosecutor C. Byron Hayes demanded a death sentence for Miller, contending the man was sane when he allegedly attacked and strangled Miss Girton in her room last Oct. 13.

Defense Counsel Wayne Miller argued that Miller was insane at the time of the act.

Two physicians named by Judge Hilgemann — W. W. Carey and Maurice Glock, both of Fort Wayne—earlier today testified Miller was sane at the time of the crime. Their testimony corroborated that of a third court-named physician—L. P. Harshman.

SECOND BIGGEST NEW YORK FAIR CROWD ON HOTTEST DAY

Japanese Send Up Pigeons, Turks Dedicate Pavilion, 'Amazons' Display Charms and Arms.

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP).—A crowd officially announced as more than 165,000—biggest since the opening day—swarmed into the New York World's Fair today as the thermometer hit 84 for the hottest day of the year.

A focus of attention was the "Amazon" exhibit in the Midway, where girls equipped with shields, daggers and little else enact the exploits of the fabled females. A hundred and fifty pigeons soared into the air to signalize the dedication of the Japanese exhibit, featuring a million-dollar replica of the Liberty Bell in cultured pearls. Dedicating the Turkish pavilion, Ambassador Mehmet Munir Ertegun declared his country held a policy of peace, explaining Turkey's display was made possible because, unlike some other nations, it was not "spending all its spare dollars on arms."

Pursuant to a Fair order resulting from complaints about food prices, restaurants posted menus, and one cut its luncheon price 75 cents.

NEANDERTHAL SKULL DUG UP IN ITALY, FIRST FOUND THERE

Discovered by Archeologists Excavating for Roman Relics Between Rome and Naples.

ROME, May 6 (AP). — The Italian Government today announced a rare archeological find, the skull of a Neanderthal man near Terracina, on the coast between Rome and Naples. Archeologists were excavating for objects belonging to Romans of about 2000 years ago. Instead they found a skull estimated to be between 80,000 and 130,000 years old.

Although the Neanderthal race once was widespread in Europe, the skull was said to be the first of that age discovered in Italy.

Neanderthal man appears to have been the sole occupant of Europe during the middle pleistocene period, about 40,000 B. C. to 20,000 B. C., according to some authorities.

DEAF MUTE FOUND GUILTY OF PERJURY AS TO MARRIAGE

Gets Year After He Asserts and Reputed Wife Denies She Agreed to Wedding by Proxy.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 6 (AP).—A Criminal Court jury convicted a deaf mute today of false swearing in connection with his marriage by proxy last September in which his sister represented the bride, also a deaf mute. Punishment was fixed at a year and a day in prison.

The defendant, 28-year-old Theodore Cutshaw, was tried on a charge of swearing falsely in an affidavit he filed in a habeas corpus action contending his reputed wife's parents kept them apart by force.

Mae Swinney, 17, denied that she gave her consent to the marriage by proxy.

Cutshaw's mother, Mrs. I. C. Cutshaw, testified she witnessed the wedding and said the proxy ceremony was authorized by Mae Swinney.

Police Said John Lindner After Collision Told Them He Had Had 20 Bottles of Beer.

John Lindner, a WPA painter, has appealed from a sentence of 90 days in the Workhouse and $180 fine imposed in police court yesterday on charges of driving when intoxicated and careless driving.

Police testified Lindner told them he had had 20 bottles of beer and two drinks of whisky when they arrested him March 24 after a head-on collision between his automobile and another machine at Vandeventer avenue and North Market street.

Lindner, who lives at 2340 Park avenue, told Police Judge Frank E. Mathews he had but three bottles of beer and was "not real drunk." He admitted making the statement about the greater number of drinks.

TWO HELD AFTER KNIFING OF MAN NEAR BELLEVILLE

Victim Says One of Them Cut Him but Both Deny Even Being in Fight at Tavern.

Sidney Chandler and Charles Moberly of Belleville were charged with assault to kill after a fight yesterday in a tavern, a mile south of Belleville, in which George Bauer, 29 years old, 571 North Twenty-first street, East St. Louis, suffered a severe knife wound in the left arm. He was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Belleville, in serious condition from loss of blood.

Bauer said one of the two cut him, but could not say which. Deputy Sheriffs were unable to learn from him what caused the fight. Chandler and Moberly, when arrested, denied they had been in a fight with Bauer.

MRS. ANNA LEE FARIS, ILL THREE YEARS, DIES

Was Democratic National Committeewoman for Missouri From 1928 to 1936.

Mrs. Anna Lee McClanahan Faris, widow of United States Judge Charles B. Faris, died last night at the family home, 4469 Westminster place, of a cerebral hemorrhage, after three years' invalidism. Mrs. Faris was Democratic National Committeewoman for Missouri from 1928 to 1936. She was 66 years old.

The death of Mrs. Faris came less than five months after that of her husband, who served for 25 years on the bench of State and United States courts, retiring in 1935 from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Her funeral will be held in the chapel of Second Presbyterian Church, Westminster place and Taylor avenue, at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. Faris is survived by two daughters, Mrs. H. J. Moore of Brookfield, Mo., and Miss Mary Lee Faris; and two sons, James White Faris and William Breckenridge Faris.

Her withdrawal from political activity, after two terms on the National Committee, was due to her illness, which took a serious form in May, 1936. Mrs. Nat S. Brown, who was elected to succeed Mrs. Faris, died recently, and the post is now held by Mrs. Lawrence McDaniel.

Mrs. Faris was one of the first officers of the St. Louis League of Women Voters. She was Democratic president of the organization up to her resignation in March, 1921. The League at that time had a Democratic, a Republican and a nonpartisan president.

She was married to Judge Faris in 1894. She inherited his estate, inventoried at $28,000, and the family home.

SYNDICALISM ACT INVOKED IN MOVIE UNION QUARREL

Leader of Studio Technicians' Local Arrested in Connection With International's Injunction Suit.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 6 (AP).—The California Criminal Syndicalism Act was invoked today as the outgrowth of a dispute involving movie studio technical workers.

Booked on suspicion of violating the act was Jeff Kibre, rank-and-file leader of the Film Studio Technician's Union, Local 37 of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, which has been fighting to escape "domination" by international officers. Kibre was arrested at his home on a contempt-of-court warrant issued in connection with injunction proceedings instituted by the international against Local 37.

He and others of the local, which has some 6400 members, have accused the international's representatives of collecting excessive dues and assessments and of conniving with film producers in labor matters affecting I. A. T. S. E. unions in Hollywood. Counsel for Kibre won his release on a writ late today pending a hearing Friday.

SOMOZA SAYS HE'S HERE TO GET CASH FOR NICARAGUA

Latin - American President Offers Co - operation for Such Aid as $20,000,000 Loan Brazil Got.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP).—President Anastasio de Somoza of Nicaragua disclosed today that one purpose of his visit to the United States is to seek concrete economic aid for his country such as that the Roosevelt administration has extended to Brazil.

In return he promised Nicaragua's full co-operation with North American capital and with this Government's efforts to cement continental solidarity.

Speaking to reporters slowly in English he learned when a student in this country, Somoza discussed his aims shortly after concluding an overnight stay at the White House.

He related that he had discussed with President Roosevelt "everything of mutual interest to my country and yours," in the 24 hours since his arrival yesterday.

Much Interested in Aid.

Nicaragua, he said, was "much interested in getting assistance in developing the country, and especially toward completing the International Highway. Long sections of this projected link between North and South America have been built south of the Rio Grande, with some help from the United States.

Somoza indicated he had urged construction of the long-proposed Nicaraguan inter-oceanic canal, which has been sidetracked in Congress in favor of a third set of locks for the Panama Canal.

He said he hoped to confer next week with heads of several Federal departments on details of closer co-operation with the United States.

In the same manner Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha earlier this year helped shape a far-reaching arrangement between Brazil and the United States.

The Export-Import Bank lent Brazil approximately $20,000,000 and Brazil, in return, modified its foreign exchange restrictions so as to facilitate trade with the United States. Credits were arranged and Brazil agreed to resume payments on her dollar indebtedness.

Customer of U. S.

Somoza contends there is ample basis for greater trade between the Americas.

"We can produce in Latin America many products more cheaply than the United States and we should be able to co-operate to greater mutual advantage," he said.

Nicaragua, he added, "buys nearly everything" from the United States.

The Nicaraguan President and Senora de Somoza were feted tonight at a reception at the Pan-American Union.

MONOPOLY INQUIRY TO HEAR CONSUMER GROUP COMPLAINTS

AAA Lawyer to Aid Witnesses at Session Which Will First Take Up Beryllium.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP).—Complaints of consumer groups, representing the buying public, will be heard next week by the Monopoly Committee.

Representatives of consumer organizations requested a chance to tell their side of economic problems before the governmental investigation and hearings will start Wednesday.

Donald Montgomery, consumers counsel for the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, will direct the witnesses.

On Monday and Tuesday the committee will hear a group of witnesses concerned with beryllium, little known metal described as "of strategic importance as an alloy with other metals."

The committee said addition of less than 3 per cent of beryllium to copper produced a metal "as hard or harder than steel, with many of the virtues of both metals."

WINNERS OF FINALS AT FONTBONNE SHOW

A crowd of 1100 displayed most enthusiasm for the novice stake relay, which resulted in almost a camera finish, after a good deal of haphazard wheeling and galloping. The two teams of girls, all of whom seemed to have considerable difficulty in persuading their mounts to round the poles, were spurred on by comments of a waggish announcer.

The show, for students of Fontbonne and its preparatory school, St. Joseph's Academy, opened Friday night and ended last night. More than 80 girls from the college and academy were entered in the 26 events.

GANG ATTACKS ROAD CAMP; ABOUT 12 HURT IN 'INDIAN' RAID

400 Men Hurl Stones, Call Names, Break Windows at Project Involved in Union Row.

SEATTLE, May 6 (AP). — About 12 men were injured, none seriously, in a pitched battle involving 400 men today at a construction company's road camp near Skykomish.

Dwight E. Ricketts, who suffered bruises, likened the attack to "a raid by Indians."

"The 5 o'clock shift was at breakfast and the other men in the camp were asleep," he said. "Rocks began flying into camp and a gang encircling us was yelling and calling names. Windows in the office building and windshields of workers' cars were broken."

Identity of the attackers was not determined.

The construction company has been at odds with several unions and has obtained a court order for the unionists to show cause Monday why they should not be restrained from violence.

Officers moved the crew from Skykomish to Monroe.

Florida Commission Gets Ideas for Polish Word for Grapefruit.

LAKELAND, Fla., May 6 (AP).—The Florida Citrus Commission is still perplexed by the Polish situation—the one about a Polish word for grapefruit. The commission recently called for help in finding a Polish word applicable to the fruit, one of Florida's biggest money crops.

Now the commission has seven words for it, sent in from all parts of the country: "Citryny," "citrony," "szadok," "pomela," "cytrynus," "wynograt."

Also a suggestion that "winogrono"—Polish for "grape" — and "owoc"—meaning fruit—be combined into "winowoce."

VANDENBERG URGES U. S. TO TAKE NO SIDES

Warns America Will Get Dictator If It Joins in Another World War.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 6 (AP).—A plea that the United States keep out of war, even to the extent of refusing to take "moral sides" in a foreign conflict, was made tonight by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan.

"Our participation in another World War would force our own Government into the straitjacket of an American dictatorship," he said in a speech before the annual dinner of the New Jersey Manufacturers' Association.

"Our own primary responsibility is to our own America. No emotional internationalism can be a valid substitute. . . . It is not our responsibility to police the earth. . . . We tried once before to 'make the world safe for democracy' and we failed, despite heroic sacrifice. . . . Our task is to make America safe for democracy and to make democracy safe for our own United States."

Declaring the country's greatest need was "real jobs at real wages" for all willing to work, he said:

"That is democracy's prime challenge to business and Government. But it is a challenge first to Government, because Government must first give business a fair chance. Business has not had a fair chance the last few years. It does not have a fair chance today. If given a fair chance . . . I assert my deep conviction that America could be definitely out of this depression in six victorious months."

WOMAN LEAPS TO DEATH AT DEPARTMENT STORE

Plunges From Eleventh Floor of Chicago Establishment, Depressed Over Family Deaths.

CHICAGO, May 6 (AP).—Mrs. Frances M. Howe, 37 years old, plunged to her death today from the eleventh floor of a State street department store.

Her father-in-law, Carl Howe, a vice-president of the Erie Railroad, identified the body. Members of the Howe family said Mrs. Howe came here from West Los Angeles, Cal., six weeks ago, and that she had been depressed because of several deaths in her family, including that of her husband four years ago.

FUNERAL OF FRANK P. WALSH

Services Held in Chapel on Family Estate Near Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 6 (AP).—Funeral services were held today for Frank P. Walsh, New York and Kansas City attorney, in a small frame church tucked away on a corner of the Walsh country estate. The widely known labor lawyer, who died Tuesday walking along a New York street, was buried in the presence of his family and friends, with the simplest funeral services of the Catholic Church.

Low mass was read by the Rev. J. P. Nichol, pastor of St. Catherine's Church, which was erected by Mrs. Walsh in honor of her patron saint. There was no eulogy and no flowers in accordance with Mr. Walsh's wish.

ENGINEERS' CLUB AUDITORIUM SUBSCRIPTIONS REACH $38,358

Union Electric and Anheuser-Busch Contributions to $75,000 Project Announced.

Subscriptions totaling $38,358 toward the erection of a $75,000 auditorium at the Engineers' Club, 4359 Lindell boulevard, were announced yesterday.

The Union Electric Co. of Missouri and subsidiary companies, through Louis H. Egan, president, contributed $2500, and Anheuser-Busch, Inc., gave $1000.

Construction is planned to be completed in 1943, when the organization will celebrate its diamond jubilee.

FRANCE EXPELS TWO ITALIAN CONSULAR AGENTS IN 3 DAYS

Representatives at Toulon and Sainte Maxime Ordered Out for Anti-French Activity.

TOULON, France, May 6 (AP).—The French Government today ordered the expulsion of the second Italian consular agent within the last three days for anti-French activity.

Jino D'Antrea, consular agent at Sainte Maxime, was ordered to follow Carlo Vatteroni, consulate attache here, who was ordered expelled Thursday.

'MIND OUR OWN BUSINESS' FOREIGN POLICY IS ADVISED

Suggestions to Senate by Ex-Senator Pepper and Speaker from Women's Investors' Group.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP).—Two witnesses told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today that America's foreign policy should be expressed in the phrase—"Mind our own business."

Former Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania urged, in addition, that Congress repeal all neutrality legislation, asserting this would assure the American people that no pending threat of war was likely to involve the United States.

Miss Cathrine Curtis, representing a national organization of women investors, suggested to the committee that Congress remain in session, taking long recesses from time to time, so that it could be on hand if any world developments demanded its attention.

These expressions came as members of Congress split into factions by the controversy over neutrality legislation, were talking in increasing numbers of the likelihood of the session running late into the summer or even into the fall. Even the most optimistic see little prospect of adjournment before July.

Pepper Attacks "Denunciation."

Pepper attacked what he called "the diplomacy of denunciation," adding that "the naming of names and the applying of invectives to individuals in any other state seems to me a worthless thing."

"I think we should mind our own business," he declared. "I've never known any mischief to arise from following that course."

He asserted it would be a "tragic thing" if the nations of Europe were to be plunged into war through a false assumption that the United States planned actively to support any one group of those nations.

Reviewing the German demands against Poland for Danzig and a road through the Polish corridor, Pepper said Poland could afford to be outspoken on rejecting those demands because of the pledges made by Great Britain and France.

"Is it wise for the United States by legislative enactment or otherwise, to extend encouragement to Great Britain and France, to assume these immeasurable liabilities and possibly be plunged into war to make good on them?" he asked.

"I see no sound reason," he continued, "for believing that Germany and Italy have the remotest idea of attacking Great Britain and France, unless Great Britain and France insist on mixing up in the middle Europe game."

Senator Gillette (Dem.), Iowa, asked the witness if he saw any harm in re-enactment of the munitions control board and finance control sections of the neutrality law if the other sections were repealed.

Pepper said he thought the best course to follow would be to assure the public that there was no emergency and no legislation was needed.

Pepper said he believed the American people were "laboring under the misapprehension that war is inevitable." This psychology might be counteracted by "wiping all neutrality legislation off the books" and considering it in a calmer period, he said.

"American Women Distressed."

Miss Curtis, granting that American women are distressed by the stories of oppression in other countries, contended, however, that "we should mind our own business and solve our own problems first. Women throughout the country are of the opinion that America's problems are of the greatest importance and that we should look behind the smoke screen of foreign affairs, deliberately raised, and bend our efforts toward focusing attention upon America's problems and their possible solution.

"American womanhood must not become Little Red Riding Hood for international war mongers. If there is any wolf threatening us today, it is not on some far distant shore; rather, it is the wolf back of unemployment—high taxes, increased debt and decreased income—right here on our doorstep."

At the center of the neutrality controversy is the proposal of Senator Pittman (Dem.), Nevada, chairman of the Foreign Relations' Committee, that would permit all belligerents to buy war suppl and other products and commodities here if they pay cash and furnish ships to carry their purchases away. It is an amendment to which the "neutrality bloc" is much opposed.

The present law prohibits the sale of an enumerated list of war supplies. Until last Monday night it also contained a provision that where purchases of items not on that list by warring nations were concerned the President could, at his discretion, invoke the cash and carry plan. This provision expired on May 1.

One group of Senators would have it re-enacted and made mandatory rather than discretionary. Generally speaking, if this were done, the group would be content to adjourn and go home. But not Hiram Johnson of California, veteran Republican

He made it plain that, regardless of what the nature of the neutrality legislation is, he wants Congress to stay in session and "prevent any provocative utterances; prevent, if we can, various acts which may be construed as warlike on the part of this Government."

"I think we ought to remain here because of the imminence of armed conflict," Johnson thundered in the Senate this week. "It is the Congress of the United States, with all its faults, with all its shortcomings; it is the Senate of the United States, with all its sins of commission and omission, that will keep us out of war in the dark days that are to come, and no other individual, no matter who he may be."

It quickly developed that Johnson was not alone in holding this view. The bloc led by Senator Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, of which Johnson is not a member, feels much the same way.

There are others. Their principal objective is to see that, before adjournment, legislation which they are satisfied would keep this country out of a foreign war, is enacted.

If it becomes plain that the legislation to be enacted is not to their liking, a filibuster is generally expected, in the interest of keeping the present law unchanged.

Senator Clark (Dem.), Missouri, made a direct threat of a filibuster in a broadcast last night.

INFANT GRUNDEN

PARENTS BAR OPERATION THAT WOULD LEAVE BABY BLIND

Pair at Pittsfield, Ill., Told it May Save Child's Life or May be Fatal.

PITTSFIELD, Ill., May 6 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Grunden, who live on a farm eight miles west of here, refused today to consent to an operation which might save the life of their seven-months-old son but leave him blind. Physicians told them the baby was afflicted with glioma, tumors which attack the eyes, and that an operation might prove fatal. In any event physicians said, the tumors eventually would reach the brain and cause death.

The baby weighed only two pounds and four ounces when born prematurely last November. Now it weighs 10 pounds.

8000 PHYSICIANS TO CONVENE NEXT WEEK IN ST. LOUIS

Specialized Groups to Hold Preliminary Sessions Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

More than 8000 physicians are expected to visit St. Louis next week for the five-day annual meeting of the American Medical Association, biggest organization of physicians in the world.

The meeting will be the association's ninetieth, its sixth in St. Louis. Since the last A.M.A. meeting here in 1922 the Municipal Auditorium has been built and hotel facilities greatly increased. The local committee, headed by Dr. Robert E. Schlueter, finds that local resources will be taxed, but points out that few cities in the United States can offer facilities sufficient even for consideration for this convention.

Before the end of this week the advance guard will begin to arrive. Specialized groups to hold preliminary meetings here include the American Therapeutic Society, Friday and Saturday; American Society of Clinical Pathologists, Friday to Sunday; American Academy of Tuberculosis Physicians, Saturday and Sunday; Association for the Study of Internal Secretions, Saturday and Sunday, and Associated Anesthetists of the United States and Canada, on the opening day of the big convention, a week from tomorrow.

Women Physicians to Meet.

The twenty-fourth annual convention of the American Medical Women's Association will begin Friday at Hotel Jefferson to continue through Sunday. The inaugural dinner for the induction into office of Dr. Nelle Noble of Des Moines, Ia., will be held Saturday night. Dr. Kate Karpeles of Washington is the retiring president. Fourteen St. Louis women physicians belong to the association.

American Medical Association headquarters will be in the Municipal Auditorium, with exhibits occupying two floors of the Convention Hall, general sessions in the Opera House and some of the section meetings in the assembly halls.

Customs Men and Seized Finery

ASSISTANT APPRAISER H. O. PFEIFFER and CUSTOMS EXAMINER JAMES F. QUINN, appraising the clothing confiscated in a raid on the apartment of the socially prominent Mrs. James C. Ayer in New York City. Customs agents say $30,000 worth of clothing and jewels found in the apartment were purchased abroad and smuggled into the United States.

Other general scientific sessions will be held at Hotel Jefferson and some of the section meetings will be held at Hotel De Soto, while the House of Delegates, the association's "congress" of 174 representatives elected by more than 110,000 members, will meet at Hotel Statler.

The House of Delegates, with such departures in medical economics as the Wagner health bill obvious matters for the agenda, will begin its sessions on the opening day.

General scientific meetings will begin on the opening afternoon in the Opera House. The entire program that day will be devoted to medical advances developed by St. Louis scientists. Topics include "St. Louis" type encephalitis, or "sleeping sickness," lung cancer, emergency treatment of heart failure, treatment of cleft palates, surgery of the sympathetic nervous system, and recent techniques in diagnosis.

One Public Meeting.

The only meeting open to the public will be held in the Opera House Tuesday evening, May 16, when the Governor, the Mayor, the presidents of the State and St. Louis societies will welcome the physicians, and Dr. Rock Sleyster of Wauwatosa, Wis., will be installed as president. A medal will be presented to his predecessor, Dr. Irving Abell of Louisville, Ky. A distinguished service medal, an annual award inaugurated last year, will be presented to a physician to be chosen in the initial session of the House of Delegates.

Of general interest, however, will be the third Symposium on Health Problems in Education, arranged by a joint committee of the A. M. A. and the National Education Association, to be held on the afternoon of May 16 in Assembly Room 1. Representatives of the local schools will take part with visiting authorities on education and public health.

The general scientific meetings will separate, after the program by St. Louis physicians, into divisions of medicine and surgery. Panel discussions will be held on pneumonia and on disease of biliary tract.

Specialized Sessions.

Following these general scientific meetings, designed to cover developments of broad professional interest, participating physicians will check off their particular concerns in meetings of the 16 specialized sections, May 17-19. The largest sections are those on the practice of medicine, to meet in the Opera House, and on general and abdominal surgery, to meet in the gold room at the Jefferson.

The new drugs, sulfanilamide and sulfapyridine, will be discussed in several section meetings, one of which will be devoted entirely to them. Two sections will hold a joint symposium on vitamin deficiency and nerve disease, and a series of papers in another session will touch on Vitamin K, which has been found to aid coagulation in some forms of hemorrhage.

Cancer will be a chief topic in at least six of the 16 sections. Sinusitis, appropriately to the place of meeting, will be discussed by several ear, nose and throat specialists in their sectional meetings. Little known industrial diseases will be described in a section on preventive and industrial medicine and public health.

Advances in knowledge and technique will be demonstrated also in more than 200 scientific exhibits on the main floor of the Convention Hall.

St. Louis Medical History.

St. Louis medical history from the day of Saugrain will be illustrated, in large part in original material from the times it covers, in an exhibit provided by St. Louis University Medical School Library. Historial material will be on display also at the Medical Society and Washington University School of Medicine.

Social activities, centering in the president's ball May 18 at the Jefferson, seem to afford as crowded a calendar as the scientific program, and for the delegates as well as their families. Hobbies will have their day in the second exhibition of the American Physicians' Art Association, May 14-20, at the City Art Museum in Forest Park, and the twenty-fifth annual tournament of the American Medical Golfing Asociation, May 15, at Norwood Hills Country Club.

INVESTIGATING DEATH OF MAN FOUND IN ROAD

Police Seek to Learn How Madison Worker Suffered Skull Fracture.

Police are investigating the circumstances under which Adolph Jackson, a steelworker, suffered the skull fracture which caused his death yesterday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Granite City.

He was found unconscious at 2:15 o'clock yesterday morning beside United States Highway No. 67 near Eagle Park, between Madison and East St. Louis. His injuries, aside from the skull fracture, were so limited that there was no definite indication that he had been struck by an automobile.

George Martz of Granite City, employed with Jackson at the Laclede Steel Co. plant in Madison, found him lying on the shoulder of the pavement and took him to the hospital where he died without regaining consciousness. Martz said Jackson had drawn about $60 in pay Friday, but he had less than $1 when found.

An investigation was undertaken by the Illinois Highway Police, Deputy Coroner Ferd Pieper and local authorities.

Jackson, 34 years old, lived with his wife and two daughters at 1821 Rhodes street, Madison.

TAXPAYER'S ADVOCATE BILL BEING DRAFTED

Adams, Colorado, Wants Permanent Bureau to Pass on Appropriations.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP). — A proposal that Congress set up a permanent investigative force to ascertain the need for requested departmental appropriations was made today by Senator Adams (Dem.), Colorado.

Adams, a member of the Appropriations Committee and a leader of the Senate economy bloc, said such an agency would cost about $100,000 annually "and would save $100,000,000 a year by showing us where to cut appropriations."

The investigative unit, Adams told reporters, should be modeled along the lines of the Budget Bureau, which is responsible to the President. He added it might consist of a directing officer, or taxpayers' advocate and 20 special investigators.

Under his plan, each of the latter would specialize in appropriations for particular departments or bureaus. When department officials asked for appropriations, the investigators would give their views as to whether the appropriations were needed. And when Congress was not in session, the congressional agents would keep an eye on administrative expenditures.

Adams said that he was formulating a bill to carry out his plan.

DRINK PRICE UP TO 6 CENTS, AT STANDS IN FOREST PARK

Increase Announced Although $2000 Profit for City Is Shown for Last Year.

Although soft drink and hot dog stands in Forest Park showed a profit of $2000 for the city last year, the price of drinks has been increased from 5 to 6 cents.

Customers' habit of strolling away with bottles necessitated employment of retriever crews, it was said by Sebastian Pedrolie, superintendent of concessions, who added that the State sales tax also caused complications. The increase in price, which was tried two years ago but abandoned because of public protest, was decided on Monday when Pedrolie conferred with Park Commissioner Joseph J. Mestres and Director of Public Welfare Joseph M. Darst.

Mestres said figures for last year showing a $2000 profit were not altogether accurate since the pay of retrieving crews was not calculated. He pointed out that concessions at the Zoo charge 7 cents and that the cost at the Municipal Theater is 10 cents and that "nobody says anything about it."

REPORT UPHOLDS VOTE BOARD AT KANSAS CITY

Commissioner for Court Urges Writ to Compel Payment of Clerks' Salaries.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 6.—A report recommending issuance of a writ of mandamus to compel fiscal officials of Kansas City and Jackson County to pay the salaries of employes of the Kansas City Board of Election Commissioners, at rates fixed by the board, was filed with the Missouri Supreme Court today by William C. Lucas of Kansas City, Special Commissioner of the court.

The commissioner's recommendations involve a preliminary victory for the election board in its row with the city and county governments, both dominated by Boss Tom Pendergast's Democratic organization, over salaries paid extra clerks employed by the board to set up a new voters registration system in Kansas City, late in 1937.

Test Case Pending.

The commissioner's findings will be considered by the Supreme Court when it hears arguments in a test case, now pending before the court.

The present Kansas City Board of Election Commissioners was appointed by Gov. Stark in October, 1937, without consulting the Pendergast organization, under a 1937 act providing permanent registration of voters in Kansas City. Pendergast, now under Federal indictments for income tax evasion, publicly voiced his disapproval of some of the appointments.

When the board began setting up the new system, in November, 1937, and purged the old voter registration rolls of thousands of "pads" and ghosts, both the city and county fiscal officers refused to pay 69 of the board's clerks more than $3.50 a day of the $6 a day salary fixed for them by the board. Under the law the city and county each were to pay one-half of the board's expenses. The salaries in dispute were for three months, ending in February, 1938.

Finding of Commissioner.

Commissioner Lucas, who conducted hearings at the direction of the Supreme Court, held the election board had full authority to employ the clerks involved and to fix their salaries at not more than $6 a day, that the city and county must honor the warrants, and that the refusal of the city and county treasurers to pay the salary warrants for the full amount was without legal authority.

When the dispute arose several prominent citizens of Kansas City raised a fund to permit payment of the board's clerks for part of the period in dispute, to enable the board to complete settinig up the registration machinery before the Kansas City municipal primary election in March, 1938.

Pete French Back From Trip Far in Guiana Jungle

Visit to Friend, Chief of Remote Village, Results in 3000 Feet of Movies and 100 Birds and Animals for Zoos.

Pete French of Webster Groves, who each year devotes more of his time to traveling and less to his job of selling insurance, returned yesterday from his seventh visit to Dutch Guiana, a trip on which he used airplanes and dugout canoes to penetrate to an infrequently-visited Negro village in the South American jungle.

On previous trips French had chaperoned a group of St. Louis boys. This time he went alone, flying straight to Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana. From there he took the steamer up the Marowyne River to the bauxite mine at Moengo, 135 miles inland.

That was as far as he had ever been on any previous trip. This time, accompanied by an interpreter and seven Negroes, he set out in two canoes up the Tapanahoni River for the village of Drie Tabiki, over which his friend, Motoja, is the chief.

French had met Motoja, a descendant of African slaves brought to South America, in Paramaribo two years ago. Motoja was friendly and he liked the trinkets French gave him. Now French was taking up Motoja's plea for a visit.

140 Miles in Eight Days.

It was a slow jaunt up the river to Drie Tabiki, French related at the Municipal Airport yesterday. It was about 140 miles, but it took eight days. French was saved from capsizing only by the adroit poling of the Negroes, who threaded their way surely through the river's rapids.

French says he is the seventh American ever to visit Drie Tabiki, which has about 800 inhabitants who live a happily polygamous life and do little but hunt and fish. Four of the previous visitors were men ostensibly looking for Paul Redfern, the American flyer lost 12 years ago on a flight over the jungle. The other two were from the American Museum of Natural History.

"Incidentally," French said, "I asked every oldtimer I saw in and around the village if he had ever seen or heard of Redfern, and they all said they hadn't. There was a little scandal some years ago about some guys in Paramaribo who made a living by sending up reports that Redfern had been seen alive. If he is, no one down there has ever seen him."

French gave his friend Motoja a shotgun and a safe deposit box with a combination lock on it. Motoja, who is in his early thirties, was entranced with the box. When French left, he wrote out the combination as best he could, but he wasn't sure that Motoja would understand it.

Given Farewell Dance.

In return, French was given free run of the village with his movie camera, making 3000 feet of color film. He photographed Motoja's subjects at work and play, but his favorite shot is one of Motoja's two wives shaking hands. He stayed at the village a week, and the night before he left they put on a dance for him.

"It was a knockout," French said. "Motoja gave me half a gallon of gin to distribute among the leaders of the dance. They started about 9:30 o'clock, with three men beating on drums. That was the only music. By about 1:30 one of the leaders got looped. He went about tearing down everything in sight. They had to carry him away, and that was the end of the dance."

Motoja had placed a grass hut at French's disposal, but French improved on that and slept under a heavy mosquito netting every night. He took 10 grains of quinine sulphate daily to ward off malaria.

The trip down the Tapanahoni back from Drie Tabiki to the mine at Moengo took only three days. At Moengo, and Paramaribo, French collected about 100 animals and birds, including 60 hummingbirds and some monkeys, snakes, sloths and rodents, which he will sell to American zoos, including the one here. He has supplied many of the hummingbirds in the excellent collection here.

French had hoped to take all of the animals with him on the plane back to America but Pan-American turned him down. He declined to say for what reason. So the hummingbirds, which can fly 300 miles an hour, were put on a slow boat for New Orleans, where French will pick them up in about two weeks.

ENGLAND'S KING AND QUEEN AT SEA, AMERICA-BOUND

of Australia was expected to make Quebec easily in the time allotted for the Atlantic crossing.

The royal party is scheduled to debark at Quebec May 15 and leave the next day for a transcontinental tour. The King and Queen are expected to enter the United States at Niagara Falls June 8 on their return from the Pacific Coast and remain four days, visiting Washington, New York and Hyde Park.

As the King, dressed in the blue-and-gold braid uniform of an Admiral of the fleet, and the Queen, wearing a blue ensemble, boarded the ship, the sovereign's personal flag was hoisted at the mainmast, the British Admiralty flag at the foremast and the white ensign of the Royal Navy at the stern.

They sailed promptly at 3 p. m. (8 a. m., St. Louis time), only 18 minutes after going aboard. They said their last farewells to the Princesses and other members of the royal family in the privacy of their suites. It was the first time Elizabeth and Margaret Rose ever were aboard a big liner, and soon they were seen pressing their noses against a cabin window to get a view of relatives and friends on the dock.

Father-Daughter Dinner.

GERMAN EX-OFFICIAL PREDICTS NAZIS' FALL

Former Prussian Minister of Justice Says Liberal Movement There Grows.

An underground movement now in progress in Germany eventually will cause a restoration of liberal government, Dr. Kurt Rosenfeld, former Minister of Justice of Prussia, predicted last night in an interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter. Now an attorney in New York, he was here to lecture last night at Sheldon Memorial under auspices of the American League for Peace and Democracy.

To prove that the underground movement does exist he exhibited pamphlets. Throwing several on his bed in his room at the Melbourne Hotel, he said: "They appear to be not harmful on the outside. They are titled so, 'Recipe for Chocolate Candy,' 'Breeding of Ducks,' and others, but you open on the inside and what do we have? A very nice statement of conditions in Germany.

"Thousands of such pamphlets are circulating today among the German people. And do not get the idea they are Jews. All of the anti-Nazi factions band themselves together and soon such unity must prevail against oppression."

Exiled From Germany.

A successful Berlin lawyer, who served with the German army throughout the World War, Dr. Rosenfeld was summarily ordered out of his country in 1933, soon after Hitler had come into power. He said that in retrospect he could view the reason for his deportation with some amusement, but at the time, he and his wife and daughter were dazed by the misfortune that had overtaken them.

"I had an encounter with Herr Hitler," he said. "I had taken many cases against the Nazis and one I took in which he was a witness. In court he said: 'I don't answer questions of a Jewish lawyer.' For that I asked the Judge to make Hitler pay 1000 marks fine. He did so. Herr Hitler remembered me very well. A few months later I was on my way to America and my client had been, what is it? Ah, yes, murdered, in prison."

Threatening Letter.

Shortly before Dr. Rosenfeld's arrival in St. Louis yesterday the American League for Peace and Democracy received a letter which read: "Death to Jewish liars." It was signed only with a swastika. The society arranged police protection for their speaker.

In a speech here in 1934 Dr. Rosenfeld was heckled by Nazi sympathizers. "I am used to that now," he said. "Fritz Kuhn came to my meeting in Los Angeles, to break it all up, but the police made him sit and listen for the whole hour. I am hoping it did him some good."

Nazis in U. S.

Hitler's secret armies in America are on the increase and should be stopped, he declared. "I have seen it happen there; it could here," he added.

A small man with close-cropped gray hair, moustache and goatee, Dr. Rosenfeld is 62 years old. He and his wife are happy in America. Their daughter is an attorney in Paris. All three, however, would like to return to their fatherland. "We will do so," he said. "I know I have said this already many times, but this time I believe it will be. It is better for us and for the world."

On his previous visit here in 1934, he predicted the Nazis were about to be removed from power in Germany. He predicted the same thing again last night, explaining that this time he was not depending on world opinion to crush the Nazis, as he had believed in the past. Now he feels the underground movement, as evidenced by the disguised pamphlets, will prove the undoing of the Hitlerites.

ST. LOUIS U. PLANS GENERAL COLLEGE ON NOVEL LINES

Two - Year Course Will Be Open to High School Graduates Not Intending to Take Degree.

Establishment of a General College in St. Louis University, to provide two-year instruction for high school graduates, along novel lines, and eventually to offer a full program of adult education was announced yesterday.

It will be of "terminal" character, that is, not intended to prepare for other courses; it will not be of vocational nature, but "strictly developmental and cultural," and it will not provide credits for collegiate degrees. The classes, to be held on the ground floor of the university's administration building, will open next Sept. 19.

This will be the fourth such college in the country, university officials said. The others are at the universities of Minnesota, Louisville and New Mexico.

The program has been prepared to meet the needs of the following types of students: Those with limited time for college training, because of financial or other reasons; those planning to enter vocational pursuits but who wish to improve themselves and increase their chances of advancement, annd those who desire additional knowledge before entering a degree conferring institution.

Progress to Be Criterion.

A major objective of the General College, it was stated, will be to help the student learn to use his abilities to best advantage. One unique feature will be the departure from departmentalization of studies. Progress of the student will not be measured by credits or subject-mastery alone, but rather by the growth and personal development of the individual.

"The General College," said a university bulletin, "is designed primarily to provide the personal development and breadth of training that will contribute most effectively to the maturing student's adjustment to his present environment and to that of adult living in modern society. The new courses, placing emphasis upon experience and marking a notable departure from the usual course content and procedure, have been carefully planned to meet two major objectives:

"The development of those personal habits, attitudes, principles and masteries essential to successful individual living, and the development of a background of acquaintance, understanding, attitudes and convictions concerning the complex physical and social environment of modern life most conducive to successful and co-operative social living in America."

Informal Instruction.

There will be informal relationship and personal attention of instructors and students. Individual conferences will be held, in addition to the provision of diagnostic tests, remedial work and counseling. Reports of student progress will differ from university grading systems, omitting letter or numeral grades and not dealing solely with subject-mastery. After completing at least one year in General College students may be admitted to the university's degree-conferring colleges under strict requirements.

Applicants for admission to the General College must have 15 units of high school credits, pass personal interviews and otherwise be acceptable. The number to be admitted this year will be limited. Applications must be made by Sept. 1. Approval of applications will rest with the Committee on Educational Policies, headed by the Rev. John J. Flanagan, S. J. Administration will be under the Rev. Wilfred M. Mallon, S. J., dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, and Father Flanagan. The instructional and counseling staff will be drawn from the regular university faculty.

The usual university tuition fee of $125 a semester will be charged, entitling the student to the usual privileges. Students of the General College will be eligible for most extracurricular activities, except intercollegiate athletics.

Courses to be offered in the first year are: The art of study and thinking, written and oral expression, the psycho-social environment, the physical environment, art of living, the source of life's principles, personality and mental health, writing and speech laboratory, the economic-social environment, the church in the world today, dynamic principles of living, and physical education.

Proposed second-year courses, not to be offered in 1939-40, are: Reading for leisure, American life and institutions, the physical environment, the creed and its dogmas, psychology of senses and mind, the citizen and his government, social problems and marriage, and ethical principles.

Milk Production Remains High.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP).—Production of milk and manufactured dairy products continued at peak levels during March, according to the Agricultural Department. Total production on April 1 was 4 per cent higher than a year ago and a new record for that date. Consumption of the principal manufactured dairy products in February was 12 per cent larger than in February a year ago, the bureau said.

NAZI AND ITALIAN MINISTERS CONFER ON JOINT ACTION

Von Ribbentrop and Ciano Apparently Broaden Scope of Conversations on 'Encirclement.'

MILAN, Italy, May 6 (AP).—The German and Italian Foreign Ministers met here today for discussions reliably reported to have included the entire scope of the diplomatic contest between the Rome-Berlin axis and the London-Paris front to line up the nations of Europe.

Although it had been believed that Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano would confer principally on Danzig, it appeared tonight the talks had expanded considerably.

Editor Virginio Gayda, frequent spokesman for the Italian Foreign Office, who came to Milan for the conference, telephoned his Rome newspaper, Il Giornale D'Italia, that the talks had three major objects:

1. A general survey of "the democracies' encirclement policy" and Germany's and Italy's "economic, diplomatic and military means" of opposition.

2. An exposition of European problems in general, with particular emphasis on those in Eastern Europe in which Germany and Italy are vitally interested.

3. Mutual defense of German and Italian interests inside and outside of Europe, which recently have been outlined by both Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

Three Talks Scheduled.

Further evidence that Ciano and Von Ribbentrop were surveying the entire situation rather than merely German-Polish relations was indicated in the fact that three talks were scheduled. At the first meeting Von Ribbentrop gave an exposition of the German viewpoint.

Tonight a bulletin of the Italian Foreign Office agency Informazion Diplomatica asserted that "nothing sensational" was expected to result from the talks, but that they should bring about a further strengthening of the axis.

"The general situation is fluid rather than perilous and awaits a crystallization which will permit the European peoples to resume their work tranquilly," the bulletin said. "Above all, it will be made clear once more that the axis though being ready to defend itself strenuously against any attempt at encirclement, is not a factor of war but an instrument of peace."

Warm Reception for Nazi.

A warm reception was given Von Ribbentrop upon his arrival here by a crowd estimated in the bulletin at "hundreds of thousands" of Milan residents. The bulletin said this refuted reports recently published abroad of anti-German demonstrations in Milan.

In many quarters it was thought the reason for transferring the conference here from Lake Como was to answer such reports. As Von Ribbentrop's train pulled into the station he was greeted by a battalion of uniformed Fascist youths and Fascist militia.

As for the Danzig situation, Gayda declared the dispute between Germany and Poland was not hopeless and that there still was opportunity for amicable negotiations. Polish Foreign Minister Joseph Beck in his reply to Chancellor Hitler yesterday did not close the door, Gayda said.

Mussolini to Inspect Troops on French Frontier.

ROME, May 6 (AP).—Premier Mussolini soon will visit the Piedmont region bordering on France and is expected to look over Italian troop and military establishments there. The region would be important in the event of Italian-French conflict, since it is within easy air distance of Marseille, Toulon and other cities.

The German Air Marshal, Herman Wilhelm Goering, now is at San Remo, on the coast, 10 miles from the French frontier, ostensibly on a vacation. It is, however, the third vacation he has taken there in the last two months and this has aroused considerable diplomatic speculation.

Col.-Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, Chief of Staff of the German army, returned to Italy by plane today after a visit to African Libya with the Italian war Under-Secretary, Gen. Alberto Pariani.

Virginio Gayda, the authoritative Fascist editor, in an article on May 1 indicated that Germany and Italy were working out a joint military plan to counter what he charged was an Anglo-French attempt at "encirclement."

Gen. von Brauchitsch will watch military maneuvers near Lake Bracciano tomorrow. It was announced 20 battalions of Fascist Militia were leaving for Italian East Africa to replace volunteers coming home.

UNITED M. E. CHURCH RIGID IN LIQUOR RULES

Rejects Proposal to Liberalize Them — Lay Activity Board Created.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 6 (AP). —An effort to relax the rules of the new united Methodist church affecting the use of alcohol by members was voted down overwhelmingly by the uniting conference today.

Delegates adopted a proposed section of church discipline providing that any member "who persists in using, buying or selling intoxicating liquors" after a private admonition by his pastor "shall be brought to trial" with expulsion the penalty on conviction.

The Rev. George Fowler of Chicago, asked the conference to make trials discretionary, but his proposal was voted down.

The liquor section of the new discipline also forbids any member to sign a petition for a liquor license, to act as attorney for anyone seeking a license, or to rent property for use in the sale or manufacture of liquors.

The section was adopted verbatim from the discipline of the Northern branch of the church. A minister said the South church discipline did not make a trial mandatory for a member "using" liquor, but that the difference was not discussed.

Rules against liquor were part of a long section providing for the expulsion of church members and ministers for "immorality or crime," disseminating doctrines "contrary to the articles of religion or the established standard of doctrine" and disobedience of church discipline. A five-year statute of limitation was provided. The South Church previously had no such statute.

The conference voted to establish a board of lay activity and to consider seting up a department of promotion and publicity. This board was a fixture of the Southern Church but had not existed in the Northern branch. Three amendments adopted will make possible for more lay representation in selection of members of the national board and its various subdivisions.

A commitee will be named to study the feasibility of co-ordinating all current church promotion and publicity work in the proposed new department.

Hurrying toward adjournment next Wednesday, delegates on Monday will select the nine members and nine alternate members of the new church's judicial council.

The convention did not reach today a committee report proposing liberalization of the church's rules on divorce.

JOHNSTOWN WINS 65TH KENTUCKY DERBY BY 6 LENGTHS

MACKS GET 3 HOME RUNS AMONG 11 HITS

By J. Roy Stockton

John (Footsy) Marcum had a little trouble with his home run and extra-base ball at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon and probably had a stiff neck last night after making a flock of quick turns to look at drives sailing toward the outfield from the bats of the Philadelphia Athletics.

John, however, was a very hard-working and effective pitcher between the fence balls and gave a Ladies' day crowd of 5656 persons a pleasant afternoon as he hurled the Browns to a 7-5 victory to give Fred Haney's men the odd game of the series of three.

Sam Chapman, the long-distance slugger discovered by Tyrus Raymond Cobb, hit two of Marcum's pitches into the left field seats, but fortunately the bases were empty each time. Joe Gantenbein, the second baseman who has a fondness for curve balls, hit the other four-bagger, with a comrade on base, so the circuit wallops accounted for four of the Philadelphia runs. A double by First Baseman Etten and a triple by Shortstop Newsome produced the other tally for the Mackmen.

A break in the defense of the Athletics helped the Browns to take an early lead that withstood the challenge of the long-distance hitting men of Connie Mack. Gantenbein, who had gone through previous games of the season without a misplay, kicked two grounders in succession in the second inning and three singles and two walks, mixed with the errors, helped to make it a five-run frame. Four of the tallies were unearned.

Chapman started the scoring with his first homer in the second inning, and after Clift had flied out in the home half, Kress singled to center, Berardino grounded out and Glenn then walked. Marcum helped his cause no end with a single to left-center, scoring Kress with the tying run and after Thompson walked, filling the bases, Gantenbein kicked grounders from Mazzera and McQuinn, each letting in a run and Myril Hoag followed with a single to left, sending two more over the plate.

Parmelee's single and Gantenbein's homer produced two for the Athletics in the third and in the St. Louis half Gryska, replacing Kress, walked, stole second and scored on Marcum's double to left-center.

Chapman hit his second homer in the fourth, a tremendous drive to the bleachers in left-center, and the Brownie lead was cut to a single run in the sixth when Etten doubled and Newsome tripled.

Joe Glenn doubled to start the home sixth, took third on Marcum's infield out and scored on Thompson's sacrifice fly.

It was Marcum's second victory of the season, putting him at the .500 mark.

While they made it a day of victory, the Browns failed to display their usual devastating attack, being held to eight safeties by Leroy Parmelee and Robert Joyce. It was the first game in the last eight in which the Browns failed to make 10 or more hits. The Athletics, on the other hand, made 11 safeties.

WRAY'S COLUMN

COL. MATT WINN ought to be a satisfied man this morning. The apple-cheeked septuagenarian who has built up the Kentucky Derby to a peak of popularity comparable to that of the Epsom Derby in England has just seen the sixty-fifth running of the event score a huge success.

MAT WINN.

Some 70,000 persons spent several millions of dollars in trekking from all parts of the country to view the running of the race. About one and one-half millions of dollars passed through the mutuel machines and the track's "take" of this, plus fabulous admission receipts due to holiday prices, must have given the Churchill Downs' management enough profit to satisfy the ordinary race track promotion for a year.

BUT, WHILE THE COLONEL may be justly proud of his turf foster child, circumstances over which he had no control contributed greatly to his success in making the Derby the outstanding event of the United States.

Strangely enough, it was the downfall of racing throughout the country that was responsible for the rise of the Kentucky Derby, and it happened in this wise:

Prior to 1906 the Churchill Downs feature was just another stake race, of little more than local interest and of little financial worth. Its top payment to the winner was under $5000, frequently under $3000, and this was true as late as 1912.

The American Derby, run at Washington Park, Chicago, had become the big event of the American turf.

It was the big stake of the country and in 1893 paid the owner of Boundless, the winner, more than $49,000. Turning into this century it was rewarding the winning owner with sums ranging from $19,000 to $27,000—big money in those days.

The feature completely overshadowed the Kentucky Derby.

Enter the Reform Wave.

THEN SOMETHING HAPPENED. A reform wave swept the country, wiping out race track betting everywhere. Beginning right here in Missouri, the spark spread throughout the country. When the conflagration subsided the only state which still permitted open race track betting was Kentucky. From California to New Hampshire, almost all race tracks were closed. In New York they operated but under bootleg betting conditions.

That was Kentucky's chance. At first the Kentucky Derby continued to drag along as formerly. But the public sincerely wanted racing and gradually focused its attention on the only surviving major race. It was not until 1914, however, that owners and patrons alike began to fall hard for the Derby.

Then the build-up was steady,

Yale Crew Breaks 10-Year Record

DERBY, Conn., May 6 (AP).—A brilliant Yale varsity crew today broke a 10-year record on the two-mile Housatonic River course to triumph over the University of Pennsylvania and Columbia in the seventeenth renewal of the Blackwell Cup regatta.

Yale led virtually from the start. The Eli's time of 10:11 3-5 bettered the previous record of 10:12½ made by Columbia here in 1929.

More than 20,000 persons roared their approval as the Eli's navy barely missed making a clean sweep in its 1939 debut.

Prior to the varsity brush, Yale's 150-pounders and Junior Varsity turned in victories, only to have Penn's crack freshman crew halt the Blue's triumphant procession by leading Yale's Cubs by three lengths. Columbia finished last in all of the tests.

Cooper Batted Hard And Cardinals Lose To Giants, 6 to 2

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Ray Blades elected to take a chance with Rookie Mort Cooper at the Polo Grounds this afternoon, but found it to be a losing gamble. The Giants slugged the ambitious youngster with vigor and enthusiasm and ran off with the series final by a 6 to 2 score.

Cooper pitched flashily in spots to strike out seven of the Giants, but between times the New Yorkers hit the ball lustily and had the game safely stowed away before the youngster turned over the pitching portfolio to Fiddler Bill McGee in the seventh.

Harry Danning was the particular barrier in the path of Cooper's progress. The Manhattan catcher collected four hits, including a homer, and drove home three of the runs. The only time the Cardinals got him out Stu Martin made a gloved-hand catch of a line drive.

Meanwhile the Cards reached Harry Gumbert's service for nine hits, but he spread them thinly over the full journey and got the full benefit of spectacular infield support. The victory was the third in succession for the right-hander and he hasn't yet been beaten.

Birds in Third Place.

The Cards' defeat effected no particular change in the pennant standings, since the Boston Bees also lost. The Cards are now in third place, a game behind the new pace-setters, the Cincinnati Reds. The Giants are locked in a three-way tie for fifth with the Cubs and Phillies.

Cooper's start was most inauspicious. Moore opened against him with a single and Jurges and Danning fired successive doubles. The net result was two runs. To the kid's credit it must be said he

Owners: Johnstown—Belair Stud; El Chico—William Ziegler Jr.; Heather Broom—H. P. Whitney; Viscounty—Valdin Farm; On Location—Milky Way Farms; Technician—Woolford Farm; Challedon—W. L. Brann; T. M. Dorsett—J. W. Brown.

Mutuels paid: Johnstown $3.20, $3.00, $2.80; Challedon, $3.60, $3.20; Heather Broom, $3.00.

Johnstown, a great colt. He acted very kindly going to the post, broke fast and displayed a great burst of speed, quickly raced El Chico into defeat. Johnstown took a clear lead going by the stand the first time and as they swung around clubhouse turn Johnstown was sent to the front. Turning into the back stretch he took a long lead and Stout just let him rate along. Johnstown drew away in run down back stretch around the upper turn he was galloping going smoothly. As they swung into stretch Johnstown drew away and saving ground won in a common gallop with Stout looking back at the field. Challedon: broke a bit slow but worked his way up gradually, slipped through around turn then was taken to the outside of Viscounty and closing with a good burst of speed stalled off the determined bid of Heather Broom.. The latter, slow and unable to get into his stride in the early part, began to make up ground around turn came through on the inside entering stretch and finished fast. Viscounty, away slowly, but made up ground with a rush. In the run down the back stretch he began to tire in the final furlong and stopped badly at end. Technician got away fairly well but dropped back around turn. He moved up some in the last half mile but never threatened at any time. El Chico got away flying, attempted to follow the pace but only for a quarter mile. He dropped gradually and was a thoroughly beaten horse at the end. T. M. Dorsett had plenty of early speed but stopped to a walk at the end. On Location was outclassed.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6 (AP).—In one of the most impressive performances in the history of Churchill Downs, Johnstown, great son of Jamestown, completely outclassed his field today as he raced to victory by six lengths in the sixty-fifth running of the Kentucky Derby before a bellowing crowd of 70,000.

An odds-on favorite at the start, Johnstown fully lived up to the lavish praise heaped upon him in recent days as he shot from the chute in front and never through the mile and a quarter grind saw the shadow of one of the seven three-year-olds chasing him.

Gradually his pursurers fell back and left the great bay colt out there majestically alone as he boiled across the finish line.

Never was a Derby more a foregone conclusion from start to finish than William Woodward's splendid creature made it today. Never was it necessary for Jockey Jimmy Stout to call upon Johnstown's reserve, even during the early stages when the diminutive El Chico was making passes at the champion. Stout might have been sitting easy in his favorite rocking chair as they came bobbing home, a one-horse procession.

Challedon Second.

W. L. Brann's Challedon won second place by a length over Heather Broom after a furious finish that brought him up from third entering the stretch. Viscounty took fourth money, a fighting head back of Heather Broom, the surprise of the race trained by the old favorite, Earl Sande.

Technician, which entered the classic an equal second-favorite with Challedon, never figured in the running and wound up a tired fifth, sig lengths back of Viscounty. El Chico was sixth, 10 lengths further back and T. M. Dorsett seventh, a full 20 lengths ahead of On Location. They were strung out all over the place. All things considered, it wasn't much of a horse race.

Johnstown, the shortest priced favorite since Agile won at 1 to 3 back in 1905, paid only $3.20 on a winning $2 mutuel ticket today. He returned $3.00 to place and $2.80 for show. Challedon paid his backers $3.60 for running second and $3.20 for show. Heather Broom paid $3.00 for show.

The one-sided victory enriched Johnstown's owner, William Woodward, a cool $46,350, making the third time he has pocketed the big prize. His other Derby winners were Gallant Fox and Omaha. He was beaming in active competition with a hot sun as he stood in the winner's circle with Johnstown after the race and received the Derby cup. Johnstown, a thoroughbred to the finish, didn't even attempt to nibble at the ring of roses hung on his handsome neck.

Because he was never pushed, Johnstown required two minutes, three and two-fifth seconds to complete his grand tour, which was nothing to compare with the Derby record of 2:01 4-5, set by Twenty Grand in 1931. Nevertheless, those who watched the big horse mow his opponents down with such ease felt certain he could have clipped at least another second from his time had he been pushed. Twenty Grand's famous victory was scored by only four lengths.

El Chico Cracks After Chasing Johnstown for First Half Mile

None of Woodward's rival owners had any reason to bewail their luck. They simply came up with a bunch of average runners on the year when there was a super-horse at large. They never had the briefest chance to get excited from beginning to end. After Johnstown lengthened out at the half-mile and really began to run it was only a question of what his winning margin would be.

El Chico made his run, like admirers of the two-year-old champion expected him to do. When they swept past the grand stand the first time he was hanging grimly on, and he fought gamely clear around the turn. But he might as well have been chasing a locomotive, so surely did Johnstown pull away. The noble effort cracked El Chico and he faded quickly after the half-mile.

By hanging back in the early running and not wearing themselves out in a fruitless contest with Johnstown, Challedon, Heather Broom and Viscounty were able to come on in the stretch and return their owners the consolation prizes of $6000, $3000 and $1000 respectively. The ones that made an early try at the champion were out of luck thereafter.

Up to today, the skeptics had doubted that Johnstown would go the long Derby route under pressure. His daddy, Jamestown, was a great sprinter, but that let him out. He didn't like to run a long time. Johnstown picked up plenty of staying qualities from his mother's side of the family. She was La France, whose father was Sir Galahad III, sire of a noted distance strain.

When he loped under the wire today, Johnstown looked like he could have burned up another mile, at least. His rider, Stout, said he still was running as smoothly as in the first quarter.

Stout said his only moment of uneasiness came when they were rounding the first turn, clinging to the rail. Some of the crowd, which had poured into the infield, reached out over the railing as though to give Johnstown a playful pat as he passed, and it nearly scared Stout out of his boots. He instantly jerked the horse further out on the track and thereafter kept him well away from the celebrants.

When El Chico cracked at the half mile, it was Viscounty that took up the running, such as it was. At three quarters he was in second place, three lengths behind Johnstown and a length ahead of Challedon.

Viscounty Nipped.

Rounding into the straightaway, a quarter mile from home, Johnstown had increased his lead to five lengths, with Viscounty still second by a head over Challedon, and Heather Broom five lengths further back. Heather Broom came up fast in the final furlong and he and Viscounty put on about the only race there was as they fought it out nose-to-nose in the last 20 yards. Viscounty just was nipped.

first game of a series of three. Elden Auker is likely to be Joe Cronin's hurler. The Sox will be trying for their eighth straight victory.

In the final with the Athletics, Manager Haney benched Don Heffner for indifferent play and sent Johnny Berardino back to second base.

Dario Lodigiani, who was hit on the head by a pitched ball in Friday's game, stayed in his hotel room yesterday, but departed for Detroit with the Athletics last night.

Benny Goodman, band leader, witnessed the game from a box on the third base line. He took a bow after being introduced over the public address system.

The crowd included 2008 cash customers, 1411 women and 2237 boys and girls.

Ralph Kress suffered a finger injury trying to catch Parmelee's line drive in the third and Sig Gryska batted for him in the home half and then went to short.

Sam Chapman, after hitting a home run in the second and another in the fourth, sent a long fly to Hoag in the sixth and one to Mazzera in the eighth.

University City Wins Own Invitational Track Meet

Dethroning last year's champion Webster Groves team, University City High School won its own invitational track and field meet yesterday afternoon, capturing both the senior and junior divisions by decisive margins.

The Indians counted 60 points in the senior section to 32 for nearest rival, Clayton, and scored 50 in the junior division to 35½ for nearest competitor Normandy.

In the total count University City's 110 points almost doubled Normandy's score of 55½ points.

Normandy, however, was awarded permanent possession of the guest trophy as the meet rules provide that University City may not receive the trophy.

Fifteen new records were set in the second annual meet. Two were established for the first time and one was tied. In all, there were 27 events.

Henry Schlesinger, University City senior, was the individual star, registering firsts in the 120-yard high hurdles, 200-yard low hurdles and the broad jump and participating in the victory of the Indian relay team for a total of 16¼ points.

Jack Meletio, teammate of Schlesinger, after winning the senior pole vault at 11 feet 3 inches, went on to record the highest mark ever set by a high school athlete in the metropolitan area, clearing the bar at 12 feet even. The State mark is 12 feet 3¾ inches.

and Col. Winn worked hard to put over the race which gained annually in popularity.

In 1913 the winner's bit passed $5000. In 1917 it had reached $17,000. By 1920 the race was worth $20,000, and from that time it went on up in bounds, reaching its peak payoff to the winner of $55,000 in 1928, when Reigh Count won.

SINCE 1922 IT regularly has paid more than $50,000 to the winner, and it was about that time that racing elsewhere began to make a serious bid for the comeback it has now, more than 15 years later, achieved nationally.

However, even though huge purses and famous racers today compete under legalized betting conditions in far larger and more metropolitan centers than Louisville, the Derby proved yesterday that it still is No. 1 turf event of the United States, the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap the onetime $100,000 Belmont Futurity notwithstanding.

Built up through the adversity of the remainder of the country, the Kentucky Derby has become a permanent institution—one for which Mr. Winn is entitled to take a bow.

He's a Bearcat.

NEXT WE'LL BE READING about Max Baer and his coming bid to regain a place in the pugilistic sun. When he faces the comparative newcomer Lou Nova June 1, it will open the major outdoor fight season—a season of some interest, it may be noted.

Baer is now past 30, and is still apparently far from that serious state of mind supposed to be needed for highest efficiency. Max is of playful nature and will have his wise crack and joke no matter what's at stake.

But with it all there are not wanting evidences of real stuff in this fellow. Undoubtedly he's getting himself into condition and when in shape don't kid yourself that Max can't take it.

The records show that Max CAN take it and has—even in 20 round fights. He has fought the best in the world; and he knows what it means to get up there in the ring with a hitter.

He has lived more wisely in recent years and the only fault to be found with his chance of whipping Nova is his lack of recent ring experience.

THAT'S ALWAYS a handicap. Ask Jack Dempsey, whose first layoff almost cost him his title when a light heavyweight (Tom Gibbons) lasted 15 rounds with him and a big build-up mark (Louis Angel Firpo) all but knocked him out. After his second layoff, Tunney beat Jack out of his title.

The rust of idleness may spell the undoing of Baer. We hope not because Max appears just about the best timber in sight for a title bout with Louis; and that goes for Tony Galento as well. Joe Louis himself believes Baer will make more trouble for him than any of the others.

Nova doesn't know enough and can't hit hard enough to bother Louis. Baer can, we believe.

Tunney on Galento.

GENE TUNNEY, writing in an Eastern paper, thinks Louis ought to bounce Galento out of the picture without much trouble; in fighting equipment he thinks there's no comparison.

Then Gene drags in the usual "But—"

He says, in substance, that Galento really has a punch, and therefore must be given an outside chance to land it. He believes that Louis' reactions to a sock on the jaw are not the best feature of his ring makeup and that Joe might be so disturbed by one of Galento's mighty lefts that he could not recover in time to save himself from a kayo.

It's a fanciful concept—that of this barrel-built bartender, who knows little of boxing and lots about fouling, standing over a prostrate Louis while the referee raises his glove as "the winnah!"

Galento has about as much chance to whip Louis as a pug dog has to whip a pit-bull terrier.

And if this is going out on a limb, it's at least a sound one.

BEARS BEATEN BY ONE POINT IN TRACK MEET

The Washington University track team was nosed out by the Cape Girardeau Teachers, 63 to 62, yesterday afternoon at Francis Field in a triangular meet in which St. Louis University finished last with 10 points.

Four meet records were broken. Reyburn Gordon, Washington's star miler, took a fraction more than four seconds off his own mark for his favorite distance. He ran the race in four minutes 24.2 seconds. Last year he did it in 4:28.6 for a record at that time.

Clinton Allison of Cape Girardeau set a new mark of 49.8 seconds in winning the 440-yard dash. The old record was 50.8 seconds, set in 1935 by Kirn of Cape Girardeau.

The Washington mile relay team won the last event on the program but The Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association champion Teachers had a large enough lead to win the meet. The Bears set a new record in the relay of three minutes 24.9 seconds. The old record was set last year by Cape in three minutes 25.1 seconds.

St. Louis U. scored but one first place—Jerry Branson's victory in the 120-yard high hurdles.

100-YARD DASH—Won by Davis, Washington; Lauer, Cape, second; Schad, Cape, third. Time—9.9.

440-YARD DASH—Won by Allison, Cape; Schannin, Washington, second; Leyhe, Washington, third. Time—49.8 (new meet record; old record 50.8, Kirn, Cape, 1935).

MILE RUN—Won by Gordon, Washington; Luehge, Washington, second; Wright, Washington, third. Time 4:24.2. (New meet record; old record by Gordon, 4:28.6, 1938.)

HIGH JUMP—Fulkey and Wright, Cape Girardeau, tied for first; Reichart, Washington, third. Height—5 feet 7 inches.

SHOTPUT—Won by Richmond, Cape Girardeau; Turner, Cape, second; Binkley, Cape Girardeau, third. Distance—46 feet ⅛ inch.

220-YARD DASH—Won by Davis, Washington; Schaum, Washington, second; Lauer, Cape, third. Time—22.2.

MILE RELAY—Won by Washington (Gutmann, Brooks, Leghe, Schaum); Cape Girardeau, second; St. Louis U., third. Time—3m. 24.9s. (new meet record; old record 3:25.1, Cape, 1938).

220-YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by Norman (Cape); Boles (Washington), second; Branson (St. Louis), third. Time—25.7s.

COOPER BATTED HARD AND CARDINALS LOSE

stood up bravely under the pounding and escaped from further trouble momentarily by breezing third strikes past Mel Ott, Bob Seeds and Frank Demaree. That was good pitching.

Unhappily it didn't continue for long. Doubles by Bonura and Seeds cost him a run in the third, and Danning hit his homer in the fifth. The Cardinals argued that the previous pitch should have been a third strike, but Umpire "Beans" Reardon disagreed. Anyway, the home run counted, and a pass to Bonura and singles by Demaree and Whitehead produced another run plateward.

The homer was a vital blow, because the Cards had scored their two runs in the fourth.

Terry Moore Poles Triple.

Johnny Mize's double and a triple by Terry Moore scored the first, and Moore scored when Ott threw Gutteridge's grounder away. The speedy Gutteridge got all the way to third on this overthrow, but that was as far as the tying run progressed. In fact, an unusual double play terminated the inning abruptly a moment later. Gutteridge was run down on Owen's rap to Ott, and Melvin's quick throw to Whitehead doubled the overly ambitious Mickey at second base.

A pass to Moore, Jurges' sacrifice and Danning's fourth hit nicked Fiddler McGee for the final run in the eighth.

Redbird Notes.

Branch Rickey and Bill Terry conferred last night relative to a possible trade but found they could only agree on the weather. Rickey says he wants an infielder and Terry has none to give him. There's a tip Branch is going to get Johnny Hudson or Lyn Lary from the Dodgers.

The Giants made three double plays, running their total to seven in two days. Gumbert's "down-ball" pitching lent itself to that sort of stuff.

Lyn King lost his status as a 1.000 hitter. When he swung for Mort Cooper in the seventh he bounced to Ott. That was the first time he'd been thrown out this year. In four previous trials he hit a double, two singles and drew a pass.

The Cards took time out in the sixth when they thought Joe Medwick had hurt himself sliding into second. But it seems he'd only jarred himself and he was able to remain in the game.

When Gumbert got into trouble in the eighth, Carl Hubbell went out to the bull pen to warm up, the first time he's been off the bench this year. The warm weather has brought his flipper around, and he's likely to start any day now.

Sport SALAD

by L. Davis

Sorry, Mr. Mack.

THERE was a young fellow
When Connie Mack's A's
He became a White Elephant
tamer,
And gained quite a bit of renown.

He gave them a nine to three beating—
The first of the Brownies' home stand,
And when he wound up they were eating
Their peanuts right out of his

More power to little Jack Kramer,
When his pitching begins to decline
The famous White Elephant tamer
With Barnum & Bailey can sign.

And the next day the Browns trotted out Trotter, while Connie Mack pitched Potter just to show that the rhyming dictionary was an open book to him.

The man on the boundary line says the trouble with those German pacts is that they are all pact with dynamite.

LonnieWarneke and Bill Lee both got theirn Thursday afternoon by the Giants and Dodgers, respectively. Those guys must be getting the world's fair mixed up with the world series.

However, at the present writing it looks as though it were up to the Yankees to fill Grover Whalen's hand next October.

Eddie Rommel, who has been umping in our midst, used to be one of Connie Mack's mainstays in the box. Consequently when he starts discussing the ball and strike situation with a batter he ought to have a fairly good working knowledge of the subject in hand.

"Fife Electrics Win A. B. C. Team Title."

You're darn tootin'.

We understand that there is no truth in the rumor that Uncle Tom had adopted as his theme song "Get out of town before it's too late."

In Clover.

Those hotel men in Louisville apparently believe in making hay while the blue grass shines.

THE Derby comes but once a
And with it comes the profiteer.
And so when fish it starts to rain
You'll find him ready with the seine.

Coming Up.

Connie Mack says the Browns and Athletics are bound to go up in the baseball world. That's the only way they can go.

HE knows not the hour, the day or the year,
But in giving a word to the wise,
To Connie the sage it is perfectly clear
That the A's and the Browns will arise.

Thanks for those kind words, Mr. Mack. We will rest our soul in peace and put our trust in the law of averages.

Spectators Tried to Grab Johnstown's Reins, Stout Says

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6 (AP).—Spectators along the rail at the first turn tried to grab the reins of Johnstown, Jockey Jimmy Stout revealed today after he had ridden the handsome William Woodward-owned colt to one of the most one-sided triumphs in Kentucky Derby history.

"They tried to grab the reins just as we moved past El Chico," Stout said at the stable after the race. "If they had taken hold of them, no telling what might have happened to me or the horse. I can't understand why they would try to do that.

"After that I moved out about 15 feet from the rail and held on. Johnstown did the rest. I did not send him to the front. He wanted to go up as we passed the clubhouse the first time, so I just let him go." The incident recalled the 1936 Derby when a spectator grabbed Jockey Charlie Kurtsinger's bat at the turn into the home stretch.

If spectators had caused Johnstown, the heavy favorite, to bolt, it would have provided a strange twist to the classic. As it was, the Eastern colt won in a rout.

"Well, I finally got there," Stout commented immediately after the race.

Beaming, the blond, little Lakewood (N. J.) jockey expressed surprise at the handy manner in which the colt scored, but he seemed happier because he finally had entered the select circle of Derby-winning pilots after three failures.

"Sure, I'm happy," he said in response to a question.

"No, I'm not going to celebrate tonight, I'm going to be on the train, heading for New York and the Preakness next Saturday.

"No I won't say Johnstown is better than Omaha and Gallant Fox (previous Woodward Derby champions), but he is a neat horse."

Stout, 24, who has been a jockey since 1930, said he thought Johnstown would win, but he had "no idea he would win as easy as he did, by the way, how much of a margin was it?" he asked.

Johnstown won by six lengths.

Stout revealed his instructions from trainer "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, were to "rate" him and let the son of Jamestown run his own race if it were posible. "And he did. I was just up there," Stout related.

horse he was supposed to be. He broke sixth, moved up a notch at the quarter mile, but fell back to seventh at the half and never thereafter looked like mixing with the leaders. T. M. Dorsett clung to third place up to the half mile, then dropped right back to keep the struggling On Location company at the tail of the parade. It was the smallest field since eight ran in 1918, but it managed to get wildly scattered.

Johnstown's next outing will be in the Preakness next Saturday at Pimlico and all of those who saw him stretch his long legs today will tell you he'll take that one, too, if he's able to get out of his stall. It's difficult to imagine any other result, at that. He looks like one of the great horses.

He is what they like to call a "wild runner." He is such a huge horse you sort of expect him to move awkwardly and perhaps be a trifle clumsy at the starting chute. But he fools you. He jumped away today practically on even terms with the lightning little Chico, and that is something. And as he went away from there, throwing his tremendous power into every stride, he looked like he was taking up twice as much track as any other runner. But he moved away from the others steadily, inexorably, and was gone.

PRINCE ARGO SETS PACE BUT FINISHES THIRD

Crowd of 12,000 at Opening Program; Bar Play Takes Fifth Event and Pays $41.60 for $2.

By Dent McSkimming

A horse that has raced all winter can't always be counted upon to beat one that has been brought to the race with only a few battles under his belt, but the rule held good at Fairmount Park yesterday when Charley Deahl's Fast Move defeated Prince Argo and eight others in the Inaugural Handicap, the big race of the opening day of the meeting.

The crowd of 12,000 made Prince Argo and his Hernandez stablemate, Roidef, favorite at 13-10, and if the Prince had been tightened up with some good races, he probably would have won it, but at the finish it was Fast Move by two and one-half lengths. The Prince hadn't started a race since last October here at Fairmount.

Prince Argo set all the pace to the stretch turn, hung on to give Fast Move a battle, then weakened in the last 70 yards as Professor Paul, another horse that has been racing, slipped through to finish second.

The opening program was a formal one and the finishes close enough to keep the crowd shouting. The weather was clear and warm and the track fast.

Grohs Rides the First Winner.

Those fans who like to string along with a smart young rider took a second look at Apprentice Otto Grohs after he had forced a victory out of Laurel Wreath in the opening race of the program. When Alma Mae caught and passed Radio Charm an eighth of a mile from the finish it looked like a victory for the mare, but steadily on the outside came Laurel Wreath. He gained ground at every stride, caught Alma Mae in the last yard and won by a short whisker. It was one of those finishes that used to put the judges in a bad spot in the days before the use of the official camera. Grohs was responsible for Laurel Wreath's victory.

It was a veteran rider who took the second race. Charley Hanauer, on Red Magic, had only Bedight to beat and he did that by stealing the lead and holding it in a whipping finish. Heidi was third, but the others were not close.

Star Bess was an impressive winner of the third, running between and around horses to take command at the stretch turn. She had two lengths to spare at the finish with something in reserve. She looked good enough to beat a better class of horses. The daily double on Red Magic and Star Bess paid $93.80 for $2.

Pegging Away not only beat the 6-5 favorite Nigrette in winning the fourth race but apparently broke the favorite's spirit, for she finished last in the field of nine. They fought a great head-and-head battle for a quarter mile down the back stretch and then Nigrette quit cold. Of the others, Sky Wind showed most promise, finishing a strong second.

Lake's Second Victory.

Jockey Leland Lake's second victory was scored with Bar Play, from the stable of George Keeton, in the fifth. The fact that Bar Play rarely runs a sprint race, in fact shows a preference for the mile and a sixteenth distance, resulted in a long price against him and the payoff was $41.60 for $2. Lake, the rider, Keeton, owner of Bar Play, and John T. Withers III, owner of Star Bess, which Lake rode to victory in the third race, are all from Texas. Withers is the son of a wealthy oil operator.

Fairmount Notes.

Entries for Tuesday's races will be released each Monday morning, it was announced by Racing Secretary Dick Leigh. There will be no Monday racing (except on May 29) throughout the meeting, which goes through June 10.

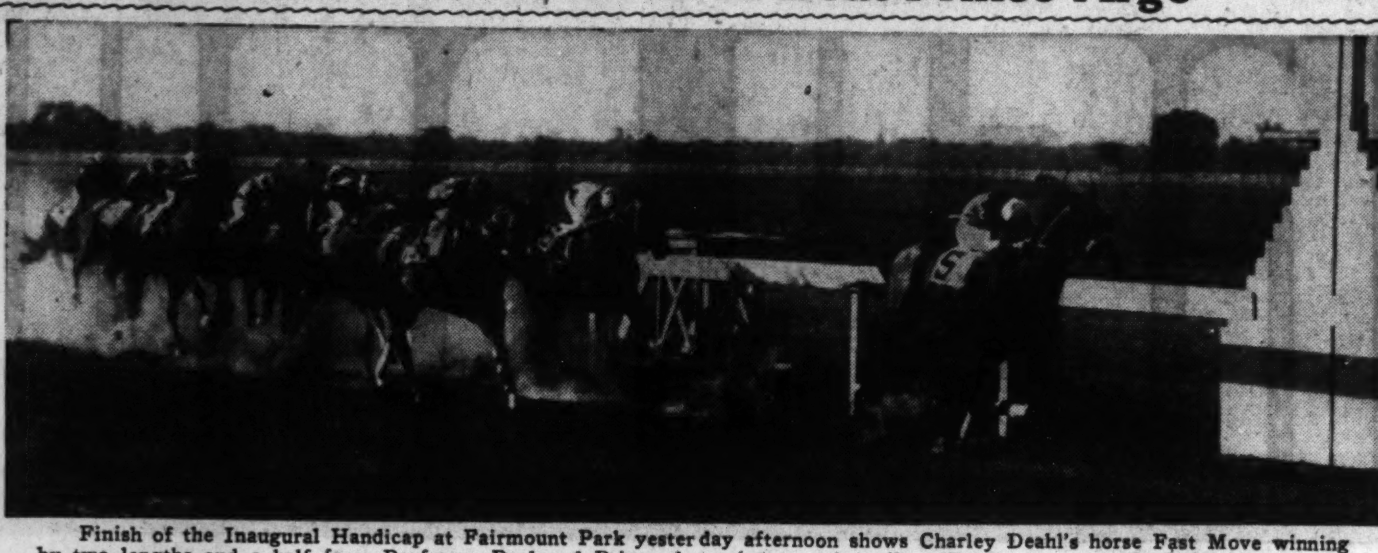
It was 15 years ago that Fairmount Park opened, breaking a St. Louis race drought of 20 years' standing. The comparatively early meeting this spring was made possible by the fact that the management (R. S. Eddy, D. C. Burnett, etc.) decided not to open their Aurora track near Chicago. In the past, the Fairmount meeting followed Aurora.

There are 45 jockeys on the grounds, according to a list compiled by Eddie Griffin, custodian of the jockeys' quarters. Half are apprentice riders.

The quinella, consisting of Blind Hope and Fob, which ran first and second in the eighth race, paid $46 for $2.

C. A. Boksch, of 4533 Forest Park boulevard, won the patron's handicapping contest based upon program selections for seven races when he picked six winners and one second. His only miss came in the fifth race in which his selection, Lady Thirteen, was beaten a neck by Bar Play. He received the prize award of $50.

It Takes a Fast Move to Beat Prince Argo



Finish of the Inaugural Handicap at Fairmount Park yesterday afternoon shows Charley Deahl's horse Fast Move winning by two lengths and a half from Professor Paul and Prince Argo (next to the rail). Nine horses ran. The winner's time for the six furlongs was 1:12 3-5.

THANKSGIVING WINS JAMAICA FEATURE RACE

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP).—Mrs. Parker Corning's Thanksgiving, fresh from an easy triumph in the Philadelphia Handicap at Havre De Grace, continued in his winning wayes today with victory in the thirty-second Excelsior Handicap before a crowd of 16,000 at Jamaica.

Under one of "Sonny" Workman's powerful rides, the Bud Lerner four-year-old wore down William Woodward's Fighting Fox, 11 to 5 choice, in the final strides to triumph by a head, T. J. Healey's Tatterdemalion was third, four lengths behind and six more before Maxwell Howard's The Chief. Strung out behind the latter were Grey Gold, Mythical King and Unselfish.

Thanksgiving, carrying equal weight of 120 pounds with the Fox, covered the mile and sixteenth in 1:44 1-5 over a fast track to earn the purse of $6950 and pay his backers 7 to 2.

FOUR SPEEDWAY DRIVERS ON MIDGET AUTO CARD

Four drivers who will compete in the 500-mile Decoration day Indianapolis Speedway Classic—Harry MacQuinn, Jimmy Snyder, Tony Willman and Duke Nalon, are among the 10 drivers in the opening midget auto racing program Tuesday night at Walsh Stadium.

MacQuinn will defend the championship he gained here last summer when he won 12 of 17 starts.

St. Louisans who own midget racing cars and who turn in the fastest times will be added to the entry list.

Johnstown's Next Objective Is the Preakness Saturday

BARN "Z," CHURCHILL DOWNS, Ky., May 6 (AP).—"Lady," said Jockey Jimmy Stout, "get away from that hoss' head."

The little square-shouldered fellow and the big, good-looking bay colt had just walked back to the stables, beyond the back stretch at the Downs, after nonchalantly winning the Kentucky Derby in a shoo-in.

But even before they could get back a line of admiring spectators was already on hand waiting and one too-enterprising young woman had just reached out a hand to pet the tall Derby winner on the nose as he walked around the barn in the "cooling-out process."

"Oh, I just wanted to pet him," the young woman wheedled in reply to Stout.

"Yeah," was the remark, "and if you do he's liable to pet you—but good. He's just won a race and he's to be quieted down now."

The rest of the long stable didn't have to be quieted, however. For Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, who had just saddled his third Derby winner, it was more or less of an old story. Still it's the biggest thrill in the game, even to the grey little master mind.

"Yes," said Sunny Jim, "he's a real nice race hoss. He goes in the Preakness next week, maybe with Gilded Knight as an entry."

"Mr. Fitz" and Assistant Trainer Tom Driscoll and Stout weren't too loud in their joy. Maybe it was because Challedon and T. M. Dorsett, who chased Johnstown home, were next-stall neighbors in the same barn. But at that you couldn't blame them for their glee. The Derby is no claiming race.

Fitzsimmons always thought Johnstown would win the Derby, but the way he did it surprised him.

"You don't win Derbies by six lengths every day in the year," he pointed out. "But I guess I overestimated the field. We always were afraid that Challedon might surprise the folks, but we overlooked the fact that Johnstown would, too."

Some of the boys wanted to sit and talk some more, but Sunny Jim begged their pardon.

"I have to hurry and pack now," he said. "I'm leaving for New York on the 8:45 train." (The clock showed it was then only 5:45.)

Johnstown won't go back until tomorrow. Driscoll will take charge of him on the train, as he did on the trail down from Manhattan.

K. TAYLOR is exceedingly painstaking about their formula and the age of their whiskey. Foremost in importance is that K. Taylor's Straight Kentucky Bourbons are ALL made of 40% SMALL GRAIN, a process which costs K. Taylor a loss of 3000 pints of whiskey with every 1000 bushels of grain used. This makes a richer bodied whiskey. The best judges say so.

Unless Legislature Acts, 111,000 On Relief in State May Get Only $1.33 a Month Until End of 1940

Drastic Slash in Income Makes Situation Critical—Experiences of a Typical Family in Distress.

By ERNEST C. HAVEMANN
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

THE serious plight of persons in St. Louis and Missouri dependent on relief for their existence has become a major problem for public officials because of the prospect of sharply reduced appropriations by the Legislature.

Recently the St. Louis Social Security Commission reported the relief situation here was "not only acute, but becoming more critical every day." Strong statements of this type have lost some of their sting because the problem has recurred so frequently in the last 10 years. Unfortunately the situation has lost none of its intensity although the words describing it have lost their power to startle.

Members of the commission feel the current crisis is the most serious of all. What their statement actually means, translated into cold mathematical terms, is that there is a prospect that each of the some 111,000 persons now dependent on direct relief in Missouri may have to try to live on an average of $1.33 a month for the rest of this year and all of next.

Action by the House.

This prospect has been brought about by the action of the House in setting the appropriation for direct relief in 1939 and 1940 at only two-fifths of the amount asked for by the State Social Security Commission as the minimum possible amount on which Missouri's relief population could live. At the same time the House cut the appropriation for aid to dependent children to about half the amount recommended by the commission, leaving only the politically valuable old-age assistance appropriation at a level approximating the estimated requirements.

There is a possibility that the figures will be increased when the appropriation bill is considered by the Senate. But there is a vast difference between the amounts set by the House and those recommended by the commission, a wide gap between $1.33 a month and the amount a person needs to live on. Relief administrators fear the gap will not be closed.

Some idea of what any appreciable reduction in the commission's estimates would mean can be gained from the fact that the recommendations were an attempt to do little more than preserve the status quo of relief in Missouri—to continue expenditures at about the level of that in recent months.

These recent expenditures have been only a makeshift compromise between necessity and the amount of money available; they have been far from sufficient to prevent widespread suffering among the relief population. In these months Missouri has spent only slightly more for direct relief than has the single city of Minneapolis, which is not much larger than Kansas City.

$7.25 a Month.

In St. Louis, which is nearly twice as large as Minneapolis, expenditures have been about a third of those in the Minnesota city. The average amount received by relief clients here last month was $7.25 a person, by far the lowest in a large city in the United States.

Relief allotments in St. Louis have been based for a long time on a highly theoretical "possible minimum budget" compiled by relief authorities. This budget sets out that sums ranging from $4.35 a month for a baby to $7.80 a month for adolescent children are enough to provide "minimum adequate nutrition" if expended for only those foods which have the greatest nutritive value at the lowest cost.

Main courses at dinner permitted by the budget are soup bones, liver, heart, kidneys, canned fish or cheese. These are supplemented by potatoes, rice or corn meal, and in addition each person is allowed two ounces daily of tomatoes, cabbage, carrots and greens. Children are permitted one 13-ounce can of milk a day, and adults half a can.

When relief allotments are calculated, an attempt is made to provide each family with enough money for food as determined by this "possible minimum budget," and in addition with funds for rent, gas, electricity, soap, clothing, coal and the other necessaries. Actually, the St. Louis commission never had enough money in recent months to do even this. It will be seen that the $7.25 a month average for each person on the rolls barely covers even the modest diet prescribed by the budget, leaving only a few cents for rent, clothing and the rest.

Because food must come first, rents frequently go unpaid, and about 200 relief families a month have been receiving eviction notices. When this happens, the commission usually manages to make an emergency rent allotment, to hold off the landlord a while longer.

This has been the situation in recent months, when the commission has had around $160,000 a month for the 22,000 persons on the relief rolls in St. Louis. Members of the Social Security Commission find it difficult even to imagine what would happen under the House appropriation, which would reduce the amount to about $49,000 a month for the rest of the biennium.

The situation in regard to widows with children, who now are receiving assistance through grants of aid to dependent children, is equally severe. These families, indeed, have suffered most of all in recent months, for from Jan. 10 until April 8 they received no money at all because the Legislature held up a temporary appropriation required to supplement Federal funds.

A Typical Case.

A typical family in this category is a woman and two children—a girl 13 years old and a boy 11—who live in rented quarters above a store in North St. Louis. Both the children are unusually thin as the result of prolonged insufficient diet; the girl weighs only 61 pounds when 77 would be normal for her age and height, and the school nurses are recommending that she be sent to an open-air camp.

Formerly the family received $30 a month as aid to dependent children. It paid $10 for rent, $3 for gas and electricity, and had $17 left for food, clothing, coal and the incidental necessities. This was not always enough, and there were frequent occasions when the children went to school without breakfast or skipped lunch.

The family's real troubles did not begin, however, until its checks stopped coming altogether because of the two-month legislative delay. The last check was exhausted by the end of January; the woman borrowed money from friends when she could, to buy food, and kept the house warm only when a bucketful of coal could be obtained from a neighbor.

Living on Credit.

Feb. 9 was an important day on the family's calendar, because on that day the mother earned $2 ironing and the food problem was solved temporarily. Milk kept coming on credit, a quart every other day. And finally a neighbor had a ton of coal delivered at the home, on the mother's promise to repay later.

Except for these few bright spots, however, the two months were bitter ones. The boy stayed out of school until the Board of Education provided him with shoes. Meals were meager and irregular. The rent went unpaid and the family was threatened with eviction.

Finally, on April 8, the Legislature had acted, and the family received its check for February—reduced to $24. Several days later the March allotment arrived, again for $24. The mother paid $30 in back and current rent, $3 for gas and electricity, a $5.10 milk bill

Civil Aeronautics Authority's Remarkable Record

One Passenger Plane Fatality Per 27,826,000 Miles

Sky Carriers Three Times as Free of Danger From August, 1938, Through March, 1939, as for Previous Corresponding Period Despite Increase in Traffic.

CLINTON M. HESTER

WASHINGTON, May 6.

THOUGH the number of miles flown has increased 14 per cent and the number of passengers carried 22 per cent, and though planes now brave weather hazards which until recently would have pinned them to the ground, airline travel has become three times as safe since Aug. 22, 1938, when the Civil Aeronautics Authority came into being, as it was during the corresponding seven-month period of 1937-38.

Such is the claim of the CAA, which publishes figures purporting to show that between Aug. 22, 1938, and March 26, 1939, domestic air carriers flew 333,915,096 passenger miles with a loss of 12 passenger lives, or 27,826,258 passenger miles flown per passenger fatality. Between Aug. 22, 1937, and March 26, 1938, there were 30 passenger deaths during 289,475,940 passenger miles of flight, or one passenger fatality to every 9,649,198 passenger miles flown.

Specific Measures Adopted That Contribute to the Record

What are some of the specific measures, introduced or prosecuted with added rigor by the CAA during its brief existence, which have contributed at least in part to this impressive showing? The following were outlined by a spokesman of the establishment:

Steady pressure upon airlines for the retirement of older-type machines and their replacement with low-wing monoplanes.

Equipment of airliners with oxygen tanks and a new nose-mask, for the use of pilots. It has been found through experiments in exhaust chambers that at altitudes as low as 9500 feet pilots begin to suffer from oxygen insufficiency, the symptoms of which—over-confidence and under-perceptiveness—resemble those of alcoholism.

Enforcement of the mutual cancellation system. Agreements among competing lines to cancel flights on account of bad weather were frequently violated in former days.

Installation of radio range "tone" and radio telephone "voice" on the same frequency, so that the pilot may hear both simultaneously without switching to different tunings.

Substitution of "Sally Rand" balloons for airplane flights into high altitudes to determine mass weather movements. These balloons carry automatic recording and radio transmitting devices. They are so named because the "bubble" used by Sally Rand in her dances was found to be an ideal lifting vehicle.

Experimental development of an "absolute" radio altimeter, so sensitive as to react violently if the plane, thousands of feet aloft, passes over a building like the Masonic Memorial in Alexandria, Va.; and of a "blind landing" device based on a new radio beam with 1,500,000,000 pulsations per second and a width of only 17 inches, as against 20 meters for the usual short wave.

Immediate Investigation, Publicity for All Accidents

Immediate and unreserved publicity regarding all aeronautic accidents. It is recalled that train travel began to be safe after the railroads ceased driving reporters away with shotguns from the scene of disasters.

Immediate investigation of accidents, and assured punishment of the guilty. Since it was established, the CAA has permanently revoked the license of one pilot, suspended two dispatchers for 30 days each, and brought about a relocation of the cross-feed fuel system in the Lockheed 14-H aircraft.

A ban on flying by pilots outside their regular hours of duty, and supervision to some degree over the nature of their recreations.

Constant inspection of airplane instruments, such as radio equipment, altimeters, artificial horizon, etc. A visual inspection of every plane after 10 hours of flight; an inspection of its oil after 20 hours; a change of oil and inspection of spark plugs after 40 hours; and after 100 hours a complete tear-down of its engines and the opening of all controls.

Partial supervision of pilot education by withholding official "approval" from flying schools which do not offer thorough preliminary ground instruction, and fail to extend the dual type of teaching to at least 25 per cent of the flights formerly rated as "solo."

On the other hand, non-airline flight, over which the CAA also has jurisdiction and which embraces 10,797 of the 11,159 civilian planes now in active service in this country, continues with the disastrous record of one fatality for every 700,000 miles flown. In other words, private flying is 40 times as dangerous as airline travel. This showing is attributed by experts of the establishment to inadequate training of pilots and the use of obsolete or imperfect planes.

Importance of Abating the Perils of Private Flying.

The importance of abating the perils of private flying is recognized by the CAA because it is within this field that the prospective growth of airplane activities is expected largely to take place. The prophecy is confidently made that the United States will lead the world in airplanes as it does in motor cars, and that by 1950 it will have in operation 200,000 civilian planes. Therefore the CAA has begun to tighten drastically its inspection of non-airline craft and its examination of private pilots in quest of licenses, as well as exacting higher standards from the flying schools at which they are trained.

Testifying recently before the Senate Committee on Appropriations, Clinton M. Hester, Administrator of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, declared that during last winter domestic airlines in the United States set an all-time record for safety, flying 64,081,025 passenger miles for each passenger fatality between Dec. 21 and March 20. There was but one fatal accident during that period, he stated, and 50,000,000 passenger miles were flown by the three transcontinental lines and the principal north-south line "without so much as a single forced landing." The accident referred to was the destruction of an airliner near Miles City, Mont., on Jan. 13, in which two passengers and two flyers were killed.

By picking the dates of Dec. 21 and March 20, Hester was able to omit two other airline disasters which occurred after the CAA was organized. (The Civil Aeronautics Authority had no jurisdiction in the case of the Royal Mail aircraft Cavalier, which foundered at sea on Jan. 21 with the loss of three lives. It was a British plane and the tragedy occurred outside the three-mile limit.)

On Nov. 29, a south-bound United Air Lines Douglas transport made a forced landing at sea off Point Reyes, Cal., after the ship's gasoline supply had been exhausted. Five lives were lost—three out of four passengers and two of the crew of three. After an investigation, the Air Safety Board of the CAA announced that the probable cause of the tragedy was "failure of the pilot to establish definitely the position of the aircraft through standard orientation procedures within a reasonable time after intersecting a leg of the Oakland radio range." The licenses of the pilot, who was a survivor, and of two dispatchers were suspended pending an inquiry. Later, the pilot's license was permanently revoked and the dispatchers were exonerated.

The Miles City disaster became notable as an example of the detective skill of the CAA's expert technicians. There were no survivors, and the plane, a Northwest Airlines Lockheed Zephyr monoplane, was demolished and burned. Yet it was determined that fire in the control cabin was the probable cause, and that the origin of the blaze was "strongly indicated to have been a leaking valve in a pressure fuel line passing under the floor of the cabin." The fire led to loss of control of the airship and its subsequent crash.

Steps Taken to Prevent This Kind of Accident.

The report recommended that "the part of the cross-feed fuel system of the Lockheed 14-H aircraft which passes through the fuselage be relocated, and the installation improved so as to provide for drainage outside the fuselage of any gasoline leakage that might occur, and to provide for the elimination of any gasoline fumes accumulating as a result of such leakage." Officials of the airline, it is added, "have taken steps to prevent the recurrence of similar accidents by eliminating the cross-fuel system from all other planes of this type which they are operating."

Seven passengers and a hostess were killed, and four other persons were seriously injured, when a twin-motor airliner of Braniff Airways, Inc., crashed and burned just after taking off from Oklahoma City at 3 a. m. on March 26. Two investigators for the CAA were quickly on the scene, flying from Dallas. Their report has not yet been made public. According to surviving officers, the tragedy was due to failure of the left motor.

The history of the Civil Aeronautics Authority goes back to 1934, when Senator Pat McCarran (Dem.), Nevada, introduced a bill to create an independent establishment which would control and regulate civil aeronautics in America. The backwardness of the country in this field was attributed to divided control. There was a Bureau of Air Commerce in the Department of Commerce and a Bureau of Air Mail in the Interstate Commerce Commission. In addition, the Post-office Department wielded a "big stick" over air line development through its control of mail subsidies. McCarran modified his bill on learning that President Roosevelt preferred the establishment to the placed under the Interstate Commerce Commission. In this form, the measure was filibustered to death.

President Changes Mind and the Bill Goes Through.

Then, in January of last year, the President announced he had changed his mind and would support an independent authority to take entire charge of civil aviation. The Civil Aeronautics Act was passed by both houses, and was approved by Mr. Roosevelt on June 23, 1938. By an executive order of Aug. 22, there were transferred to the new agency the unexpended balances, amounting to $3,386,255, of the air bureaus of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Department of Commerce, together with their property and personnel.

Wisconsin's Governor Heil Under Fire From All Sides for Scrapping La Follette Program

Condemned Even by Fellow Republicans, Big Business Man Hankers for 'Supreme Authority' of Own Factory.

By ERNEST KIRSCHTEN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MADISON, Wis., May 6.

GOV. JULIUS PETER HEIL, whose inauguration last January was hailed as the end of the La Follette dynasty in Wisconsin, already is under fire from friend and foe.

The Progressives point to him as an example of the black reaction which the Republicans may be expected to introduce to the whole nation in 1940. His own Republicans deprecate, deplore and denounce him in turn. "Please don't take him as a sample of what we will offer in 1940," they beg.

The Governor, holding his first public office, seems to be growing a little weary of governmental machinery. "I'm all in favor of democracy," he told this reporter, "but in the Heil Co. of Milwaukee I get things done better and quicker. There I am the supreme authority."

Attack by G. O. P. Paper.

Recently the Wisconsin State Journal, Madison's traditional and almost official Republican organ, devoted virtually its entire front page to an editorial that was a detailed condemnation of the Heil administration — barely three months old—and a warning that the control of the State government, a seat in the United States Senate and possibly even the presidency were at stake; but this was only taking more space to point out what other papers in the State, including the potent Milwaukee Journal, had been saying bit by bit for weeks.

Whatever may happen in 1940, the Heil administration already has taken a long step toward undoing nearly everything that the La Follettes and the Progressives built up during their four decades of almost unbroken ascendency.

Just about the first thing to go was the reorganization of the State government effected by Phil La Follette by virtue of the powers vested in him and an executive committee by a special session of the Legislature in 1937. The actual regrouping of State functions was carried out by means of 26 executive orders. All of these and the legislation which made them possible were wiped out by a single sweeping act passed early in the present session.

La Follette also succeeded in inducing the Legislature to separate the Mental Hygiene Division, in charge of institutions for the insane and the feeble-minded, and the Division of Correction, in charge of penal institutions. These have now been lumped together with the Parole Board and the administration of pensions, relief and aid for widows and children under a single seven-member board of control. Members are paid on a basis of $10 a day and may not receive more than $700 in one year. This automatically limits them to the formulation of policies and leaves administrative detail in the hands of full-time directors of the different departments—a plan not out of harmony with the La Follette philosophy.

Supposed Real Purpose.

As a matter of fact, there was considerable expert opinion in favor of this reshuffling by the Heil Legislature, but angry protests soon filled the Madison air when it was suspected that the real purpose of the re-reorganization was not to provide a more economical set-up, as promised by the Governor, but to exempt most of the jobs involved from civil service regulations.

In undoing La Follette's 26 executive orders it became necessary, of course, to reconstitute most of the affected agencies. So far as this work has been carried to date, it also shows the Legislature's inclination to omit provisions for a merit system. There also have been more direct attacks on civil service, one measure, now pending, going so far as to give the Governor discretionary authority to remove virtually any State employe.

Now, the civil service was surrounded by a more inviolate sanctity in Wisconsin than in most states. "Old Bob" La Follette and Prof. John R. Commons of the University of Wisconsin "sold" the idea so completely that the merit system was taken for granted. A few commentators have shrugged off the action of the present Legislature as "just what's to be expected in politics," but most of them are disgusted. Said A. M. Brayton, a Republican leader:

"No one attentively watching the state government can have escaped the fact that so far the administration has concentrated on jobs, rather than upon public service. The greatest damage done, among a number of major injuries to Republican prospects in Wisconsin, is based upon rather convincing evidence that the Heil administration is tending to return rather candidly to the spoils system, outmoded years ago."

Agency Called "Heil's GPU."

Another irritating innovation is a Department of Research, created by an act that was signed by Heil on April 12. This called for a director, appointed by the Governor, and any number of assistants to investigate any and all state departments for the purpose of effecting economies. This avowed purpose has been accepted with a great deal of salt in Madison. The agency is already known as "Heil's GPU." It is pointed out that while $15,000 is set aside for the needs of the researchers up to July 1, the Governor may grant them as much more as seems fit in the next 12 months, which will be election year.

Wisconsin's "Little Wagner Act" was discarded last Wednesday when the Governor signed a measure sponsored by the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture. Although less drastic than the Oregon labor relations law, this measure puts severe restrictions on the right to strike and picket. For instance, 10 days' notice must be given before a strike may be called. Collective bargaining is mandatory only when unions have a majority in a plant or craft, and the closed shop is illegal unless 75 per cent of the employes of a firm are union members. Secondary picketing is forbidden. Unfair labor practices on the part of trade unionists as well as employers are enumerated. Also, the powers of the reconstituted State Labor Relations Board are curtailed.

In addition to this law, the Legislature earlier enacted the Catlin bill forbidding picketing by persons not employes of the plant against which a strike is directed, and it is now considering another measure, the Schmitz bill, which would require unions to obtain a certificate of registration from the Secretary of State each year.

Wisconsin labor, of course, is up in arms over the new laws, and the American Federation of Labor already is preparing test cases. Even friends of the administration are voicing the opinion that the legislation, while good in intent, has been needlessly harsh.

"Little TVA" Killed.

The Wisconsin Development Authority, generally called "the Little TVA," was killed by the simple expedient of withholding an appropriation. Created to foster municipal ownership of utilities, the authority was set up as a private corporation—so it was impossible to do away with it completely without revoking its charter.

Conservatives, as well as Progressives, were also annoyed by the abolition of the State's Commerce Department, set up by the La Follette administration to promote the sale of Wisconsin products. Some farmers are wondering whether the recent cut in milk prices in the Milwaukee area, ordered by the State Department of Markets and

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Russell Dearmont—Reform Pioneer.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ANENT the letter in last Tuesday's Post-Dispatch in which F. Robert speaks of giving "credit where credit is due to that crusader paramount who started the fight" on the Pendergast machine, let us remember, with just a word of praise, Russell Dearmont, who really started the fight when he ran for the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1932, and William Hirth, who took up the fight in his campaign for the same office in 1936.

How much better it would have been for all concerned—the State of Missouri, the Democratic party, the policyholders who were fleeced and even for Pendergast and the lesser lights who are now in serious trouble—if Dearmont had been nominated and elected in 1932! A different man would have been named Superintendent of Insurance and there would have been no front-page scandals.

The Post-Dispatch and Gov. Stark are entitled to the highest praise for their admirable course, and I think the people are for them all the way, but when we speak of pioneers in the cause, we should not forget Russell Dearmont, who denounced Pendergastism at a time when the big boss was going so strong that a large percentage of the State's Democratic hosts bowed before his throne.

D. L. BALES.

A Critic of Modern Sculpture.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WANT to congratulate the Post-Dispatch for at last running a cut of one of these modern monstrosities with the correct caption, "Rejected Statue."

The only thing wrong with the "rejected statue" was that some imbecile had accepted it before it was rejected.

How in the name of time could anybody look with even a trace of favor on this statue of the martyred Abraham Lincoln as a deformed monster with the bellyache?

It's just too bad the Post-Dispatch can't run a picture of the "rejected fountain," so that our grandchildren won't feel a mid-section disturbance when they walk past Aloe Plaza.

CHARLES M. PETER.

Nicaragua—Our Friend.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AT a time when the German and Japanese economic penetration of South and Latin America seems to present a serious menace to American trade and exchange, it is encouraging to note that in Nicaragua, Germany has lost ground.

In 1937, Germany supplied 15.7 per cent of Nicaragua's total imports, but this figure had declined in 1938 to only 6.9 per cent. The United States is now furnishing 59.4 per cent of Nicaragua's imports and buying 63.5 per cent of her exports.

In my opinion, this balance in favor of the United States is entirely due to the wise and generous policy of Secretary Hull in working out equitable and stimulative reciprocal trade agreements.

The widespread effects of a friendly and just foreign trade policy are reflected in the statement of President Somoza that "I consider every Nicaraguan aviator and soldier a potential fighting man for the United States."

Cordell Hull alone, of recent Secretaries of State, has succeeded in convincing some of the Latin American countries that America is a real friend. He hasn't done this by using the United States marines as a club, either.

JOSEPH FOLEY.

Clean Up St. Louis, Too.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHEN we have finished cleaning up Kansas City, and Pendergast and his gang are put away, start on Bev Brown and Gully Owen in St. Louis. They control the racing news services and the bookie shops. They are politicians, and at one time played around with the gangsters. They are friends of our City Hall officials.

They are big, but no bigger than Pendergast, who thought nothing could ever happen to him or his, but, thanks to Gov. Stark, he was finally brought to book. Now let's get Brown and Owen.

CHARLES C. EVERETT.

War's Grim Record.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

LEST we forget, let us turn the clock back to 1914-18, and take a look at the record. This will, of course, not impress the warmongers, but it might act as a grim reminder to the masses of our peace-loving people who are at this time being constantly confronted with war news. Let the record speak for itself:

In the war of 1914-18, throughout the world, there were

10,000,000 men killed,
3,000,000 men missing,
19,000,000 men wounded,
10,000,000 men disabled,
7,000,000 prisoners,
9,000,000 orphans,
5,000,000 widows.
6,400 men killed daily.

DR. JULIUS L. BISCHOF.

Praise for Post-Dispatch Features.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM writing to compliment you on your action in employing such splendid writers as Dr. Crane, Emily Post, Elsie Robinson and Angelo Patri, and for making their excellent counsel available to the public.

MRS. D. A. PRUITT.

MISSOURI IS WATCHING.

Our State Senate is the next battleground. There the Pendergast machine will make its last stand. It is all over but the shouting in the House, where the police bill has been perfected by a majority that assures its passage.

What of the Senate? The leader of the Pendergast forces in that body is the veteran, Senator Mike Casey. The people of Missouri don't have to be told anything about Senator Casey. They have known him, as a Senator, for 30 years or more. They know him as a man of force and ability, who, had he chosen, could have made himself one of the State's distinguished public servants. He has not so chosen. He is a machine politician. He makes no pretense to being anything else. He stands boldly, unblushingly on his record. In this, the fight of the Pendergast machine's very life, he will give everything he has to beat the police bill in the final desperate struggle to save the tottering, crumbling wreck of bossism in Kansas City.

Can Casey win?

There are 34 members of the Senate.

Of that number, St. Louis has six. Kansas City has two.

There are three Republican Senators, who are counted, in advance speculation, as dependably for the police bill.

Two of our St. Louis Senators, Mike Kinney and Joe Brogan, have long been associated with Casey, in the triumvirate that has ruled the Senate, have said what shall and what shall not be the law, and, by that token, have been the Government of Missouri.

But there is no sentimentality in practical politics. Kinney and Brogan are just as hard as Casey, and, like him, are practical men. Here is a spot, as they well know, where they can't dodge, or duck, or hide behind the closed doors of a secret committee meeting.

Kinney and Brogan must come out before their St. Louis constituencies either as pro-Stark Senators or pro-Pendergast menials. That is the precise position of every one of the 34 Senators. Every one of them knows that he is under the scrutinizing gaze of the voters of his district. Every one of them knows that, if he lines up with Pendergast and betrays his people, he has signed his political death warrant.

And events continue to pile up the infamy of Pendergast's machine.

The people of Missouri remember that prophecy of Judge Allen C. Southern, following the indictment of Prosecuting Attorney W. W. Graves, and the reinstatement of the case against the murderous gangster, Charles Gargotta, which Graves dismissed after 27 continuances. To the grand jury about to adjourn, Judge Southern said: "You have raised a corner of the curtain and shown the mass of corruption behind it."

Since those words were pronounced, the Pendergast machine has stumbled and sprawled through a morass of headlines. Indictments, resignations, prosecutions, convictions, a suicidal streak of crimson to add its tragic touch. And now comes the latest disclosure of the millions that have poured from Kansas City's bond issue of nine years ago into the coffers of Pendergast's manifold business concerns.

Gambling, vice, dope are the triune points of Kansas City's degradation, and surging around all a saturnalia of graft.

That is what our Senators will be voting for who follow Casey's leadership against Gov. Stark's bill to remove the police force of Kansas City from the ruinous grip of the Pendergast machine and the criminal underworld.

Missouri is watching.

MR. WHALEN LEARNS.

Grover Whalen, New York's official Barnum, is good at his persuasive art; in fact, just a little too good. Everything about the World of Tomorrow can be expressed only in superlatives and large, impressive figures, so it was only natural that Mr. Whalen should say, for release last Sunday morning, that an attendance of 1,000,000 was expected on the opening day.

Accustomed though they are to being packed in tightly with their fellow-citizens, that astronomical number was too much for New Yorkers. They stayed away in huge masses of teeming humanity. The million figure wasn't reached until the fifth day of the fair, and the guests were largely from out of town. As a result, Mr. Whalen has had to modify his technique. He has abandoned streamlined promotion methods for the moment and returned to the traditional cry of the circus barker, "Plenty of room inside, folks; just step right up and get your tickets for the world's greatest aggregation of . . ."

Mr. Whalen has a show that is bound to pack them in as the vacation season comes along. But just now, the boss ballyhoo man has learned a little lesson in human nature and the intricate art of publicity.

AN OLD FRIEND SUSPENDS PUBLICATION.

Theodore Roosevelt had been beaten for Mayor of New York. Germany, Austria and Italy were whipping into shape the Triple Alliance Treaty against France and Russia. Grover Cleveland was worried because the Treasury showed a big surplus. On the frail and under-sized magazine racks of those days there appeared a magazine of decorum, its pages crammed with small compact type and occasionally relieved by wood-engraved illustrations. The only timely article was "Our Defenseless Coasts," which did not view the Atlantic as the rampart it is today.

Of such material was Scribner's, Vol. 1, No. 1, January, 1887. But it was in line with the times and it remained in line, and it never stooped to a plane below its high standards. Henry M. Stanley and Theodore Roosevelt were among its autobiographers. Among its serials was "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," which went on to a book sale of 1,250,000 copies. Howard Pyle, Frederic Remington and Maxfield Parrish were among its illustrators. Robert Louis Stevenson supplied it with short stories and essays, including "The Wreckers." All of its editors were men of taste and discrimination. They did not allow it to develop hardening of the arteries. It held its place despite the inroads of quality magazines and look-instead-of-read magazines and other mass-circulation getters.

Now, despite its record circulation of 126,000, mounting costs of production and a scarcity of working capital have forced it to suspend publication with the faint promise that it will be resumed in the fall if sufficient capital can be found. We sincerely hope that Scribner's will resume publication. It has been a formative force in American life and an intellectual leader to which its friends would hate to say good-by.

85,000 JOBS ELIMINATED.

A machine installed in a steel plant at Pittsburgh, Pa., is something to talk about. With a crew of six men it turned out 446 tons of tin plate in an eight-hour day. Before this machine was invented, a crew of five men on the old-style hand mills turned out 10 tons of tin plate in eight hours.

From 10 tons to 446 tons is surely stepping along, isn't it? Of course, the new machines are expensive. They cost $10,000,000 apiece. Twenty-six of them are now operating. The research department reports: "They have eliminated 85,000 jobs."

The research department chooses its words. The elimination of 85,000 jobs reads rather better, say, than "85,000 men out of work." But that is what it means.

What of the 85,000 men whose jobs are gone—swallowed up in the maw of a machine? There is a smug school of philosophy that looks upon a development of this sort with reassuring complacency. Like Voltaire's exasperating idiot, "It is all for the best in this best of all possible worlds." Technology is no ruthless deity. It is a kind, charming god. For every job it eliminates, it creates another. So don't worry. There is no occasion for uneasiness at all. That is what they say. It is not true.

Technology is a pleasing word. It has a ripple of euphony. It is impersonal. It serves, perhaps, as the mask for the Machine, that monstrous Iago of the economic tragedy.

What's to be done with the villain? Sorry, but we don't know.

WHAT ABOUT A MARRIAGE HEALTH LAW?

Since Illinois adopted its marriage health law, the number of marriage licenses issued has fallen more than 50 per cent, announces Dr. A. C. Baxter, State Health Director. Does this mean that fewer Illinoisans are getting married because of this law? Not at all. It means that approximately 50 per cent of all couples are evading the law, by journeying across the State line to jurisdictions lacking such legislation.

The Illinois law became effective July 1, 1937. There were 155,290 marriage licenses issued in the State in the 18 months preceding that date—and only 71,691 in the 18 months thereafter. A proof of what is happening comes in the St. Louis marriage license figures. Last year's total of 11,747 broke all records. The figure for 1936, before the Illinois law came in, was 6960. Up to 50 per cent of the addresses given in the daily listings of marriage licenses are of Illinois persons.

In justice to Illinois' effort to protect its people, and in justice to the public health of our own State, the Missouri Legislature should hasten to enact the similar law proposed here. It has twice been killed in committee, but has been introduced for the third time. The general public and a long list of organizations have given emphatic approval to the measure. How long must the people wait for action?

ANCIENT NOOLBENGER VS. MISSOURI BULLFROG.

The dodo has been believed extinct since the seventeenth century, but it wouldn't be surprising if someone turned up with one of those great clumsy birds under his arm. Just a few weeks ago, a whopping big fish with a whopping long Latin name was caught off the West African coast and duly recognized by London scientists as one labeled extinct since prehistoric times. And now the Royal Museum at Perth, according to London papers, has received from Australia a live noolbenger, supposedly nonexistent for ages.

This noolbenger thing seems to be about like any frog except that it has an elongated snout, instead of a broad mouth, and a long tongue with a bristly tip. Thus equipped, it hops in what must be a mincing manner among the flowers as it extracts nectar. Its voice, it seems, is rather strident. Sages and savants are all in a dither. Let them remain so. Let them go into ecstasies and write reams and reams on this flower-sniffing creature. He is a puny, prehistoric prince with his nasal "brek-ek-ek-coax," compared to that ponderous, blatant monarch, the bullfrog of Missouri, who sings "jug-o'-rum—jug o' rum" in C below the staff, makes his meals on insects, fish and even birds, and hops as lustily as a kangaroo.

Vile noolbenger! Your feeble twitterings and your ancient lineage will never earn you a reputation such as Missouri's nightingale of the swamps has earned with his deep, powerful, steady and sonorous "jug o' rum."

ACTION ON THE WAGNER-ROGERS BILL.

The Wagner-Rogers bill, permitting entry of 20,000 German refugee children to this country in the next two years, has been approved by the joint subcommittee of the Senate and House immigration committees. In connection with the action, the point is again emphasized that no child will be admitted unless "satisfactory assurances" are presented that a responsible individual or organization will care for it. This is a detail frequently disregarded by critics of the proposal.

Under the Federal law, affidavits guaranteeing support of every immigrant are required, together with detailed statements as to the guarantor's property, income and general responsibility. This means, of course, that the children will not be a charge upon the Government, but will be fully cared for by their sponsors.

The argument also is advanced that the children will aggravate the country's unemployment problem. Were there any basis whatever for this contention, then the nation's great labor organizations, the AFL and CIO, would certainly be found fighting the proposal. Yet they are among the great number of organizations that approve it.

The move is a highly humanitarian one. It means American participation, through private citizens and groups, toward alleviating the distress of youthful persecution victims, and in giving them a chance to lead normal lives in a land of freedom.

WORKING AT THE LEWIS MINE.

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Cotton and wheat export subsidies will tie another knot in our foreign commerce, says capital newspaper; program will be a boon to the dictators, rather than a blow at their restrictive trade practices; administration's production and loan policies blamed for surpluses.

From the Washington Post.

THE agreement between President Roosevelt and Southern Senators on a bounty of approximately 2 cents a pound on cotton exports ties another knot in one of the most tangled situations in the history of our foreign or domestic trade.

Senator Bankhead's announcement of the subsidy plan came on the very day countervailing duties imposed by the United States became effective against subsidized German exports. So far as cotton and wheat are concerned, the administration is resorting to the same policy that it condemns and penalizes when used by other nations.

If this device were to be used to move into the world market some of the huge cotton surplus accumulated because of unwise Government loans on that commodity, it could be in some measure defended as an expedient designed to meet an emergency. Indeed, that is what President Roosevelt had in mind when he first proposed cotton export subsidies. But under the agreement outlined by Senator Bankhead, bounties are to be used chiefly as a means of selling this year's cotton crop. Loan cotton could not be sold until next Jan. 1, and then only when suitable supplies were not available on the domestic market.

So the subsidization of some agricultural exports (bounties have long been paid in the case of wheat) seems to have been accepted by the administration as a routine policy. Having made it more difficult for American growers to sell their cotton abroad, the administration refuses to admit its mistake or to rationalize its policy. Apparently, it is determined to clap on another subsidy to satisfy immediate demands of farmers, without regard for the long-range consequences.

As recently as last September, Secretary Wallace issued a warning against cotton subsidies. "If used on a large scale and over a period of time," he said, "export subsidies employed by competing countries are mutually self-defeating. They amount to an international price war that is bound to be destructive in the end. . . . If consumption of American cotton is to be subsidized, the subsidies ought to be applied to domestic consumption rather than exports."

The Secretary's excuse for reversing his stand now seems to be that the dictator nations are using public funds to force exports abroad and that the United States must fight fire with fire. That is an especially strange argument when applied to cotton. It happens that Japan, Germany and Italy rank high among the foremost purchasers of cotton from this country. Instead of offsetting unfair competition on the part of totalitarian Powers in the world cotton markets, Mr. Wallace's proposal would probably result in giving them cheap cotton.

Congress ought to consider seriously the muddle in which this policy would involve the United States. The Department of State is trying to minimize trade barriers. The administration is using its influence to avert war by discouraging aggression. Yet it is proposed to subsidize the sale of cotton, an essential war material, in a way that would redound to the benefit of the totalitarian states.

In effect, this scheme would tax the American people to give cheaper cotton to the dictator Powers, along with other nations, while denying the same benefits to domestic consumers.

Moreover, subsidized cotton would give textile manufacturers abroad an unfair advantage over American mills that would necessarily call for increased tariff protection. It is impossible to see how such an expedient can be reconciled with the trade agreements program or with the administration's general foreign policy.

Undoubtedly, the barter practices followed by totalitarian countries have, as Mr. Wallace points out, minimized the effectiveness of Secretary Hull's trade negotiations. But that is only one factor in the dilemma confronting the AAA. Despite our trade agreement with Great Britain, cotton exports to that country have taken a terrific slump. In this and various other cases, the production and loan policies followed by the AAA appear to be more responsible than the restrictive trade methods of the dictators.

Before asking Congress for funds to imitate those methods, the least the administration could do is to adjust its own policies, which have so extensively contributed to the loss of foreign agricultural markets and the piling up of unsalable surpluses.

Panic Among the Pendergast Machine's Supporters

From the Independence (Mo.) Examiner.

IF there was anybody in Missouri who had real doubts about the wisdom and necessity for the metropolitan police bill urged by Gov. Stark, that doubt was dissolved when they read of the futile and frantic actions of the machine supporters in the Missouri House.

The machine support is falling to pieces. Amendments, efforts at delay and all sorts of defeatist motions were proposed, and each vote showed a larger number in favor of the Weakley bill. John D. Taylor, opponent of the measure, but a wise politician and able member, saw the danger and rebuked his own followers.

When the Governor proposed the restoration of partial State control of the Kansas City police, there were many good Democrats throughout the State who honestly believed it was nothing but politics, and the cry of "home rule" appealed to them. All Democrats believe in local self-government, and rightly.

But the debate in the House and the movements of the machine supporters have shown clearly the vital need of a change in police control in Kansas City. Blow after blow has fallen on the machine, disastrous blows which resulted in a crumbling of the power which was thought to be invincible.

Until the last few days, we have felt that the police bill would not get enough votes in the Senate to be adopted. The result of the House developments and the frantic efforts of opponents of the bill will make it impossible for the out-State Senators to vote against this measure. We are expecting a scamper for the band-wagon.

This fight, more than anything else, has wrecked a lot of political ambitions and will eliminate from the primary next summer a lot of office-holders who guessed wrong.

CIO, A. F. L. TALKS ADVANCED FAR WHEN DISRUPTED

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 6. — Peace negotiations between the CIO and the A. F. of L. had progressed so far, prior to the time they were broken off by John L. Lewis' preoccupation with the miners' dispute, that a formula had been worked out and agreed upon whereby nine former A. F. of L. unions would return to the Federation, the Post-Dispatch has learned from an authoritative source.

This had been considered in the Department of Labor the most difficult problem of all to solve—how to bring back into the Federation those unions that had left and had had their charters canceled as a consequence. Acceptance by both sides of a formula that would permit them to return with full powers as independent unions was regarded as an extremely hopeful omen of ultimate success in the difficult peace negotiations.

The return of the former A. F. of L. unions was conditional, of course, on subsequent agreement on a formula that would permit all CIO unions to become a part of the Federation. There was never at any time any suggestion that some CIO unions might be left behind while others should merge with the A. F. of L.

At Standstill for Month.

Agreement on a formula for the return of the former A. F. of L. unions was reached, it was learned, just before the peace negotiations between labor's warring factions were broken off. Leaving the conference, Lewis announced that he was prepared to confer the following day on details if the miners' ditpute did not become "too hot."

The next day there was an important conference between coal operators and mine union heads at which Lewis was present. That was a month ago. Conferees have had no further word from Lewis.

Within the A. F. of L. there is deep pessimism concerning future negotiations. This exists, too, in the Department of Labor. The next move, it is felt, must come from Lewis. While a great deal has been lost through the month's delay, nevertheless negotiations could be resumed, it is felt, on the basis of the formula already agreed to. That is true, at least, for the moment.

All this was discussed, the Post-Dispatch has learned from a high administration official, at a recent Cabinet meeting. Secretary of Labor Perkins reported to the Cabinet that negotiations had gone to this hopeful point when they had been interrupted by the crisis over coal.

Some CIO Elements Hold Out.

Two top figures in the CIO, it has been learned, were most anxious to bring about the merger. One is Sidney Hillman, head of the powerful Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union, and the other is Philip Murray, head of the equally powerful Steel Workers' Orzanizing Committee. Other elements in the CIO were not, however, sympathetic either to the formula finally agreed on by the negotiators or even to the general effort to bring the two sides together.

One important factor generally overlooked in discussion of the gulf that separates craft and industrial forces is the tremendous pressure that comes from the rank and file for an end of the breach.

Hundreds of appeals—letters and telegrams—have come from the rank and file of both CIO and A. F. of L. unions for peace in recent weeks. Many such appeals have come to the Department of Labor.

Another factor is a growing awareness among the leaders on both sides of the disastrous effects of disunity on the entire labor movement. Surveys have shown that never before, or at any rate never in recent years, has so much anti-labor legislation been presented to state Legislatures throughout the country. Labor observers regard it as a mass attack on labor standards.

Wage-Hour Act Next.

If the drive against the Wagner act is successful, it is believed by many here, then the Wage and Hour Act will be the next object of attack. The United States Chamber of Commerce at its recent meeting adopted a resolution demanding the outright repeal of the wage and hour law.

If there are those in the CIO who look with suspicion on any and all merger proposals, it is also true that there are bitter-enders in the A. F. of L. who want to fight it out.

For months preceding the beginning of negotiations Secretary Perkins conferred with Lewis and with William Green and other A. F. of L. officers. She worked intensely to prepare the ground for discussions between negotiators. In the belief that any publicity might be harmful, she has kept a strict silence on the progress that had been made up to the time the United Mine Workers' wage dispute intervened.

La Follette's Troubled Successor

Agriculture, might not be traced to this discontinuance of the efforts to sell more Wisconsin cheese outside the State.

With the Legislature still in session, many citizens are wondering what else to expect. The Legislature is not a body to inspire much confidence since many of its members were nominated without any thought that Heil could beat Phil La Follette and sweep them into office. It has no outstanding leaders, and while the Governor has control over both houses, he is too much of a political "babe in the woods" to supply any real direction. One Milwaukee writer said of him: "He is neither a statesman nor a politician, so he is muffing a grand opportunity."

One of his first difficulties came with the drafting of the State budget. Heil had campaigned on an economy plank. It was about all he talked about other than his rise from barefoot orphan to millionaire manufacturer. He promised to cut at least 15 per cent from the expenditures in the last La Follette biennium—a large promise, considering the fact that the La Follette expenditures were less than $71,000,000, as compared with $81,605,268 in 1937 alone in Missouri. Gov. Stark's recommendation for this biennium was $217,784,969.

Under Wisconsin law, a Governor must meet with the various department heads even before his inauguration to draw up a budget. The estimates submitted to Heil added up to almost $97,000,000 for 1939-1941. He asked the Legislature for $66,753,133, but this figure failed to save his face since it omitted all consideration of relief and other welfare charges, although he had promised increased pension payments and had the support of the Townsend clubs of the state.

Only One Major Economy.

In speaking to this reporter, Gov. Heil insisted that he could still save money on the ordinary administrative machinery, but admitted that there was little to be done about mounting pension bills. As a matter of fact, the only major economy recommended by the Governor has been a slash of about $1,000,000 in the budget of the State University. This has served only to involve him in a controversy with the university's new president, Dr. Clarence Dykstra, former Cincinnati City Manager, and the alumni. He is now being reminded facetiously of a speech in which he announced that it would be necessary for the University of Wisconsin to have a good football team during his administration—no matter what the cost. Dr. Dykstra argues that a reduction of substantial proportion can be affected only by cutting faculty salaries and raising fees.

The fact, of course, is that the Legislature is preparing to vote appropriations of about $5,000,000 in excess of the La Follette figure. This means that La Follette surtaxes will have to be re-enacted. There is also talk of a sales tax—a levy long anathema in Wisconsin.

Some of the Governor's supporters admit that he has lost much of his following among the "intellectuals" and the business men of Wisconsin, but insist the "man in the street" is still for him.

"Ordinary people like him," one of these said. "They smile when he butchers the King's English. They like it when he insists on being called 'the old man,' and refers to the legislators as 'my boys,' insisting that the 'boys' cannot run the 'old man.'"

It is true that many a voter was impressed by the Horatio Alger story of Heil's life. That began 62 years ago at Duesmond an der Mosel in Germany. His parents settled on a Wisconsin farm when he was three years old, and he was orphaned when he was 12. After that he worked in stables, stores and factories and on street cars—something that later helped him to build the Cherokee street line in St. Louis. In 1900 he founded a rail welding business in Milwaukee with the first $700 he saved. Today the Heil Co., which manufactures oil burners, tanks, bodies for dump trucks, snow plows and water systems, employs 1800 men and has a branch plant in New Jersey. Its successful president—short, ruddy and energetic and with a liking for green suits, green ties and green ink—is a jovial family man and a good spender and joiner, typical of Milwaukee "Gemuetlichkeit."

All these things endeared him to Wisconsin voters, and above all the fact that he was a good employer with a CIO union in his plant and a record of not one single labor dispute. However, Heil, once he was projected into public life, showed an unhappy penchant for saying things that caused him to lose caste. He became involved in a dispute with a University of Wisconsin student—a sturdy German youth from Sheboygan who had called him "a brainless idiot"—and came off second best. He took to making colonels of all his Milwaukee Athletic Club companions—almost 70 already, while Phil La Follette conferred the title on only six—and the sturdy Wisconsin folks decided that might be funny in Kentucky but not at home. He ordered a secretary to expunge all mention of "Old Bob"—a hero and a saint in Wisconsin—from a WPA State guide. He went to New York and praised Mayor Hague of Jersey City as a "champion of legitimate industry . . . a man who seems not to be afraid."

Wisconsin eyebrows were really raised when the new Governor began to talk backhandedly of democracy. In a debate he defended his campaign expenditures by saying:

"The great trouble is we are talking about a poor man running for office; that is out of the question in this modern day; it is just the same as a poor man going out and trying to advertise Camel cigarettes to this nation — he has not got a chance."

Finding Things Different.

He makes frequnt allusions to the way he runs the Heil company, and sighs that things are different in the Governor's office.

"I'll give the legislators a chance," he told the writer, "but if they don't know the answers, I'll give them to them. . . . We might get something done with one man at the top with the power to say 'Yes' or 'No.' . . . You can't run industry like a state government. You must have dictatorship. President Roosevelt saw that. Dictatorial powers, subject to recall, are not bad. I would be in favor of the President's powers—and lots more—if they could be recalled like those of Alfred Sloan of General Motors by his board of directors."

Wisconsin does not like such expressions. It is jealous of its reputation for "advanced" government—no matter by what party. It is difficult to believe Gov. Heil means all that his words imply. Essentially he is a man of good will—paternalistic perhaps, but not dictatorial.

Still, his words look bad in type, and so Phil La Follette, back from Europe, sits in his law office across the lawn from the Statehouse and propounds his theory that Americans will go on voting against the "ins" in bad times until they find someone who knows the answers. About Gov. Heil and 1940 he has nothing to say.

PULITZER MUSIC PRIZE CAPS RISE FROM SLUMS

Scholarship Given to Composer for Symphony Expressing Poor Boy's Plaint.

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP).—The music that won the Pulitzer prize scholarship for 1938 was revealed today as a poor boy's plaint against the squalor of the slums. The boy was Dante Fiorillo, a son of immigrant Italians.

His winning of the $1500 scholarship last Monday was told in a few lines of type which said he was the "most talented and deserving" composer of the year.

Nothing more was said of his work. It now becomes known that Fiorillo won the prize on the basis of the eighth of twelve symphonies he has writen, and that eighth symphony was his broken-hearted protest against the slums in which he lived.

It was begun when the composer, now 29 years old, was in his early 'teens. It was writen in secret in one of the classrooms of the Greenwich village. That was the one place where he could find escape from the dirt and the noise and the unhappiness of the tenements.

Born in the slums, he cringed from them. There are places in the slums where the sun cannot reach, but no place is too dark or too remote to be reached by the sound of music. That sound reached the boy early.

At 7, Picked Out Tunes.

At the age of 7, he was picking out little tunes, by ear, on a harmonium his father bought for him. At 14, he was a student at the Greenwich House School, a branch of the Greenwich Settlement House.

The boy was a cellist—not a very good one—but music kept running through his head. When he and his friends made their daily trips to the school to play Beethoven and Mozart and Bach and forget their unfortunate home life, he would hide himself away, on the pretense of practicing, and write his music.

For months he did that, working in secret, until he came to know Hank Caroselli, a lanky violin teacher with a grave smile, who came out of Uruguay under the christened name Enrique, but soon lost it in the lingo of the streets. Caroselli was a born soul mender. That is why they have made him head of the music school since then. He impressed on his pupils the necessity of a clean, firm tone in their music. From there, it was only a step to a clean, firm personal character.

First Public Performance.

To Caroselli, young Fiorillo confided the secret of his music. With his manuscripts hidden under his coat, the boy took the fruits of his labor to his confidant, and, at the age of 17, finally saw the first of his works, a series of dances, played in public under Caroselli's baton.

From then on, Fiorillo's compositions received increasing recognition. First came the Society of Professional Musicians award at the Yaddo music festival. Then four Guggenheim fellowships. Now the Pulitzer Prize, which he will spend in study abroad.

His works have been played all over the world. This season alone he had three performances at New York's Town Hall. He has a wide reputation as the most prolific of contemporary young composers. And he credits it all to God and Caroselli.

Caroselli, with characteristic modesty, disclaims the responsibility. But the 385 pupils who pay the Greenwich house school from 50 cents up for weekly music lessons, depending on their means, agree with Fiorillo. To them, Caroselli is at the bottom of it all, surely. For Fiorillo escaped from the slum through music. Why not they?

U. S. STUDIES JAPAN'S SHANGHAI DEMANDS

Officials Think Increased Authority Would Hurt American Trade in China.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP).—Japan's demand for more authority in the Shanghai International Settlement is receiving close study here from officials apprehensive lest there be impingement on American interests in China.

Japan's request was made in a communication the Tokyo Foreign Office handed recently to United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew and the British Ambassador demanding more representation on the Shanghai municipal council.

The importance of keeping trade with the Shanghai International Settlement open to all nations is reflected by the fact that in 1937 Shanghai's share of the foreign trade of China was 53 per cent in imports and 48 per cent in exports. In 1937, United States exports to the Shanghai area totaled $34,700,000 and imports from that area $43,000,000, but during 1938, Shanghai trade fell considerably owing to the Chinese-Japanese war.

The International Settlement is governed by a council consisting of five British, two American, two Japanese and five Chinese members, all elected by the taxpayers of the settlement. The United States Government is not directly connected with the council; the Americans chosen are private citizens. Matters arising between the United States and the International Settlement are generally handled by the United States Consul-General in Shanghai, now Clarence Gauss. But the Government is interested in seeing that the settlement remains truly international and does not become Japanese-controlled.

Japan advances its claims to further representation on several grounds. Among them is the fact that Japan has the largest foreign population in Shanghai—40,000 as compared with 19,000 Russians, 9000 British, 3800 Americans, 2000 Portuguese, 1800 Germans and 1600 French. Another is the fact that more than 50 Chinese puppet leaders set up by the Japanese in Shanghai, outside the settlement, have been assassinated. Japan says terrorists take refuge in the settlement.

C. OF C. OBJECTS TO CHANGES IN NIGHT PLANE SCHEDULE

Says Former Arrangement for Mail and Passengers From East Was Satisfactory.

A protest against recent changes in the night airplane schedule from New York was made yesterday by Thomas N. Dysart, president of the Chamber of Commerce, to Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., and W. W. Howes, Assistant Postmaster-General.

Two planes, which formerly left Newark airport at 10 p. m. and midnight, arriving here at 4:17 a. m. and 5:18 a. m., now leave at 8 p. m. and 10 p. m. and land at Lambert-St. Louis Field at 1:58 a. m. and 3:03 a. m. Dysart pointed out that mail deposited in the New York Postoffice after 7:30 p. m., must be handled through Chicago and that when the Boston-New York plane is late that mail also is sent by way of Chicago and does not arrive here until time for the first afternoon delivery.

Dysart also asserted that the 1:58 a. m. and 3:03 a. m. arrival times were too early to attract night passengers. "We feel that it is very unfortunate that after a satisfactory schedule was established for both passengers and mail that we should now be deprived of it and get a schedule so unsatisfactory," Dysart wrote.

CAA Increases Safety in Air; 7-Month Record

among three units, the Civil Aeronautics Authority formed a new departure in commission government. There is the Authority itself, consisting of five members, which, through hearings and regulations, exercises quasi-judicial and quasi-legislative control over aviation activities. There is a single Administrator, charged with the establishment's executive and operating functions, including supervision of airway traffic and communications. Finally, there is an Air Safety Board of three members, which has to do with investigation of accidents and recommendations of preventive measures.

Dissension Within Authority.

This system has been held up as a model, which might be extended to all independent establishments. But on the Senate floor the other day Senator James F. Byrnes (Dem.), South Carolina, affirmed that, to the knowledge of every member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, dissensions have already risen within the Authority, between its units charged with regulation and with administration and construction.

The debate was upon an appropriation of $1,600,000 for the Authority which was recommended by the President and inserted in the Second Deficiency Appropriation Bill. The House of Representatives cut the amount to $1,086,195. Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri attacked the Civil Aeronautics Authority as "a classic example of mushroom bureaucracy." He declared it was seeking funds to engage 800 new employes, although in a few months its total personnel had increased to 3546, as against 2593 persons employed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, 1010 by the Maritime Commission and 618 by the Federal Communications Commission. Senator Byrnes added that under present estimates, the CAA will in 1940 employ 1800 more persons than the ICC.

In reply, there was introduced a letter written to Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, a member of the Appropriations Committee, by Harllee Branch, vice-chairman of the CAA. He protested that the Interstate Commerce Commission does not examine or license locomotives, cars, engineers, conductors, mechanics or any of the railroad personnel; that its safety regulation powers extend only to certain prescribed appliances, and that it has no executive functions of railway construction, maintenance and operation. If to the ICC were added, he said, the Bureau of Lighthouses, the Bureau of Public Roads, and the operating and construction staffs of all the railroads, then there would result a Federal agency approximating the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

Branch's Views Accepted.

The Senate accepted Branch's views, and restored the appropriation to its original total of $1,600,000. The bill went to conference, reached a compromise at the sum of $1,186,195, and in this form has been re-enacted by Senate and House. Branch explained that the CAA has jurisdiction over 44 civil airways, with a mileage of 25,400, 13 traffic control stations, 298 intermediate landing fields, 190 radio range and communication stations, 2130 airway beacons and more than 30,000 miles of teletype circuits. It regulates and periodically examines 11,159 registered civil aircraft and 53,067 private flyers, including students, in addition to 9884 mechanics, 290 dispatchers, 397 parachute riggers, 123 control-tower operators and 92 ground instructors.

One of the establishment's purposes, as defined by statute, is the encouragement and development of an air-transportation system adapted to present and future needs of national defense. In a letter to the National Aviation Forum on Jan. 24 of this year, President Roosevelt stated that "civil aviation is clearly recognized as the back log of national defense."

This end may best be achieved, declare spokesmen for the Authority, by making civil aviation so popular and safe that within the next 10 years the number of planes in service will be multiplied by 20. This, according to the present ratio between planes and pilots, would mean probably 1,000,000 trained flyers. It would mean a manufacturing industry which could be geared up to a replacement power of at least 20,000 planes per month. While it is cheaper to build new aircraft than to convert civilian into military planes, nevertheless there would be a vast stock of motors, radio equipment and parts which could be utilized in constructing bombing or combat ships.

Commenting on the Authority's ambition to help the United States take first place in civil aviation, one member asked:

"What would have happened in 1914 if victory had been known to depend on supremacy in automobile manufacture and use?"

$1.33 a Month for 111,000 Unless Legislature Acts and had her daughter's shoes half-soled. She had about $10 left for food until the next check arrived.

Now payments are being made regularly again, but because of a reduced appropriation and the addition of new families to the rolls, the family is receiving only $19.44 a month instead of the former $30. After deduction of $13 for rent and utilities, it will have $6.44 a month for food and other living expenses. It still owes $2 on the ton of coal, various sums to friends and $3 for milk. No more coal need be bought this summer, but now the woman is worried about ice; butter kept outdoors already is beginning to taste strong after a few days, and it is hard to see how ice can be made to fit into the budget.

The plight of this family, one of about 1300 receiving grants of aid to dependent children in St. Louis and the county, also is explained by the great difference between the appropriation recommended by the House and the amount the Social Security Commission estimated as the minimum requirements. Just as the biennial figure for direct relief was cut from $12,500,000 to $5,000,000, so the figure for dependent children was reduced from $6,453,000 to $3,250,000.

Unless some way can be found to increase these amounts, relief officials in St. Louis and indeed all over the state will continue to report that the situation is "becoming more critical every day."

NOT HALF OF 68,380 PATIENTS PAID HOSPITALS IN FULL

Dr. F. R. Bradley Says Cut in Community Fund Budget Is Serious for Needy.

Less than half of the 68,380 patients treated last year in 19 hospitals in St. Louis and the county, which obtain aid from the United Charities, were able to pay the full cost of their care, Dr. F. R. Bradley, acting superintendent of Barnes Hospital, stated in a talk over the Community Forum program on Station KSD last night.

There would be no annual deficits if all patients were able to pay fully for their care, Dr. Bradley declared. Last year the 19 institutions gave 552,006 days of free or part-pay care to patients. Dr. Bradley pointed out that the 19 hospitals represented an investment of $18,000,000 and spent a total of $4,000,000 annually for replacements and supplies.

Budgets requesting $1,064,954 from the United Charities were submitted by the hospitals this year, the speaker said. The budget committee cut this figure to $773,332 and, when the charities drive failed to reach its goal, the hospitals eventually received $520,197. "The reduction in budget can be translated into terms of men, women and children needing hospital service, but who must be denied that service because the funds have not been provided," Dr. Bradley said.

OCEAN MAIL PLANES TO REFUEL IN THE AIR

Imperial Airways Will Use Technique Developed by Endurance Flyers.

When British Imperial Airways mail planes begin crossing the North Atlantic this summer they will make use of aerial refueling, which was developed by American endurance flyers during the stunt era of aviation.

An Imperial Airways bulletin announced that two refueling planes are being shipped to Newfoundland for service. The planes are twin-engine bombers, which have been converted into flying "tankers." They will be used to furnish additional fuel to trans-Atlantic mail planes in flight, thus enabling the mail planes to start out with greater payloads. Two similar refuelers will be stationed at the Shannon base in Ireland.

The refueling technique, the bulletin states, calls for the refueler first to maneuver into position below the mail plane, from which a weighted cable is lowered. After the fueling hose is attached to the cable the tanker moves above the mail plane. The fuel hose is passed down and the supply of gasoline is then transferred. In this way, it is explained, a mail plane can take off for an Atlantic crossing with only several hours' fuel in its tanks, receiving the bulk of the gasoline from the tanker.

The aerial refueling program has been worked out under the supervision of Sir Allan Cobham, British air hero. It was used here years ago by Forest O'Brine and Dale Jackson, Lambert Field endurance flyers.

CATHOLIC CHARITIES ANNUAL SESSION TODAY

Archbishop Glennon to Address Meeting—Children to Give Musical Play.

The annual meeting of Catholic Charities, a federation of 47 welfare agencies giving assistance in various ways to more than 32,000 persons a year, will be held at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon in the Municipal Opera House. Archbishop John J. Glennon is to be the principal speaker.

A musical play based on the Hansel and Gretel fairy tale will be presented, with 280 children from the Catholic child care organizations participating.

The annual report of the Rev. John J. Butler, director of the Catholic Charities, prepared for distribution at the meeting, describes the welfare services performed with an expenditure of $1,511,794 last year. Thirty-one of the participating agencies received a total of $475,239 from United Charities.

Expressing gratitude for the United Charities contributions, Archbishop Glennon, in a letter incorporated in the report, says: "We hope that our Catholic people will continue to contribute generously to the United Charities campaign and help in this most worthy cause."

The two family care agencies, the Society of St. Vincent de Paul and Ladies of Charity, aided 1731 families, with 8604 individual members, last year, the report shows. Thirteen orphanages and schools helped a total of 749 children, and four day nurseries had an aggregate enrollment of 957 children.

Eleven hospitals provided 158,913 days of free care to indigent patients, and their clinics gave thousands of treatments without charge. Other agencies in the group attended the sick poor in their homes, distributed books and periodicals, gave lodging to the aged and provided education and recreation to the underprivileged.

Stocks Rise Slightly in Face of Bewildering News From Europe and Factors Called Adverse at Home

Volume of Transactions Remains Low—Average Price Up 1.31 Points for Week—Industrial Situation Reviewed.

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP).—Stock market prices jogged a little higher this week in the face of bewildering news reports from Europe and factors counted adverse at home.

The trading interest was wary, however, and the volume of transactions remained low. Most of the business, brokers said, was of the in-and-out variety, with little investment demand in sight.

The slight advance in prices were stimulated to an extent by strength in commodities and a certain amount of covering by shorts who frankly confessed themselves at sea over the complexities of the squabble between Germany and Poland and the meaning of other events in Europe. Then too, brokers said, the market appeared oversold and no heavy liquidation appeared.

Transfers for the two hours today were only 176,750 shares, against 172,330 last Saturday. The week's total was 2,638,880, against 2,857,840 a week ago. The Associated Press average of 60 issue was up .1 of a point at 45.5. On the week, this composite posted a net advance of 1.3 points. The Dow-Jones average of 65 stocks at 44.20 was .11 of a point higher for the day at 1,31 points up for the week.

Saturday's Session Slow.

In another one of the most sluggish sessions since last June, the stock market today managed to edge out of the week with minor fractional advances in the majority.

European developments provided little inspiration either way, and domestic news was more or less a stand-off. Although selling was negligible throughout, demand was equally light as traders followed the customary procedure of recent months in keeping commitments at a minimum over the week-end.

Apprehension over the soft coal tie-up, brokers said, was partly responsible for the day's apathy. Hope for a settlement here, though, was revived when President Roosevelt intervened with a call on deadlocked operators and miners to adjust their differences quickly in order to prevent serious industrial plant tie-ups.

Among Day's Gainers.

Stocks finishing with their heads moderately above water included Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, New York Central, Great Northern, Anaconda, North American, Westinghouse and Texas Corporation.

A shade behind were United States Steel, General Motors, Santa Fe, American Telephone, General Electric, Union Carbide and Consolidated Edison.

Likelihood of a further decline in steel mill operations next week, due partly to fuel shortage, was a restraining factor for these shares. Motors were indifferent. A pickup in last week's department store sales helped merchandising stocks.

Industrial Machine Slows Up.

The nation's industrial machine lost further momentum this past week, although many business leaders insisted it was ready to pick up speed again the moment European war tension lessened and some trade uncertainties at home cleared.

Automobile output backfired at Detroit, with assemblies dropping to 71,420 cars from 86,640 a week earlier. Electric power output slipped more than expected at this season. Retail trade puttered along without much pep. Steel mill operations hit another new low for the year.

But on the other hand, building construction—a cylinder of the industrial machine heavily primed by Washington—furnished a booster to business. And railway loadings, rising more than seasonally, gave activity an added helpful push.

Mining Strike Influence.

Bulking biggest as a stone in the road of business progress was continued stoppage of operations at Appalachian soft coal mines as operators and union representatives sweated in negotiations over a new worker wage contract. Industrial coal supplies were estimated to be only adequate to keep things going the rest of May, and transit lines in New York City pared the number of trains 25 per cent as fuel shortages loomed at electric power plants.

Spotlighting overseas news, and adding little to the clearing of European war tension, was Poland's rejection of Germany's demand for Danzig and a right-of-way through the Polish Corridor, though Polish officials said they were willing tto peacefuly discuss controversial points with their leaders.

The Associated Press index of industrial activity, with 1929-30 equalling 100, fell to 82.0 in the sharpest decline of the year to a new 1939 low. It was the fifth consecutive weekly decline for the measure. The latest figure compared with 84.0 in the preceding week and 66.8 in the like week of 1938.

While trends were tapering, word was circulated in financial circles that industrial leaders were abandoning efforts to woo administration officials into a joint recovery drive, and would press bills in Congress for repeal of so-called "curbs" on business.

The sharp decline in auto output was attributed principally to reduced production schedules by two companies. Estimates for second quarter production were now being put at around 850,000 units for the industry, contrasted with over 1,000,000 in the initial quarter. Despite the drop, however, car production for the week exceeded by around 18,000 units the outturn for the like week last year.

Steel Mill Activity.

Electric output, similarly, while shading under the preceding week, was well ahead of last year, the margin being 12.6 per cent.

And while retail trade showed little week-to-week improvement, aggregate dollar volume was 4 to 8 per cent ahead of a year ago. Moreover, further improvement in wholesale buying was noted, principally of seasonal goods for summer and early fall.

While steel mill operations, in a fifth consecutive weekly decline, dropped to the 1939 low of 47.8 per cent of capacity, the easing was attributed largely to slower auto steel orders. Contracts and inquiries for structural steel continued to rise as general building construction operations expanded.

Engineering construction awards for the week ended last Tuesday were 52 per cent bigger than in the preceding week and more than double a year ago. The rise was attributed to a sharp jump in public construction projects. Private building awards shaded lower.

In securities markets, most leading stocks tended slightly higher, with bonds also tilting upwards.

Wheat at Chicago during the period sold close to 10-month high levels. Commodities generally were somewhat firmer.

In foreign exchange dealings, leading European currencies moved unevenly in the narrow courses prescribed by the various official control funds.

Industrial Activity Index.

The Associated Press industrial activity index, with its components based on the latest figures and calculated on the basis of 1929-30 levels as 100, compared as follows:

	Lat. Wk.	Prev. Wk.	Year Ago.
*Composite index	82.0	84.0	66.8
*Automobile output	54.6	65.2	41.5
*Steel mill Act.	64.2	65.2	40.8
*Cotton Mfg.	101.6	102.1	78.3
Electric power use	112.7	113.4	103.2
Residential Bldg.	89.9	89.9	50.3
Total carloadings	61.2	60.4	56.7

*New 1939 low.

Most heartening to many trade observers were railway loadings figures. At 586,015 cars for the latest period they were 4.9 per cent above the preceding week and 7.9 per cent above last year. Miscellaneous freight loadings, a classification regarded as indicative of movement of goods of general industry, totaled 257,135 cars, a rise of 9257 cars over the previous week and a gain of 29,556 over the like week of 1938.

INDEX OF WHOLESALE COMMODITIES RISES

Grains and Textiles, in Van, Show Sharpest Gains of Year.

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP).—Wholesale commodities for immediate delivery, with grains and textiles in the van, jumped upward this week in the sharpest advance of the year.

It was the third weekly rise in a row for the Associated Press index of 35 weighted wholesale prices, which climbed to 66.50 from 65.35 a week earlier and 66.00 a year ago.

Wheat a Leader.

Wheat stepped smartly ahead in the grains division, with values close to ten-month highs. Stimulating the rise were reports of continued lack of rain in some dry Southwestern areas, with unfavorable crop comment again coming out of parts of Kansas and Nebraska. Corn and oats also advanced.

Silk jumped to the highest levels in eight years as visible supplies on hand dropped to the lowest since statisticians began compiling figures. Also ahead were wool and cotton.

Advancing among industrial raw materials were hides, rubber, lumber and tin.

Market basket items given higher price tags during the period included eggs, cocoa, flour and butter.

Hogs and lambs advanced in livestock markets.

Tilting downward against the general trend were steel scrap, burlap, sugar, lard and rye.

What Index Showed.

The Associated Press index, with components based on 1926 average prices as 100, compared as follows:

90-DAY STERLING DISCOUNT OFF 1C

Increasingly Optimistic View of Events Abroad Taken by Foreign Exchange Markets.

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP). — Sharp improvement today in the British pound due in 90 days tipped off the money experts to the increasingly optimistic view foreign exchange markets took of events abroad.

The discount on the 90-day pound dropped to 1⅝ cents from 1¾ cents Friday. A week ago the discount was 2 9-16 cents.

Spot rates kept in a narrow range. Sterling advanced ⅛ of a cent while most others, including the French franc, fell back a trifle.

Gold totaling $822,000 was engaged in England for shipment here, the Federal Reserve Bank reported.

Foreign exchange markets had a chance to catch their breath last week, as the European political thunder quieted.

However, evidence that trans-Atlantic money capitals were still restless was revealed in the weekly Bank of France statement, bankers here said.

French currency circulation jumped to the highest figure on record, which money men said was due to hoarding activity plus month-end business requirements. French financial papers, however, said the increase was due to repatriation of gold, which was then converted into currency.

Hoarding has increased substantially in most European countries in recent months, resulting in large increases in circulation.

Cheering news to banking centers was an increase of more than a full cent in the price of the British pound deliverable in 90 days.

Spot rates plotted a fairly narrow course. Except for small dips in the guilder and belga, important currencies were about unchanged.

Gold engagements through Friday dropped to $11,623,000 from $17,205,000 in the similar period last week, the Federal Reserve Bank reported.

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP).—Foreign exchange closing rates follow: Great Britain in dollars, others in cents. Great Britain, 4.68⅛; 60-day bills, 4.67⅛; Canada, Montreal in New York, 99.53⅛; Canada, New York in Montreal, 100.46⅞; Belgium, 17.02½; Denmark, 20.90; Finland, 2.07; France, 2.64⅞; Germany, 40.13; benevolent, 19.75; travel, 19.75. Greece, .85⅞; Hungary, 19.70; Italy, 5.26¼; Yugoslavia, 2:30; Netherlands, 53.42; Norway, 23.52; Poland, 18.87; Portugal, 4.27; Rumania, .72; Spain unquoted; Sweden, 24.12; Switzerland, 22.46; Argentina, 31.20n; Brazil, 5.90n; Mexico City, 20.10n; Japan, 27.32; Hongkong, 28.84; Shanghai, 16.17.

Rates in spot cables unless otherwise indicated. n—Nominal.

LONDON, May 6 (AP).—The United States dollar improved 1-16 of a cent in terms of sterling in foreign exchange trading today. Final rate for the unit was 4.68⅛ to the pound, compared with sterling at $4.68¼ in New York overnight.

French francs were net unchanged at 176.75 to the pound.

BONDS SHADE HIGHER ON TRADE FOR WEEK

Majority of Rail, Industrial, Utility and Foreign Issues Participate in Rise.

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP).—The bond market, buoyed by "selective buying," moved a shade higher in the past week, with the majority of rail, industrial, utility and foreign dollar issues on the upside at the end of the period.

Medium-priced bonds generally followed the course of the stock market, with sales drying up on occasional price dips, and values advancing as buyers sampled offerings. There was evidence holders were reluctant to part with issues if prices fell below certain minimums, while on the other hand prospective purchasers lost interest when values began mounting too fast, traders said.

Highest-grade, low-yield bonds, principally taken by institutional investors, moved steadily ahead in their own exclusive orbit, with many Treasury obligations touching highest levels in history.

Business started out at a walk last Monday with dealings the smallest since Aug. 5 last. Wednesday volume picked up with transactions at the fastest pace since the middle of last month. On other days turnover was what brokers described as "routine."

The price trend was little affected by business and trade news, which was unfavorably colored by a widened stoppage of soft coal mines.

Foreign bonds as a group were little changed on the latest outpouring of European news, including Poland's rejection of German demands for Danzig and a right-of-way through the Polish Corridor.

New offerings of the week at $45,600,000 were largely municipal issues. Noted with interest was sale of $35,700,000 of New York City serial bonds at a net interest cost to the city of 2.713008 per cent, the lowest interest cost New York City ever obtained on an issue of similar maturity.

Timid buying carried bond prices fractions to a point or so higher today. A handful of losses appeared, however, notably among U. S. Government loans.

Threats to the pace of the nation's industrial machine, incident to the soft coal tieup, were a restraining influence on activity, brokers said, but at that sales of $2,139,425, face value, were ahead of the 20-year record low last Saturday when turnover was $1,701,200.

Ending the short session with gains up to a point or so were American Water Works 6s at 104, Santa Fe 4s at 108¾, Firestone Tire 3½s at 104¼, Nickel Plate 4½s at 45½, and International Hydro Electric 6s at 82½.

Many issues were unchanged and a few lost fractionally, including Northern Pacific 4s, Missouri-Kansas-Texas 5s, Baltimore & Ohio convertible 4½s and Goodrich 6s.

There was only minor interest in Government bonds. Several traded at advances of 1-32 to 7-32 of a point and others changed hands at losses of 1-32 to 8-32.

Foreign dollar loans followed the general market pattern. Fractionally higher were Rome 6½s and German 7s. Poland 6s were 2 higher.

COMMODITY MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP).—A slightly higher trend was established in commodity markets, largely as a result of further improvement in the price of wheat.

At Chicago the major cereal added another ⅜ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel to recent gains and corn was ⅛ of a cent lower to ½ higher.

Cotton at New York gained 25 to 50 cents a bale and hides for future delivery ended up 12 to 16 points. Other staples closing a shade improved included wool tops, cottonseed oil, Rio coffee and the No. 4 sugar contract.

Unchanged to lower at New York were No. 3 sugar, rubber and some copper deliveries.

The Associated Press index of 35 important wholesale commodities declined at 66.35 per cent of the 1926 average compared with 66.50 per cent on Friday.

WEATHER MAP IS UNFAVORABLE, WHEAT PRICE UP

No Rain Reported Overnight in Southwest and Crop Complaints Continue to Come.

CHICAGO, May 6 (AP).—Reports of unfavorable weather in the domestic wheat belt dominated the market today and lifted prices more than a cent a bushel at times. Closing was ⅜@⅞ up.

No rain fell overnight in the Southwest. Continued crop complaints were received and there were reports of dust storms and high winds in parts of Kansas and Oklahoma. Although showery conditions were expected no important rain was forecast for the belt during the coming week.

Traders, therefore, were inclined to even up accounts for the week need and this, together with profit-taking on the advances, induced nervousness and a somewhat erratic market. May equaled the high on the movement at 75⅞, while the new crop months were within a fraction of the season's highs at 74⅜ for July and 74⅛ for September.

Wheat closed ⅜@¾ higher, July 73⅞@74, September 73¾@⅞; corn ⅛ off to ½ up, July 51¼@⅛, September 51⅞@52; oats, ¾@1⅜ up, July 32⅜@½; soybeans 1⅛@1⅜ up, July 94¾; rye, ¼@½ up, July 45¾; lard 2 to 8 cents higher.

Corn developed firmness after indifferent and quiet early trading. May contracts advancing as much as ⅝ cent. Scattered buying was influenced to some extent by strength in oats. The Buenos Aires corn market closed unchanged and Liverpool reported a quiet corn market.

Liverpool wheat closed unchanged to ⅜ off, or slightly better than expected, being aided by sale overnight of a cargo of Pacific Coast hard winter wheat to Shanghai. Rotterdam wheat closed ¼@¾ off.

Winnipeg closed ⅜@⅝ higher. The Kansas City wheat futures followed the Board of Trade and close ¾ to a cent higher. Minneapolis closed unchanged to ⅝ higher.

A flurry in oats boosted prices 2 cents under commission house buying. May oats, on which there have been no tenders so far this month, reached 34¼ cents, highest for any future since July, 1937.

Rye held firm under moderate buying and soybeans extended their recent advance. The May contract reached 96¼, up 1⅛ and at the best level in a year.

Lard prices advanced slightly, influenced by the rise in grains and some buying by packers.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, May 6.—In the cash grain section of the market wheat was steady. Supply was light and ran mostly to off grades. Trading basis eased a little on No. 2 red. Corn was ½c higher. Receipts were somewhat larger. Demand was good, but with buyers and sellers apart in price views some grain was carried over. Industries bought the yellow and mixed corn and outside order buyer the white. Premiums were unchanged, with No. 2 yellow selling 2¾c above the May figure, No. 1 mixed 2¼c above and No. 1 white 8¼c above. Oats were ¼c higher. The available supply was rather light. Demand was good. Mills were the purchasers.

COPPER DEMAND LAGS, PRICES MAINTAINED

Inquiry by British Government for Fair Amount of Red Metal.

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP).—Copper markets took a breathing spell this week, after the recent burst of activity.

Despite lagging demand, however, prices were maintained on all fronts. A leading producer quoted 10½ cents and a smelter 10¼ cents, while others were ¼ cent under these levels. Metal in the secondary market, available at one time as low as 10.05 cents, snapped back to 10.20 near the week end.

Top news in the export market was inquiry by the British Government for fair amounts of the red metal, apparently for armament purposes. The foreign price held close to 10.20 cents.

Lead markets reported fast turnover. Sales generally were in excess of production. The anticipated price boost failed to appear, due to lower lead quotations in the London market, and the base remained at 4.75 cents.

Zinc sales improved and the price held at 4.50 cents, East St. Louis.

Steel buying continued to drop. Reports of easier prices, while not confirmed, seemed likely as concessions are usually granted when demand dwindles.

Horses and Mules.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., May 6.—Horse and mule receipts continued light here the past week and the market displayed a fairly good tone. Good pairs of mares that were broke were moved to fairly good advantage and the well broken work horses were in request, as well as young mares to go South.

A fair movement of colt mules was noted, but work mules were quiet and smooth mouth offerings sold about like they have for the past two weeks.

Weekly sales will continue here during the current month and the annual colt and range horse sale is set for June 12-13. Dealers say there is inquiry for good fillies, young mares with colts and yearling and two-year-old mules.

NEW CROP DELIVERIES ARE FAVORED IN COTTON LIST

Declines at Liverpool Ignored—Closing Prices Near the Top.

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP).—New crop deliveries were favored by buyers in an active cotton futures market today, reversing the recent trend. Closing prices were 5 to 10 points higher.

Ignoring declines at Liverpool, Bombay and Liverpool traders bid persistently for the distant months. Offerings tightened as the session progressed and final quotations were close to the day's tops.

Selling came principally from Southern spot interests. The market took a fair amount of May liquidation in its stride.

The Bombay purchases were made at narrowing price differences between New York and Indian markets, although spreads widened in later dealings at Bombay.

While prices held firm in Worth Street textile markets, turnover was disappointing.

PACIFIC AIR BASE PLEA TO BE REVIVED IN HOUSE

Vinson to Ask That Funds Be Voted for Navy Stations on 3 Islands.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP).—House proponents of the navy's plan to establish a system of mid-Pacific air bases decided today to make a floor fight for the program in the hope of salvaging the major part.

When reporting the $770,000,000 navy bill this week the House Appropriations Committee turned down the Administration's request for $3,959,000 to start work on relatively small bases for long-range patrol lanes on Wake, Midway, Palmyra and Johnston islands.

Chairman Vinson (Dem.), of the House Naval Committee, said he would offer an amendment to restore the funds for the bases on Midway, Palmyra and Johnston islands, but would let the Wake project go by the board.

He indicated that by dropping the Wake project he hoped to win support for the others. He pointed out that Wake is the only one of the four islands located west of the 180th meridian, the line beyond which Republican House members recently said the United States' peacetime military operations should not go. The Republicans adopted this national defense policy during the bitter and successful fight earlier this session against making the Island of Guam a naval aviation outpost.

In eliminating the funds for the new air bases the Appropriations Committee said this was done because of the late date at which the estimates were submitted.

Informed legislators said, however, the air bases were sidetracked in an effort to win support of the Republican Committeemen for the proposal to build two 45,000-ton battleships—the navy's largest. It was learned that Representative Ditter (Rep.), Pennsylvania, was prepared to oppose the super-dreadnaughts unless the mid-Pacific air bases were abandoned.

DUKE OF WINDSOR TO TALK ON RADIO FROM BATTLEFIELD

Will Speak Monday at Verdun, France, in First Broadcast to World Since Abdication.

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP).—For the first time since his abdication speech to the world in December, 1936, the Duke of Windsor will be heard on the radio in the United States Monday afternoon, the National Broadcasting Co. announced tonight.

His address, from Verdun, France, where he is touring World War battlefields, will be broadcast over both NBC networks at 3 p. m. St. Louis time, the company said. The occasion and subject of his speech was not announced.

NBC said it had left a standing invitation with the Duke to speak over its facilities ever since his abdication. When Fred Bate, NBC London representative, renewed the invitation today, it said, he accepted.

The company said it would broadcast the address by short wave to South America, Europe, Australia and Africa.

WASHINGTON BUSINESS NOTES

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP).—The Federal Reserve Board estimates department store sales in the week ended April 29 were 6 per cent larger than in the corresponding week last year and that sales in the four weeks ended on the same date were 1 per cent ahead of last year.

The Census Bureau says shipments of prepared roofing in March totaled 2,909,556 squares, compared with 1,409,752 in February and 4,529,086 in March, 1938.

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, May 6 (U. S. D. A.)—A fairly large volume of business was transacted during the past week by Boston wool houses. Bulk of the sales, however, were of wools for shipment from the producing areas. Prices have shown a strengthening tendency on those fleece wools and on western grown range wools available for immediate shipment from the country. Spot wools in Boston were a little more active than last week, and prices were mostly slightly firmer, still being above prices of wools sold to arrive. Graded combing bright fleece wools, spot Boston, were quoted at 26 to 28 cents, in the grease, for fine delaine, at 27 to 29 cents for half bloods and at 29 cents for three-eighths and quarter bloods.

REORGANIZATION PLAN NO. 2 MAY BE LAST

It Is Due Tomorrow—Roosevelt Likely to Keep Back Third One Till January.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP).—An administration spokesman in the House said today President Roosevelt's second reorganization plan, scheduled to be sent to Congress Monday, probably would be the last submitted at this session.

The White House said that plan No. 2 would deal with transfers of departmental units from one department to another.

Representative Warren (Dem), North Carolina, author of the reorganization law, conferred with the President prior to the announcement. On his return to the Capitol, Warren told reporters he thought the President's third plan, expected to concern shifts within departments, would be withheld until next January.

"There may even be another interdepartmental plan submitted," Warren said, "and you've got to finish with the interdepartmental set-up before you begin intra-departmental changes."

Warren declined to discuss the nature of the changes to be proposed in the forthcoming plan.

Warren said the reorganization proposals need not prolong the current session of Congress despite the provision in the law requiring that Congress be in session 60 days after the plans are submitted.

According to that provision, Congress could not adjourn until June 24 without nullifying the first reorganization plan although the House already has approved it. Most members expect the session to continue until after that date.

Warren said it would be entirely proper for both the Senate and House to adopt a concurrent resolution declaring the 60-day waiting period unnecessary in view of the fact that the will fo Congress already had been expressed.

He said he expected someone would introduce a resolution calling for the rejection of the second plan as Representative Taber (Rep.), New York, did with regard to the first plan.

G. A. HASEMANN & SONS CO. FILES FOR REORGANIZATION

Lists Assets of $53,000 and Debts of $46,000; Store Fixtures Manufacturers.

A petition for reorganization under the amended Bankruptcy Act was filed in United States District Court yesterday by the G. A. Hasemann & Sons' Manufacturing Co., Seventh and Barton streets.

The firm, which makes store fixtures, lists assets of $53,933 and debts of $46,810, but states that its assets are not readily convertible to cash and it cannot meet current liabilities. As a result, several creditors have sued, the petition relates. Debts include unpaid wages, taxes, accounts and sums due bondholders.

Officers of the firm expressed the belief that, given a reasonable opportunity, they can work out of the difficulty as they have numerous orders in preparation for installation. The firm owns the building it occupies.

BLOOD SPOT CLEW FAILS IN HUNT FOR ARMY CAPTAIN

Officer Bitten by Dog in Auto, Authorities Learn; H. L. Flood Missing Two Weeks.

PORTLAND, Me., May 6 (AP).—Blood spots found in the automobile of the missinf Captain, Henry L. Flood, Fifth United States Infantry officer and former West Pointer, were discounted by Fort Williams army officers tonight as a factor in his 14-day disappearance.

Capt. Rowland Street, regimental assistant adjutant, said inquiries disclosed the stains resulted several weeks ago when Flood was bitten on the hand by a dog.

The spots were discovered when Flood's car was found abandoned in Lewistown, three days after he left his Cape Elizabeth home April 22.

ROOSEVELT TO WEST POINT

Visit to Military Academy June 12 Is Indicated.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP).—President Roosevelt probably will address the graduating class at West Point June 12.

This was learned today when Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington baseball team, called at the White House to invite President Roosevelt to participate in a baseball centennial celebration at Cooperstown, N. Y., on the same date. It was understood that Griffith was told the President would be unable to attend because of plans to go to West Point.

JUDGE COINS WORD FOR INSURANCE MURDER

Woman "Petrilloized," He Says, Meaning She Was Murdered.

PHILADELPHIA, May 6 (AP).—Judge Harry S. McDevitt coined a word today while five persons were being arraigned in the investigation of insurance murder syndicate. It is "petrilloized." It is formed from the name of two Philadelphia members of a gang which detectives think may have killed as many as 100 persons over a 10-year period. They are Herman Petrillo, convicted, with a mandatory death sentence, and his cousin, Paul Petrillo, charged with murder. Both have been named as leaders of the plot.

The Judge used the word while Police Capt. James Kelly was accusing Joseph Schwartz of poisoning his mother-in-law.

"There was incompatability with his mother-in-law so she was petrilloized?" the Judge asked. "Yes, that's what it amounts to," Prosecuting Attorney Vincent McDevitt replied. "There was insurance involved, but that was not the primary motive in this case."

Schwartz was held without bail on a charge of murder.

Woman Held for Trial.

Mrs. Christina Cerrone was held for trial on charges of murder. She operated a rooming house where Rafael Caruso lived. Detectives have testified Caruso was drowned by members of the gang.

Arrests late in the week raised the total in custody to 20. One is a physician, Dr. Horace D. Perlman, held on a charge of conspiracy. The prosecution accused him of furnishing victims for the ring.

Three more widows, Mrs. Anna Arena, Mrs. Rose Davis, and Mrs. Dora Sherman, were held in connection with the deaths of their husbands. Mrs. Arena's husband, Joseph, died in the sea off the New Jersey coast. Investigators, said there was a conspiracy to drown him.

Others held are: Samuel Sortino, accused in connection with the drowning of a man in the Schuylkill River at Philadelphia; Gaetano Cicinati, an insurance agent; and Schwartz.

Poison Usually Used.

Poison was used in most of the deaths recorded so far. Autopsies on exhumed bodies showed some victims were killed by a concoction known to members of the ring as "witch's brew," while others were given hemlock, ancient poison which the philosopher, Socrates, was forced to drink.

One woman is held in connection with the death of her husband who was killed by an automobile. Witnesses at Petrillo's trial told how members of the ring discussed using sand bags and deadly typhoid fever germs.

SHARKS GET MAN WASHED OFF SHIP BY FREAK WAVE

Sailor Reaching for Life Buoy Apparently Jerked Under Water Alongside Freighter.

NORFOLK, Va., May 6 (AP).—The story of a sailor's death among sharks in the Gulf Stream when almost within the grasp of rescuers was reported to British Consul James Guthrie today by the skipper of the freighter Huncliffe.

Crewmen of the British ship, bound from Galveston to Newport News, Va., said she was several hundred miles southeast of Cape Henry Wednesday when a freak wave rose out of the moderate to rough seas, crashed over the bow and swept Storekeeper James Heagan overboard.

Heagan, a powerful swimmer, was making good progress toward the ship as she hove to. A life buoy was tossed overside and he headed toward it, apparently in good condition. Men moved to the davits to lower a lifeboat. Then they saw sharks.

A few minutes later, Heagan cried out, threw up his arms and sank as if jerked.

Two other vessels joined in the search and cruised about with the Huncliffe for four hours but no further sign of the man was seen, crewmen reported.

Heagan was from Salford, near Liverpool, England.

Military Pageant for Somoza Gesture to Latin-Americans

"Good Neighbor" Idea Carried Out in Fact That British King Will Get No Better Than Nicaragua's President.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP). — A tiny military pageant rolled its swift mechanized way up historic Pennsylvania avenue this week; it took only a few minutes to pass a given point; of all the displays of military pomp and power that Pennsylvania avenue has known in nearly eight decades, whatever their purpose, this was one of the smallest, yet it carried by careful design a message of meaning.

Around the coming of President Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua, the Washington Government clustered a military ceremonial of reception unusual in pattern and at variance with every precedent.

Instead of a squadron or two of clattering, besabered cavalry, it was a platoon of swift, smooth-running light tanks that formed the escort for President Roosevelt and his guest. Overhead 50 planes roared in parade formation. That was all. Yet ingenuity of army staff specialists was given free rein to convey an impression. What was it?

Symbols of Power.

First, it was a military display pointed toward peace, not war; but modern weapons of war glittered as symbols of power if America was aroused to action by international aggression in this hemisphere. That was the meaning of the tanks and planes. They were a portent of American industrial preparedness.

There was significant contrast between this American military show and displays of massed armed power in Russia, Germany and Italy in recent years. Troops lining the Washington route were there merely to form a peaceful framework to the picture. Thus through the spectacle ran a graphic representation of the objectives of American foreign policy. It illustrated the conception of that national defense program voiced by President Roosevelt and underwritten in Congress—that this nation is not war-minded, but is committed to defense of this hemisphere against all attack.

Neighbor Policy Applied.

There was another message in that pageant. Along the same way soon will pass the King of England. To him will be accorded like honors, neither more nor less. That is what the Roosevelt "good neighbor" doctrine means, and President Somoza was the first beneficiary of its ceremonial expression since the world peace horizon was darkened by new war clouds.

As a gesture of Pan-American solidarity, the stage setting provided by the Washington Government to greet the Nicaraguan President was calculated to catch Latin-American attention.

The vast British commonwealth on which the sun never sets and little Nicaragua are equals in the family of nations by American good neighbor concepts. That is the message the Somoza reception was carefully calculated to carry to Latin American eyes which read of it in print or see it in news pictures.

Women Assail Military Display for Nicaraguan Guest.

The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom protested today "the great military display" used in receiving President Somoza of Nicaragua, calling it "alien to the practice of American democracy."

Delegates at the annual meeting of the United States section of the League said in a resolution that they were happy that Somoza's welcome was cordial, but expressed hope that such greetings in the future would not be "in the manner used by military dictatorships."

League members urged President Roosevelt not to be discouraged, but to persist in his efforts to call a conference for "real world settlement." In another resolution, they asked the President to take steps for the calling of a world constitutional convention which would draw up a constitution for the "all-inclusive, democratic, non-military federation of nations essential to the life of civilized men."

Declaring there were still unsettled boundaries between American republics, the League urged the President to initiate a movement among nations of this hemisphere to settle by conference and agreement all pending boundary questions.

Other resolutions urged the admission of German refugee children and continuation of the LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee, pledged support of "mandatory type" neutrality legislation and a war referendum amendment, and opposed conscription.

Delegates denounced the Hobbs bill to provide for the detention of deportable aliens.

WESTBROOK PEGLER ASKED TO TELL GRAND JURY OF CRIME

Writer Called on for Basis of His Charge That Miami, Fla., Is Lawless.

MIAMI, Fla., May 6 (AP).—Westbrook Pegler, the columnist, was asked by G. Duncan Brossier, foreman, today to appear before the Dade County grand jury to support charges he made recently about crime conditions here.

Pegler alleged lawlessness was unbridled in Miami, that vice was awaiting the return of Al Capone to his Palm Island home to rule as its overlord; that sinister gangster control had a strangle hold on legalized racing and that the situation was abetted by self-seeking Legislators who accepted employment at the race tracks in exchange for vote control.

"Some of your references," said Brossier's telegram to Pegler, "to the operations of racketeers lack sufficient information upon which we could summon such persons before the grand jury for questioning, and the grand jury would deem it a favor to this community if you would be good enough to come here and give whatever information you may have."

WORKERS IN PRIVATE INDUSTRY UP 6,750,000 IN SIX YEARS

Total in Non-Farming Jobs 48,000,000, Says Miss Perkins, Predicting Housing Boom.

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP).—Almost 6,750,000 more workers were employed in non-agricultural private industries in March, 1939, than in March, 1933, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins said today in a speech praising recent Federal labor legislation.

"Today we have in non-agricultural private industry 48,000,000 workers, and prospects for further advance are good," she said at a luncheon of the Mount Holyoke College Club of New York. Predicting a boom in the housing industry, she said indications were that more than 400,000 homes would be constructed with private capital in 1939.

She asserted industrial relations were improving, that there were fewer strikes and that idleness was decreasing.

G. A. BALL AT 76 REGAINS MASTERY OF RAIL SYSTEM

R. R. Young Defaults on $2,375,000 Note, Control of 23,000-Mile Van Sweringen Lines Shifts.

CLEVELAND, May 6 (AP).—Through a strange chain of railroad financing, 76-year-old Geor A. Ball is again the apparent master of one of America's greatest railroad networks—the 23,000-mile, $3,000,000,000 system which the Van Sweringen brothers once controlled.

Ball, who rescued the Van Sweringens from financial collapse only to find himself directing their railroads after their deaths, disposed of the control two years ago. He obtained from a New York stock broker and associates $4,000,000 cash and a $2,375,000 note.

Yesterday that note, backed by 1,200,000 shares of Alleghany Corporation stock, fell due. Today, undramatically, Ball announced its default and his re-entry into railroad financing.

Thomas H. Jones, attorney for a charitable foundation set up by Ball, made this brief announcement:

Messrs. Robert R. Young and Allan P. Kirby and their associates have surrendered to the foundation the 1,200,000 shares of Alleghany Corporation common stock held as collateral for their $2,375,000 note, thus revesting to the foundation the foundation ownership of such stock."

Denial by Young's Forces.

Young is the 42-year-old New Yorker who joined Kirby and others in taking over in 1937 the control of Alleghany Corporation, top holding company for the Chesapeake & Ohio and other less prosperous railroads.

Partisans of Young were quick to deny that surrender of the stock meant immediate control for Ball's foundation. They said Ball could not muster sufficient stock to call a special stockholders' meeting, with the result present directors would remain at least until the next regular meeting in May, 1940.

But Young's hold on the system has seemed to be crumbling for several months, financial men pointed out. C. & O.'s board was enlarged, over his protest, to include representatives of New York's Guaranty Trust Co., and last month he was dropped from two important directors' committees of this road, highly profitable key of the Van Sweringen group.

$5,000,000 Suit Pending.

Young has pending, however, a $5,000,000 suit against Ball. This suit charges Ball illegally engaged in certain stock exchange transactions to create "both actual and apparent active trading in the securities of the Alleghany Corporation." Thus, Young contends, he was led to pay too much for the Alleghany common.

There are 4,500,000 Alleghany shares outstanding. Young's syndicate in 1937 obtained 1,933,810, counting the 1,200,000 put up against the note. This total has been sufficient to swing nominal control. The belief has been widespread in Wall Street that Young recently disposed of Alleghany stock he held outright, but he said this belief was unwarranted.

The Van Sweringen brothers, O. P. and M. J., who started as Cleveland real estate promoters, were hard hit by depression.

Ball Buys Stock at Auction.

Bankers, abandoning hope of regaining $48,000,000 lent them, auctioned off stock held as collateral. Ball, at their urging, paid $3,121,000 for the lot. Inquiry by a Senate committee showed the actual cost of 2,000,000 Alleghany shares was $274,682.

Ball let the brothers keep control. Then they died insolvent, in 1935 and 1936, and Ball became a railroad financier.

Besides C. & O., the Van Sweringen holdings encompassed coal companies, car loading concerns, and several other railroads—Nickel Plate, Pere Marquette, Erie, Missouri Pacific and Chicago & Eastern Illinois. The last three of these companies now are in trusteeship, with the amount of Alleghany control in them, if any, to be decided after their reorganizations are completed.

Ball was a prosperous, but not widely known glass manufacturer until the Van Sweringen alliance. For years he has been a leading capitalist of Muncie, Ind., where he and his brothers make most of the fruit jars which lined housewives' shelves.

G. A. BALL AT 76 REGAINS MASTERY OF RAIL SYSTEM

R. R. Young Defaults on $2,375,000 Note, Control of 23,000-Mile Van Sweringen Lines Shifts.

CLEVELAND, May 6 (AP).—Through a strange chain of railroad financing, 76-year-old George A. Ball is again the apparent master of one of America's greatest railroad networks—the 23,000-mile, $3,000,000,000 system which the Van Sweringen brothers once controlled.

Ball, who rescued the Van Sweringens from financial collapse only to find himself directing their railroads after their deaths, disposed of the control two years ago. He obtained from a New York stock broker and associates $4,000,000 cash and a $2,375,000 note.

Yesterday that note, backed by 1,200,000 shares of Alleghany Corporation stock, fell due. Today, undramatically, Ball announced its default and his re-entry into railroad financing.

Thomas H. Jones, attorney for a charitable foundation set up by Ball, made this brief announcement:

LEATHER CLOTHES MAKER PURCHASES 5-STORY FACTORY

Western Concern Acquires Model Structure at 2850 South Jefferson Avenue From Rice Stix Dry Goods Co.

The five-story factory building at 2850 South Jefferson avenue was purchased yesterday by the Western Leather Clothing Co., composed of Harry Epstein, Nathan Floom and Lester Handleman, following negotiations begun several weeks ago. It was owned by the Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., which formerly occupied it as a shirt factory. Cornet & Zeibig, Inc., handled the transaction.

The site has a frontage on Jefferson avenue of 166 feet by a depth of 122 feet, extending to a 20-foot alley. It is two blocks south of Gravois avenue.

The building comprises 84,000 square feet of usable floor space, exclusive of the basement, given over largely to the heating plant and electric power and light generating equipment. Construction is of reinforced concrete. Flooring throughout the structure is of maple over concrete. There are both passenger and freight elevators. Built well within its lot lines, the building has light on all sides.

Erected in 1911.

Erected in 1911 by the Rice-Stix company, the structure is regarded as one of the finest of its type in the city. The purchase is conspicuous as the largest in the industrial field so far this year.

Western Leather is now housed in the Epstein Building at 1427-29 Lucas avenue, which is inadequate to its requirements. In the South Jefferson avenue building, it will be equipped with a capacity of 8000 garments a day, which will give it rank with the leading manufacturers in this field in the United States.

Negotiations were concluded last week for other properties in the industrial centers of the city, but details were withheld pending execution of deeds.

The two-story building at the northwest corner of Third and Barry streets, occupying a lot 60 by 140 feet, has been purchased by undisclosed interests represented by the Henry R. Weisels Co. in the negotiations. It contains 15,000 square feet of available floor space. The Hartman Manufacturing Co. formerly occupied the building, which was owned by G. Naumann, A. G. Mosen and others. Plans in connection with the purchase were not disclosed.

Swift & Co. Make Lease.

Swift & Co. meat packing concern has leased ground at the southeast corner of Wright street and Broadway, owned by the Barnes Hospital. The site is improved with a two-story building occupied by the St. Louis Hotel Supply Co. The Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. arranged the lease.

38 PCT. INCREASE IN HOME FINANCING

Mortgage Loans for Dwellings in March Totaled $312,465,000 Survey Shows.

A sharp rise in home-mortgage financing activity in March over February, greater than the normal seasonal increase for this period, was announced yesterday by the Division of Research and Statistics of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board on the basis of nationwide reports.

Total mortgage recordings by all types of home-mortgage lenders during March were reported as $312,465,000, or 38 per cent more than in the preceding month. Savings and loan associations, reports said, accounted for $92,337,000 of these recordings, an increase of $23,497,000 over February.

"Although other types of institutional lenders reported greater percentage gains in March business over February, savings and loan associations experienced the largest dollar increase and maintained their position as the most active lender in the home-mortgage field, accounting for 33 per cent of the number and 30 per cent of the amount of these mortgages," a statement from the Division of Research said.

The mortgage recordings, gathered by the board in co-operation with savings and loan executives and title companies throughout the United States, cover all non-farm mortgages of $20,000 or less.

The report on mortgage recordings showed that the largest percentage of gain—47 per cent—in March over February had been registered by insurance companies. The increases reported for the same period by other types of lenders were: banks and trust companies, 38 per cent; mutual savings banks, 40 per cent; individuals, 34 per cent, and others, 43 per cent.

Reports on residential construction showed that 23,321 dwelling units were built at a cost of $85,434,200 in March as compared with 23,278 at a cost of $81,870,200 in February, and 13,290 valued at $49,404,500 in March, 1938. These figures were based on building permits reported to the United States Department of Labor.

WAREHOUSE ON MANCHESTER AVENUE TAKEN UNDER LEASE

A warehouse comprising between 45,000 and 50,000 square feet at the northwest corner of Manchester and Taylor avenues, has been leased by the Cook Paint & Varnish Co. of Kansas City. The site has a frontage of 250 feet on Manchester by a depth of 200 feet on Taylor.

Modern in construction, the one and one-half story building will be occupied for offices and warehouses as a source of supply for stores in this territory.

The building is owned by the Berenice Holding Co. The Wrisberg Real Estate Co. handled the negotiations in this connection.

DENTAL CONCERN TO OCCUPY LOCUST STREET QUARTERS

Berry-Kofron Dental Laboratory has leased the entire fourth floor of the four-story building at the northwest corner of Eleventh and Locust streets, owned by the Thomas Dunn estate of which the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. is co-trustee. Robert Kofron is president and Harry Kofron is secretary of the Berry-Kofron Co. The real estate department of the bank arranged the lease.

Eighteen Thousand FHA Loans
...Local Bank Gives National Service
This bank has just completed its eighteen thousandth FHA Loan. How this compares with other individual banks in the United States we do not know, but certainly it means easy leadership in Missouri.
MORE THAN TEN MILLION DOLLARS has been lent to borrowers in almost every state in the Union, and the money has been used for property repair, home modernization, building, buying, and mortgage refinancing.
In August, 1934, Industrial completed the first FHA loan made in St. Louis—a $1000 loan to repair a home. In July, 1939, this FHA feature is due to expire, and while Congress is considering extension, why take any chances?
If you wish to take advantage of this part of FHA, come in now, and see Industrial.
18,000 completed loans is your assurance of experienced and sympathetic service.

BUILDING CONTRACTS SHOW SHARP RISE

Analysts Say This May Place Heavy Industry as Leader of Recovery.

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP). — Another sharp increase in construction contracts in April has led some Wall Street analysts to the belief that building may yet pave the way to putting heavy industry again at the leadership of recovery.

So far, many agree, the comeback from the 1937-38 recession has been largely a consumers' goods cycle, although building, stimulated by the PWA and Federal Housing Authority, has increased steadily for about a year.

For the first 22 days of April, F. W. Dodge Corporation estimated, construction contracts rose to $231,001,000, a gain of 61 per cent over the $143,346,000 reported for the corresponding period last year. The April figure was 15 per cent higher than for the first three weeks of March. Public contracts rose 75 per cent above those of last April and private construction 51 per cent.

The preponderance of public construction is due largely, analysts say, to the maturing of PWA projects that have been planned for many months. The bulk of the money thus to be expended is expected to make its presence felt in mid-summer and the early fall, so that this branch wil continue a heavy factor for some time.

Private construction, especially in the residential field, continued to be stimulated by the FHA financing plan, and while the volume of financing dropped slightly under the March figure, it was still far ahead of that for April, 1938. Of the number of mortgages accepted for insurance in the first four months of the year, about 72 per cent covered new house construction.

Latest estimates of needed home construction, disclosed in a survey by the Department of Commerce, put it at 550,000 non-farm dwelling units and 40,000 farm units annually for the next five years. This compares with 360,000 units erected in 1938 and 327,000 in 1937.

The estimates, based on probable increases in family population, were prepared by Lowell J. Chawner, chief of the economic research division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. His figures anticipate an increase of 400,000 new families annually during the next 10 years and between 350,000 and 400,000 each year for the decade between 1950 and 1960.

There were 31,827,000 families in the United States in 1935 against 15,976,000 in 1900. Projecting past figures, it is expected there will be 34,221,000 in 1940 and 42,649,000 in 1960.

Chawner's report asserts fluctuations in residential construction are interrelated with changes in the number of marriages and divorces, deaths, migration and family income. Peaks in construction tend to lag a year or more behind peaks in demand created by the increasing number of new families.

The concern manufactures an electric iron employing steam in its operation. The property is owned by the John E. Stroh estate, which was represented by Duke-Young, Inc., with Griffith & Groves Real Estate Co. acting for the lessee.

NEGOTIATIONS CLOSED FOR TRACT IN LINCOLN COUNTY

As reported by the Nancy Jane Toner Farm Agency, Catherine Gemke of St. Louis County has concluded negotiations for the purchase of 1479 acres of land near Old Monroe in Lincoln County, Mo. Two Concerns Renew Leases.

The Thom McAn Shoe Co. has renewed the lease on its quarters at 712 Olive street. This company has been a tenant of this building for a number of years.

Another renewal was that by the National Shirt Shops of Missouri of its lease on its storeroom at 708 Olive street. This company recently renewed the lease on its store at 716 Washington avenue, enhancing it with a modern front and installing new fixtures.

Negotiations incident to these renewals were handled by Arthur S. Martin & Son.

ASSOCIATIONS LEND $73,378,000 IN MARCH

Building & Loan Organizations Report Largest Loan Volume Since Last August.

CHICAGO, May 6 (AP).—Savings, building and loan associations disbursed $73,378,000 during March, the largest monthly volume since last August, the United States Building & Loan League reported today.

The March total boosted the 1939 first quarter figure to $187,253,000, 13 per cent better than the like 1938 quarter and a two-year high for the period.

March loans were 26 per cent bigger than February's and 12 per cent ahead of March a year ago.

Reflecting the nation's first quarter increase in home building, loans advanced during March for this purpose by the association set a nine-year record for the month, totaling $21,254,000, and boosted the quarter's construction loans to $53,380,000, topping by 12.4 per cent any first quarter in the past 10 years.

More than a third of the $187,253,000 loans during the quarter went directly for employment of building tradesmen through new construction and modernization, according to A. D. Theobald, Chicago, assistant vice-president of the league.

Home purchase loans accounted for $24,705,000 or 33.7 per cent of all money loaned in March, an indication, Theobald said, of at least a seasonal improvement in the real estate market. Thrift and home financing institutions supplied $61,326,000 to support the market for residential properties during the first three months.

The February-March increase in total loan volume was less than in the previous three years, but this was due largely to the fact that January and February were the record months for the decade in volume of loans granted, Theobald said.

The concern's organization occupies quarters on the first floor of the structure. Offices comprise the second floor. The entire building is air-conditioned.

Francis & Remington, Inc., has been appointed exclusive agent for the sale and development of Huntleigh Woods on the west side of Lindbergh boulevard, about half a mile south of Clayton road, and for Colonial Park on the west side of Gay avenue, about 500 feet north of Ladue road.

Four houses conceived on a pretentious scale are under construction in Huntleigh Woods. Winding drives are being constructed, together with other improvements.

Colonial Park is a new development partly in Clayton and partly in Ladue. Sewer mains are now being installed and the work of grading is nearing completion. Entrance gates are under construction. There are plans under way for the erection of 10 houses in Colonial Park, ranging in price from $9000 to $10,500.

Francis has been identified with the marketing of several high class developments, including notably Claverach Park, Moorlands addition and Davis place. S. Brooks Remington, vice-president of Francis & Remington, Inc., has served as sales manager of various important West End developments.

INVESTMENT COMPANY LEASES BUILDING AT 240 S. BOYLE AVE.

The Storz Instrument Co. has leased the two-story building at 240 South Boyle avenue, in the industrial district of Duncan avenue. The lessee will take possession when the requisite alterations have been made and machinery installed. The real estate department of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. handled the negotiations. The property is owned by the St. Louis Comey Co.

Milton Oil Leases Building.

The Milton Oil Co. has taken a long term lease on a service and filling station nearing completion at the northwest corner of Jefferson avenue and Winnebago street. The structure is ultra modernistic in design. A super market structure recently was built for the Great Atlantio Tea Co. on adjoining ground. The Glick-Watell Realty Co. negotiated the lease.

Walnut Street Lease.

The Layer Distributing Co., headed by Clarence Layer, formerly a partner in the Artophone Co., has closed negotiations for a lease on quarters at 814-16-18 Walnut street. The concern will act as distributor of records, electric appliances and kindred lines. The lease was made through the Andrean Leasing Co.

HOUSES UNDER WAY FOR 1426 FAMILIES

Missouri and Illinois Projects Started in First Quarter to Cost $7,559,000.

Construction of one and two family houses started in Eastern Missouri and in Southern Illinois during the first quarter of 1939 called for a total investment, exceeding that for the corresponding quarter of 1938 by more than $3,000,000. The new houses will provide accommodations for more than 1426 families.

C. S. Bennett, St. Louis manager of Home Owners' Catalogs, published by F. W. Dodge Corporation, who has made a study of the current activities in this area, summarized his findings as follows:

"The one and two family houses built in Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, under contracts awarded during the first quarter of this year, will use labor and materials worth $7,559,000," Bennett revealed. "The comparative value of commitments made during the three-months period of 1938 was $4,460,000.

"When the houses are finished, 1426 families will move into them, many from out-of-date houses, some even from sub-standard houses. The expenditures of the 1938 period provided for only 942 families. It has been established, clearly, that modern, well equipped homes lift the spirits of their families with new comforts and greater leisure. This important contribution is too often overlooked in placing a value on new homes."

Bennett concluded with the comment that "it is highly significant that practically all of the one and two family houses built in Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois are privately owned."

SUBURBAN PROPERTY FOR SALE

It's too late...

SEE IT TODAY!

To further your knowledge of good construction, we have selected an uncompleted house and have engaged a competent architect to be present today to point out to you the things which you should look for when you purchase your home. Here is your chance to see what we've been talking about.

. . . when the basement starts to leak, the walls begin to crack, or the floors start to settle, to say to your wife, "We should have checked into this."

You don't have to take somebody else's word for it . . . the way to be sure is to know for yourself. Good homes aren't just an accident—they're BUILT THAT WAY. And the best way to be really sure that they're built right is to see them while they're under construction. Check the workmanship before you buy the house . . . it pays to be curious.

ALMS WINS PIMLICO OAKS BY THREE LENGTHS OVER OTRA

WINNER'S SHARE IS LARGEST IN RACE'S HISTORY

Mrs. Pelleteri, Owner, Receives $10,175—22,000 Cheer Victory of Favorite in 16th Running of Event

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Baltimore, May 6 (AP).—The sixteenth, and richest, running of the Pimlico Oaks this afternoon went to Alms, a daughter of St. Brideaux and Bonus, and thus a half-sister to Twenty Grand.

A crowd of 22,000, who sweltered in unusual heat, saw Mrs. Anthony Pelleteri's filly cover the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:47 4-5 to be three lengths clear of King Ranch's Otra at the finish. Third, another two lengths away was Shandon Farm's Morstep, just a nose before Solar Flight from the stable of Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords.

Victory for Alms was a popular one with the fans for she was the 8 to 5 favorite in the field of seven which went postward. By her victory, she enriched the Pelleteri coffers by $10,175, the largest amount to the winner in the history of the race. Mrs. Pelleteri also received a handsome trophy.

The start of the Oaks was good for all except Wise Lady, owned by Belair Stud. She stumbled and lost all chance. Otra set the pace well into the back stretch when Solar Flight moved to the front, only to be replaced on the final bend by the hard-charging Alms.

Once in front, Alms proved her superiority conclusively. Otra came on again to gain second money handily while Morstep nipped the tiring Solar Flight right on the wire. Charley Stevenson was on Alms and he made no mistakes.

MICHIGAN STATE WINS OVER NOTRE DAME IN WILD AFFAIR, 14-9

EAST LANSING, Mich, May 6 (AP).—Michigan State trounced the Notre Dame baseball team, 14 to 9, today, making 17 of their 18 hits off Hunthausen in six innings. Rex Ellis held the Spartans to one safety in two frames. Paul Derrickson pitched the distance for State and allowed 12 blows.

A home run by Ken Oberbruner in the fifth with the bases loaded put Notre Dame ahead, 7 to 6, but a homer by George Owen in State's half made them even and in the sixth the Spartans capitalized on Irish errors to shove across five runs. An Irish pinch batter, Charles Farrell, hit for the circuit in the ninth with one on.

Score:

Notre Dame	2 0 0 0 5 0 0 0 2—	9	12	7
Mich. State	1 0 5 0 1 5 0 2 x—	14	18	1

ROLLA'S GOLF TEAM DEFEATS BILLIKENS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ROLLA, Mo., May 6.—The Missouri School of Mines golf team won its sixth victory of the season here this afternoon by defeating the St. Louis University quartet, 13 to 5. Floyd Watts, M. I. A. A. titleholder, played the 18 holes in 71, one under par, to trim William O'Brien, St. Louis ace, 3 to 0. O'Brien had 81. Charles Clarkson, Miner second man, won 2½ points from Earl Lankau, although Lankau had 77, against Clarkson's 78.

The results:

Tourists to Minnesota.

The Minnesota Tourist Bureau is making preparations to care for 2,000,000 sportsmen-vacationists this season. While making additional preparations for the expected record-breaking crowd, the Conservation Commission found that the title, "Land of 10,000 Lakes," as applied to Minnesota, is a misnomer. Actually, there are 11,007 pure-water lakes in the State supporting 20,000,000 acres of wilderness. This year, 1,500,000,000 fish were planted in Minnesota waters. Gala resort statistics point out that there are two national forests, 27 State forests, 46 States parks and recreational areas, 390 tourist camps and 2500 lake resorts from which to choose.

How to Fish—The Lake.

A questionnaire was recently circulated among a large number of guides and expert fishermen in the Lake of the Ozarks area, and the results were tabulated by Benny Kessler, director of Camp Wa-Can-Da for boys at the headwaters of the Grand Glaize. The results may offer a solution to some of us who invariably come back without the limit.

"Most anglers drag their lures too fast for lake fishing. The slower the action the better. Many use too large plugs; smaller ones should be tried and the action slowed down. Disturbances, even slight, must be eliminated more than the majority of lake fishermen think. Fly fishermen should use at least a 3-0 spinner.

"When using artificials, work the shaded shorelines. Only rarely will the angler take a fish from shadeless deep water when using artificials. Early morning and late evening are the best times to fish the lake, with about 70 per cent of those taking part in the question-answers preferring the dawn hours.

"Shorelines must be studied. As the summer gets along, the shoreline will drop. Right now a lot of shoreline is in very deep water. More study should be made by fishermen of the waters; especially where the old channels and springs are. Usually, small coves lying close to the old channels are the best productive spots.

"Too many anglers when arriving at the Lake look at the Lake proper and, if it is murky, give up. They forget that there are many arms which, if followed back, invariably lead to good fishing grounds.

"Crappie fishing is what thousands visit the lake for. These areas are often in the larger bays and do not relate as closely to the original channel as does the black bass fishing.

"The biggest trouble, according to nearly every expert fisherman, is that visitors do not spend time enough studying the waters where they fish. They go according to where it "looks good," and not where it should be good."

This writer might add that a post-graduate course of the Lake might be a good idea for some of the guides to follow. Perhaps one guide, well-remembered, failed in his shoreline test, which accounted for one poor little four-inch perch being taken during an entire uncomfortable morning, not too long ago.

Billions.

F. C. Homuth of Summersville, Mo. writes: "The discussion has arisen among some friends and myself as to the amount of money spent in fishing as a sport and the number of people going fishing in this country.

"If it is possible, I would appreciate answers to these questions:

"Approximately how many people go fishing in this country each year; approximately how much money is spent by them and, is this money spent just for fishing tackle or for tackle, traveling expenses, food, etc.?"

From Frank Menke's "Almanac of Sports" which is quite an authoritative source, we will trace right down the line. In 1938 there were approximately 6,000,000 licenses issued by the states. It is estimated by the Bureau of Fisheries that there are 3,000,000 who fish without licenses such as native residents, women and children. There are another 3,000,000 who fish the Gulf of Mexico and in either the Atlantic or Pacific Oceans where no licenses are required, making a total number of fishermen read 12,000,000. (Pity the poor fish).

Approximately one billion two hundred million ($1,200,000,000) is spent each year. This includes rental of boats, guides, traveling, food and lodging at camps, tackles and licenses.

The estimate was arrived at by figuring that the most economical angler cannot get by on less than $5 per year while some spend as much as $2000. For instance, Florida claims that each year 2,000,000 visitors arrive simply to fish and that the average stay of time is two weeks.

From figures computed by the American Automobile Association, the American Hotel Association and fishing tackle manufacturers, these figures seem to be about correct. The average angler spends $100 per year. Hunters, the second greatest group of sportsmen in the world spend an average of $150 per year to keep the larder well stocked with everything from rabbits to mountain goats.

Trapshooting.

It will be a hard year for the unknown trapshooter to take home first prize from the Grand American. The Amateur Trapshooting Association has ruled that any shooter who has not fired at 500 targets in sanctioned meets, where records are kept, will automatically be placed at the 22-yard line instead of, as formerly, at the 16. Five perfect scores of 200 consecutive claybusting bangs were fired in 1938's 50 state and five Canadian provincial tourneys.

Illinois Ruling Made on Hunting Geese and Ducks

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 6 (AP) ILLINOIS hunters may shoot wild ducks and geese next fall in areas where there is a natural growth of Japanese millet without fear of violating the law, Conservation Director Thomas J. Lynch said today.

Lynch said the Federal biological survey had interpreted the migratory bird act to exclude such areas from the provisions prohibiting shooting over baited territory.

Lynch said the ruling was made to eliminate the difficulty of sportsmen in distinguishing between native wild millet and the foreign millet.

TWO FAIRS COMPARED

BY INEZ ROBB

NEW YORK, May 6.

TAKE two world's fairs, one in New York and one in San Francisco, shake 'em up in a bag, try to compare the two, and what have I got, Magnolia? What I've got is a headache and probably nine or 10 million potential enemies.

Comparisons are always odious. But as one of a hardy little band who has walked his way through both fairs, I am here to say that I am madly in love with both and ready to commit polygamy for either.

The romanticized world of today on Treasure Island in San Francisco Bay and the functional World of Tomorrow on Flushing Meadow, New York, are equally successful in presenting two entirely different points of views. They are potential rivals only at the box office..

The New York fair is the jumbo of the two. If I have any legitimate complaint to make about the World of Tomorrow it is that the future—as far as I am concerned—is a heck of a lot too big. Doubtless the fact that my bruised and battered feet still have a hangover from an 11-mile gallop around Flushing Meadows has a lot to do with this carping criticism.

However, the fact remains that the World of Tomorrow is almost four times as large of the Pageant of the Pacific, as the Treasure Island fair is christened. There are 1216½ acres of exhibits in the World of Tomorrow, the half acre belonging to Billy Rose's aquacade. There are 320 acres of exhibits in the Pageant of the Pacific, since 80 acres of Treasure Island's 400-acre surface are devoted to parking space.

● BUT WHILE JUMBO was a big elephant and drew quite a crowd in his day because of his out-size, he was no better and no more entertaining and interesting as an elephant than his smaller stablemates. They had personality, too. And no one can deny that Treasure Island has personality plus. The Pageant of the Pacific dresses up and romanticizes the world of today; the New York World of Tomorrow, with the aid of a crystal ball and a divining rod (the trylon and perisphere) sets out to essay the pragmatic future.

Consequently, the outward appearance of the two is vastly different. Romantic Cambodian towers, the grace of a Hindu-Javanese temple, the sweep of a 400-foot tower to the sun delight and soothe the eye on Treasure Island; functional architecture hinting of the future and ranging from superb to nuts with its rounded surfaces and angular places excite, challenge and assault the eye in the World of Tomorrow.

Despite the fact both fairs hew to the line of their divergent themes, the architecture in each got a bit addled in the making. Oddly enough, it is on Treasure Island that the Federal Government has what to me is one of the most imaginative of modern architectural ventures for its exhibit, while in the World of Tomorrow it has simply put the functional bee on what is essentially a classic building. The Federal Building at the New York World's Fair could be set down in Washington, D. C., and no one would ever realize it had been any place else. Do you suppose that in the midst of bureaucracy and confusion over two world fairs, the Government could have gotten confused and mailed the right plans to the wrong fair?

● THE Pageant of the Pacific set out to create an exposition devoted only to the interests of those nations bordering on the endless expanses of this leviathan of oceans. Consequently the number of foreign participants in the World of Tomorrow is far larger.

The Pageant of the Pacific has one magnificent outstanding attraction—the foot-comfort stations which the World of Tomorrow would do well to copy in a hurry. At these foot-comfort stations, scattered frequently about the island, the visitor's aching dogs are tenderly cared for at a trifling cost.

It probably isn't cricket to compare the amusement areas of the two fairs. New York's needs a bit more time to get going, but there is no denying that San Francisco is one up on the World of Tomorrow. It has Stella, the famous nude painting that breathes and has delighted audiences at every world fair since the Chicago Fair in 1893.

New York is the greatest metropolis in the United States, but there is no denying that San Francisco is the nation's No. 1 cosmopolis. It has a nice Bohemian air, too. No nudes is good nudes to Grover Whalen, but if Lady Godiva rode down San Francisco's Market street the populace would feed sugar to her white horse and let it go at that.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 6.

THOSE unpredictable Roosevelts! So, with varying degrees of indulgence or resignation, the public has come to accept the picturesque clan which in 1940—counting Theodore Roosevelt's tenure in the White House—will have reigned during 15 years of recent history, with an interval of a quarter century, as the First Family of America. Their knack for the unexpected causes one or the other to burst almost daily into the news. A single confident prophesy can be made: that their acts will generally prove to have been totally unforeseen.

Their gift for originality and surprise is based paradoxically on a strict logic of heredity. The Roosevelts settled on this continent more than 300 years ago. The line has never produced a man of intellectual genius. Not one of its members held high place until Theodore Roosevelt became President of the United States. But the strain has yielded an almost unbroken series of decided and rugged individuals—adventurous, restless, impetuous, dynamic and tenacious. They have been nonconformist to an extreme, but their departures from convention have been combined with an instinct for practical success.

This talent for rousing astonishment may appear in earliest childhood. Washington still finds amusement in an incident of five years ago. A plump, pretty, blue-eyed little girl, in a fashionable school, was observed to be executing conscientiously a series of grimaces.

"What are you doing?" demanded her teacher.

"I'm trying to touch the tip of my nose with the tip of my tongue," was the prompt and unabashed response. "My grandfather can do it, my grandmother can do it, and my mother can do it. And now I'm practicing so I can do it."

The answer, startling in itself, became a classic of piquancy through the fact that the grandfather in question was no other than Franklin Delano Roosevelt, President of the United States. The grandmother was Mrs. Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, a Roosevelt by birth as well as marriage, whose devouring energy and insatiable interest in life have expanded the post of First Lady to unparalleled dimensions. The child was "Sistie" Dall, daughter of Mrs. Anna Eleanor Roosevelt Dall. The latter and her brother, Elliott, were to obtain the first White House divorces on record, and Mrs. Dall was to choose as her second husband no champion of her father's cause, but one of the most persistent and virulent of his critics, political and personal. He was John Boettiger, then a Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune.

The present Roosevelt group consists of 17 persons—the President, his wife and mother, his five children and nine grandchildren. Through another touch of originality, a reversion to primitive society, the unit is a matriarchy. Its commanding genius is that formidable dowager, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, who at the age of 84 remains a vigorous and redoubtable personage. Her overpowering dominance over her son's early years, extending even to his married life, is regarded by psychologists as a fundamental motive for the excessive activities of Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt. They were driven to these courses, it is learnedly expounded, by way of compensation and escape.

Recently Sara Delano Roosevelt was interviewed by a young woman who asked:

"Do you ever give your son advice?"

"I most certainly do," she snapped. The woman reporter, sensing a story, was writing furiously.

"What have you advised him on?"

"Everything," said Mrs. Roosevelt, "and he hasn't paid the slightest attention to me."

—o-o—

WORTHY of note is the fact that the President's children are Roosevelts twice over. For the first time are united in their veins the two lines of the family that culminated in Theodore and Franklin Roosevelt. In past, present and future it may be expected that their behavior would be doubly Rooseveltian. In the past, each has repeatedly made headlines through incidents of considerable heterodoxy, and the older ones have bounded restlessly from job to job and from one locality to another, always landing on their feet. For the present, they are scattered geographically to the four winds of the country, have married into diverse social strata, and embraced the most varied employments. Their future looms spaciously on the horizon, for they are still young.

Young also, relatively speaking, are their parents. The President is 57 and Mrs. Roosevelt is 54. The oldest child, Mrs. Boettiger, is 32. Then follow in order: James 31, Elliott 28, Franklin Delano Roosevelt Jr. 24, and John Aspinwall Roosevelt 23. All have been married—Anna and Elliott twice—and all except John have children. Aristocrats many times over by birth, in the American sense, they have learned from their parents to be aggressively unorthodox. President Roosevelt is regarded by his own caste as its most relentless enemy. Mrs. Roosevelt is the only person alive who at one and the same time is a member of that stronghold of feminine Tories, the Colony Club of New York, and of John L. Lewis' Congress of Industrial Organizations. She is the latter by virtue of her membership-at-large in the American Newspaper Guild.

REGARDING the activities of his children, the President is known to have made only one public remark. "They are," he said, "free, white and 21."

Anna Roosevelt was married in 1926 to Curtis B. Dall, a New York stockbroker. They have two children, already case-hardened to publicity, and popularly known as "Sistie" and "Buzzie." Mrs. Dall accompanied her father on his transcontinental campaign tour in 1932, and there met Boettiger. Both were married and both obtained divorces. Their wedding occurred Jan. 18, 1935.

After the Democratic landslide of 1936, during which William Randolph Hearst had been perhaps the President's most ruthless opponent, the publisher hastened to place Boettiger in charge of his Seattle Post-Intelligencer. Mrs. Boettiger became editor of the woman's page, and in her column of last Nov. 4 took the step—scandalous to her former social friends in the East—of announcing that she expected the birth of a child in March. The baby, her third and a boy, arrived on March 30. Prior to 1933 Anna Roosevelt had been her mother's associate editor of a periodical called "Babies—Just Babies," and for a time after it was discontinued was a staff member and regular contributor of the magazine Liberty.

Tall, slim and boyish as a schoolgirl, and looking years less than her age, Mrs. Boettiger is considered the most charming and vital of the younger Roosevelt circle, with the exception of her sister-in-law, Betsy Cushing Roosevelt, wife of James. Carelessly dressed, walking on long legs with long strides, Anna is often compared by her friends to Katharine Hepburn. Her individuality is none the less decided because it is quiet and demure—in repose. But all the loveliness of the Roosevelts appears in her smile and speech, the latter direct, sharp and critical.

Apparently the most self-effacing of the clan, tall, slender and prematurely bald, with a speaking voice closely modeled on his father's radio utterance, James Roosevelt, while in the twenties, contrived to establish himself financially for life by accumulating earnings of $172,978 in five years, an average of $37,659 annually. Having failed to graduate from Harvard because of deficiency in languages, he became an insurance salesman with the hope of paying his way through Boston University Law School. His remarkable commissions provoked the President to interfere for the first and only time in his children's affairs. James was temporarily banished to his grandmother's farm at Hyde Park, and acted as caretaker for a herd of cows.

Prior to this he had been yachting editor of a Boston newspaper, a dabbler in politics while an undergraduate at Harvard, the New Deal's pork distributor for Massachusetts and president of a New Jersey yeast company. He was recalled from exile to become one of his father's secretaries, and served for two years as intermediary between the White House and office-seekers, and between the President and the heads of various executive agencies. He resigned last November, after undergoing an operation for stomach ulcer at Rochester, Minn., and went to Hollywood as vice-president of Samuel Goldwyn, Inc. His salary is said to exceed the $10,000 a year he earned as White House secretary, and to compare favorably with his income as an insurance agent.

JAMES had scarcely settled down in the new job when he was named as defendant in an anti-trust suit brought by his father's Department of Justice against leading concerns and executives of the film industry. He is a Lieutenant-Colonel in the United States Marine Corps Reserve. His wife, the daughter of a famous Boston brain specialist, is one of the most popular figures in Washington society. With an eye to future political office, James maintains a legal residence in Boston.

The most belligerent, restless and dominant of the Roosevelt children is Elliott, tall, heavy-set and blond, who as a boy mutinied against his family's Groton-Harvard tradition. His only college experience was six months at Princeton. He has been successively an advertising executive, rancher, vice-president of a large airline, aviation editor of a chain of Hearst newspapers, vice-president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, and finally head of a chain of 23 radio stations in Texas.

His first wife was Elizabeth Donner of Philadelphia. Flying to Fort Worth in 1933, he was greeted by a reception committee of debutantes, among them Miss Ruth Googins, daughter of the Texas manager for Swift & Co. In 1934 he was divorced in Nevada, and five days later married Miss Googins. In consequence, he was dropped from the 1935 edition of the New York Social Register.

As dowry, his second wife brought a 1500-acre ranch near Fort Worth and a $30,000 radio station, KFJZ. With a local creamery concern as sponsor, Elliott, for $100 a week, began providing a weekly radio chat called "Texas in the World News." This feature soon attracted national attention, for the speaker, with true Roosevelt independence, launched into a series of sniping attacks against his father's New Deal .

Elliott Roosevelt has twice had the distinction of being denounced on the floor of Congress. In 1935 he was accused of acting as lobbyist for the Aeronautical Chamber of Congress, in reference to a bill permitting the Interstate Commerce Commission to increase the rates of airmail pay. A year later Senator Nye charged that the President's son received $5000 from Anthony Fokker under a contract for the sale of airplanes to Soviet Russia. Both Elliott and Fokker denied that any money had passed hands, and said that the contract, which resulted in no sales, had been canceled by mutual consent.

Franklin Roosevelt Jr., while a Harvard undergraduate, won fame by fighting a bull in Spain, donning overalls in summer vacations to drive a truck for a New Jersey yeast company, by being arrested a dozen times for motor speed violations in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island, and by accumulating damage suits for auto collisions and accidents totaling $35,000. When he came to marry, he chose a bride from a family which made a religious observance of turning off the radio whenever the President made a fireside talk, and which had largely helped finance his principal organized opposition, the Liberty League. He was married on June 30, 1937, to Ethel du Pont, daughter of Eugene du Pont of Wilmington, Del., a director of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., and a member of one of the wealthiest of the feudal "Sixty Families" abhorred by New Dealers. Their son, Franklin D. Roosevelt III, was born July 19, 1938. The couple live at Charlottesville, Va., where the President's third son is a law student at the University of Virginia. Only a few days ago Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. found it advisable to issue a public denial of rumors that his wife is contemplating a divorce.

THE tallest of the Roosevelt sons, with a stature of 6 feet 4 inches, is John, who in August, 1937, broke into the trans-Atlantic cables and became the center of an international incident. One night the American Ambassador in Paris received a telephone message from Pierre Nouveau, Mayor of Cannes. That Mediterranean resort was celebrating its annual Battle of the Flowers. The Mayor had approached a carriage in the parade with the intention of presenting to one of two American youths riding therein a bouquet of flowers and of making a "pretty speech." But one of the lads, shouted the outraged official, had squirted a bottle of champagne in his face, and then seized the nosegay and with it beaten him over the head. His assailant, Nouveau declared, was John Roosevelt, and his companion was John Drayton, nephew of the United States Ambassador to Rome, William Phillips. The Mayor's charge was corroborated by Georges Goin, chairman of the Fete Committee. John Roosevelt, who had been at Cannes on the night of the festival and who hastened away to Paris, declared that it must have been "two other fellows."

During one of his Harvard vacations, John worked without pay as a tree-chopper for the Tennessee Valley Authority. On June 18, 1938, he was married to Anne Lindsay Clark, daughter of Mrs. Franklin Haven Clark, widow of a wealthy Boston banker and yachtsman. Miss Clark had broken an engagement to Samuel Stevens Sands, stepson of Richard Whitney and grandson of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt. After a honeymoon of two months in Bermuda, the couple took a $100-a-month flat in Brookline, Mass., and John went to work as a stock clerk, at $18 a week, in the Filene department store, where he punched a time-clock and pushed a truck about the aisles to replenish the shelves for the next day's business. At last reports, he had quit his job, and hadn't decided what to do next.

The busiest of the energetic clan is Mrs. Roosevelt, who has traveled an average of more than 35,000 miles a year since living at the White House, whose mail totals 300,000 letters a year, and who keeps about 150 lecture engagements annually. She is the first President's wife to hold press conferences of her own, travel by airplane, write a newspaper column, address the public by radio and drive about the country alone, with only a pistol for companion. Asked if she knew how to use this weapon, she replied, "Certainly." It developed that she had taken the New York National Guard's course in revolver shooting.

A practiced public speaker, she recently began taking lessons in elocution. One of the most popular of columnists, who turns out six articles a week with the reliability of a machine, she has also of late studied courses in English composition. She may be heard of as going down into a coal mine, riding in a cable car across a big dam, having a new strawberry named in her honor, indignantly refuting a witness before the Dies Committee who testified that the National Youth Administration was a "Communist Front" organization, or choosing Richmond, Va., capital of the Confederacy, as the spot for appearing on the same program with the Negro contralto, Marian Anderson. She picked Atlanta, Ga., as the place in which to defend the play, "Tobacco Road," which a local board of censors had ruled to be "immoral."

She is always dressed for breakfast at 8:30 a. m., invariably reads herself to sleep, never naps in the afternoon, never suffers from insomnia, and never consciously sits down and relaxes. Though wanting one all her life, she has never found time for a facial. Her hair is done once a week, as quickly as possible. She can't remember ever traveling without taking work along; when her eyes grow tired under the strain, she knits, which can be done without looking. One of her few clubs is the Women's National Press Club, of which she is an active member. Mrs. Roosevelt is credited with bringing about the appointment of the first woman Cabinet member, Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor; and the first American woman diplomat, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, former Minister to Denmark.

ALTHOUGH agreeably diplomatic at most times, Mrs. Roosevelt is never backward about expressing her opinions when she feels that some issue is at stake. When Daughter Anna got a divorce and was widely criticized, her mother came to the rescue with a public statement to the effect that "some divorces are necessary when two persons find it impossible to live happily and their religious beliefs do not stand in the way."

When she was assailed for indorsing the motion picture "The Birth of a Baby" she refused to backtrack, insisted that the film was educational and would reduce the number of deaths from childbirth.

She has often said that she believes she has a good-looking family and that the children "take after their father," but she has kept a discreet silence on most of their doings. She was considerably upset over the traffic-law difficulties of her sons, and gave John a good wigging when he returned from his champagne squirting expedition to France. She has a sense of humor and once praised a burlesque of herself on the radio by Alice Roosevelt Longworth as "very funny besides being helpful criticism."

According to a book recently published by Mrs. Roosevelt's brother, Hall Roosevelt, under the title of "Odyssey of an American Family," is appears that Roosevelt was not originally the family name. The first of the group to appear in this country figures on the records of New Amsterdam as "Claus Martenszen van't Roosevelt"—or Nicholas, son of Martin, from the village of Rose-Field, in Zeeland, Holland. It was almost a century before the "van't" was dropped and "Roosevelt" was turned into a patronymic.

Claus Martensen had the Roosevelt stature, and on account of his great height was known as "Kleyntje," or "The Little Fellow." He also had the adventurous curiosity which was to characterize his descendants. As a boy, he deserted ship at Albany and struck out into the wilderness, peopled with murderous savages. He also rejoiced in the Roosevelt luck, for two years later he turned up with scalp intact and with tales of a great fresh-water sea which he had discovered far in the West. It was probably Lake Huron.

THE blood of two passengers on the Mayflower first met in Mrs. Sara Roosevelt. They were John Howland, "a lustie yonge man," who became the right hand of William Bradford; and the crafty Isaac Allerton who, as business agent of Plymouth Colony, feathered his own nest to such purpose as to become the richest man of the settlement, but died a bankrupt. Another ancestor of Mrs. Sara Roosevelt was the famous Anne Hutchinson, who dared in the Massachusetts Bay Colony to preach Christianity as a religion of love, and who was hounded by the outraged clergy into the wilderness, to be slain by Indians. An ancestor of the President was Nicholas Roosevelt, who at the age of 15 invented the paddle-wheel, and who later drove the first steamboat on the Mississippi River.

Through Mrs. Roosevelt her children bear the blood of Daniel Ludlow, New York merchant, who used a chessboard to scrape acquaintance with Cambon, finance minister of the French Revolution, and contrived to save 400,000 francs which stood to the credit of his firm in Paris. Through Mrs. Roosevelt, also, they bear the Southern strain of the Bullochs, eminent in Georgia since the Revolution. One of their ancestors was Archibald Stobo, a Scotch dominie, who in 1699 embarked with his young bride on an ill-fated expedition to Panama in which 940 out of 1300 colonists died. Both survived and settled at Charleston, to hand down something of their enterprise and good fortune to America's First Family.

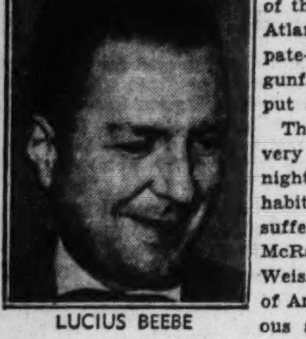
SISTIE AND BUZZIE DALL . . . "GRANDFATHER CAN TOUCH HIS NOSE WITH THE TIP OF HIS TONGUE!"

THIS NEW YORK

BY LUCIUS BEEBE

NEW YORK, May 6.

FEW social commotions so fascinate the razzle-dazzle set or give the breezier local reporters such a field day as a good professional nose-pasting, especially if its scene is one of the plushier of the towns mantraps. Old Man Bonfils' dictum, that a dog fight in Main street is worth more as newspaper copy than a war in Europe, still obtains for most of the country once you get away from the Atlantic seaboard. And in New York a pate-busting in Morocco or a bit of amiable gunfire in Fifty-second street is enough to put all the world's crises in the discard.



LUCIUS BEEBE

The last few years have witnessed some very high-toned tumults in the after-midnight deadfalls, and it takes no oldest inhabitant to call to mind the classy shiner suffered in the Stork by Lieut. Cameron McRae Winslow Jr., U. S. N., and Johnny Weissmuller's subsequent plea "for the kids of America to have faith in me," the humorous and not very severe shooting of Bill Corum, a contretemps in which the police insisted on bandying the name of Teddy Lawford, and the white-tie hullabaloo and glass smashing at Morocco upon no more provocation than Miss Grace Moore's imitation of Donald Duck during the course of a Sunday evening amateur show.

The most recent of them all, the exchange of buffets and Anglo-Saxon monosyllables at Morocco between John Perona, the proprietor, and Fred Wildman, the town's most cultivated wine salesman, is simply one more magnificent skirmish among the wine coolers, which might have assumed the proportions of a saloon Salamis or even a tavern Trafalgar but for the untimely intervention of the police.

The management of such premises, it seems to this department, makes a great mistake in attempting first to abate the uproar during its progress and later to shush it in the courtroom and newspaper records. Nothing fascinates most of the customers like the brave show of a double magnum catching somebody else across the canines or of the happy waiters dancing up and down on an insolvent guest. Its constitutes an ultimate social triumph to be able to call up everybody on the 'phone next morning and say: "I was right there when he tore Charlie's ear off! It was too divine!" The number of people who were grieved to miss the spectacle of Jack Kirkland, minus most of his scalp and sailing into the Fortieth street night after attempting to sock Dick Watts in Bleeck's a few months since must have numbered nine out of ten New Yorkers. They'd have paid top price to be spectators and double that to participate in the massacre.

● THE MORE WE READ about the exhibits and the internal economy of the New York World's Fair, the more it seems possible to this department that what has appeared to many Manhattanites to be the town's major affliction of the moment won't turn out so badly after all. The thesis of the Flushing swamps pageantry, as we understand it, is the World of Tomorrow, and to this end every manifestation of "progress" that science can contrive is to be paraded, for all the world like a super Mme. Tussaud's, and, the human mind being what it is, comparisons are inevitable.

With that curious enthusiasm with which certain intelligences hail every devising of elaborate futility, the World's Fair scientists will snatch cosmic rays from interplanetary space to motivate the lighting effects of the ground, and a hundred thousand persons simultaneously will recall how satisfactory was the green-shaded kerosene library lamp of their childhood and make a mental resolve not to pay the electric light bill.

Opium-dream architecture ranking in esthetic significance with the current fashions in women's hats will be visible on every hand, as though specially and cunningly devised for the sole purpose of emphasizing the charm of Salem or Portsmouth colonial or the prudent simplicity of fieldstone farmhouses in Dutch Pennsylvania. It is entirely probable that nothing has so stimulated the use throughout the world of old-fashioned kitchen matches as the patent cigarette lighter and the World of Tomorrow, as a sneak preview of ultimate and engulfing lunacies may yet prove the biggest, costliest and most spectacular of demonstrations of the circumstance that in all the language nothing is so antithetical to the word progress as the word change.

● HERE AND THERE the curious old editorial notion that the mention in print of a trade name or commercial enterprise is a dangerous precedent still holds out in the journalistic Everglades, for all the world, as though the mention in a news story of, say, a Rolls Royce motor car, would the moment they read it, send scores of folk swarming, cash in hand, to purchase automobiles at $18,000 a copy. The most humorous example of this policy came to our desk a short time since in the form of a Sunday feature in a local daily purporting to deal with the food on railroad diners. Through the exercise of what can only be termed consummate artistry, two full columns were given to this engaging subject without mentioning the name of a single railroad! To be sure, an oblique reference to "a celebrated flyer on the New York-Chicago run" came dangerously close to nominating the New York Central Line's Twentieth Century Limited, but then again it might have meant the Pennsy's Broadway, the Baltimore & Ohio's Shenandoah or the Erie's Erie Limited.

There was no mention of the Friends' Boston Baked Beans on the New Haven's Merchants Limited; the Pennsy's salad bowl, the roast golden pheasant on the Union Pacific's City of Los Angeles, the Lake Erie Whitefish on the Milwaukee Hiawatha, the entire Fred Harvey system on the Santa Fe, the fresh mountain trout on the Denver & Rio Grande's Panoramic, the grilled pompano on all the Seaboard Air diners, the chicken stew with Southern dumplings on the Wabash's Banner Blue, the T-bone steaks on the Missouri Pacific's Sunshine Special, the wonderful fresh figs on the Southern Pacific's Golden Gate, the Idaho baked potatoes on the Great Northern's Empire Builder, the Kansas City steaks on the 'Frisco's Meteor or the Florida grapefruit, as big as soccer balls, on the Atlantic Coast Line's Florida Special. It was just a comprehensive article on dining on American railroad trains.

In the same vein it is notable that, outside of private houses, knee-breeched footmen have almost vanished. . . . THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

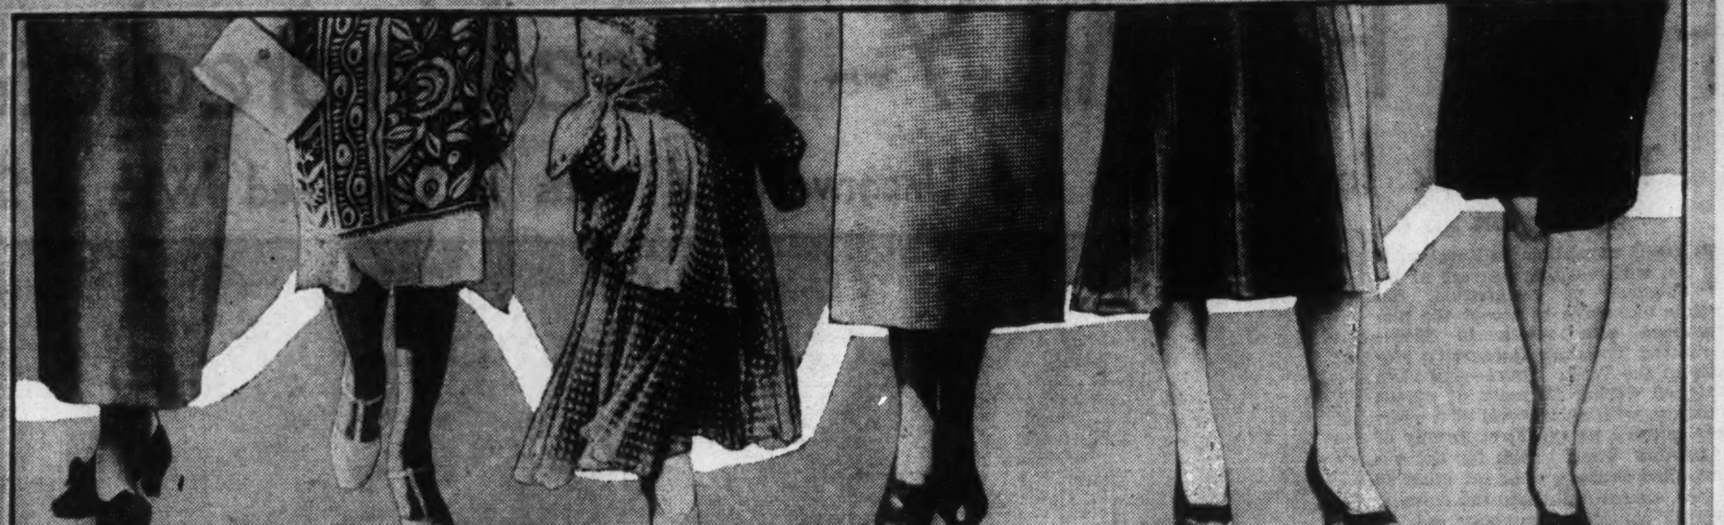
SHORT SKIRT IS SNEAKING BACK



A SERIES OF PICTURES SHOWING THE GENERAL TREND. IN 1925 WOMEN WORE SIMPLE LITTLE SACKS HELD TO GETHER BY STRING BELTS, AND SKIRT BOTTOMS WERE FAR FROM LOVELY. THE NEXT ADVANCED STEP WAS IN 1929, WHEN SKIRTS WENT UP. IN 1930 THEY CAM E DOWN AROUND THE ANKLES IN NIGHTGOWN LENGTH; IN 1933 APPEARED THE "NEW SHORT LENGTH"; IN 19 36, A PERIOD OF "NORMALCY," AND 1939, UP AGAIN.

Short Now, It Will Be Even Shorter, Say Fashion Experts, Recalling Style Era of 10 Years Ago.

By CLARISSA START

WE'VE never made any pretense at being in the fashion swim. A short wade with a pair of water wings clutched securely in our tense and trembling hand has been all we've ever allowed ourselves, but every now and then some sinister bit of style news gives us such a whack on the back that we get ducked under and come up sputtering.

Our latest whimper over what the wild waves are saying is caused by news that the short skirt, which made its exit, unwept and unsung, some ten years ago, is sneaking back, and along with the prodigal we can also look for the fatted calf, not to mention the lanky limb, the piano pedestal, the low curve on the inside, and all the other styles of feminine legs that serve their purpose but would do better to blush unseen. Not that it's going to do us any good to be perverse about this matter. We can sulk and scream and stomp on the floor, but "they" have issued the royal decree that skirts, short at the moment, will be even shorter, and "their" piping is far more potent than our panning.

"They," as if you didn't know, are the members of that fiendish little group who would rather make a country's styles than its laws, the designers, the couturiers—dressmakers in Hick Hollow, the fashion writers, and all the other bright girls and boys whose consolidated whimsies make a Dali painting look like a cross-stitch sampler. We have never been able to understand why people worry about the international banker when the international style setter controls more weeping feminine slaves, dictates more weird commands, and retains the astounding though anonymous prestige of being spoken of in reverent tones as "they."

These despoilers of our feminine winsomeness have experienced little difficulty hitherto in foisting off practically anything on gullible womanhood. All they've had to do was intimate that everyone including the Duchess was wearing it and all the women who craved to be local Lucia Beebes whinnied happily and rushed out to buy it whether it was a hat with airplane propellors or a pair of wooden shoes.

But this time we're determined to fight them, tooth and dirty look. We may have to take short skirts eventually but we don't have to take them sitting down, and tugging futilely to cover our bony knees. For we've just been studying some pictures of past outrages that might be titled the follies of '25-'38, and if you'll just settle down with an aspirin and a photograph album you'll join the crusade with a lusty huzzah.

As the picture magazine we studied commented, "women's knees, like sunspots, seem to follow an 11-year cycle," but while knees weren't visible publicly until 1929, the drama of Wuthering Heights in skirts began in 1925 when women wore those quaintly simple little sacks held together by string belts around an underslung hip.

SKIRTS revealed only a naughty, and often unlovely, ankle that year, but the next year they slid higher. By 1927 the all too familiar uninhibited silhouette was with us, in fact it was us—the long boxy waist, the short little girl skirt, the hideous entirety topped by a cloche hat. Old ladies wrote letters to the peoples' columns and lecturers asked what this world was coming to. No one knew. Perhaps "they" did but they weren't telling. In 1928 a temporary compromise was effected. Skirts went up in some spots and down in others, probably the result of a hung jury in the council rooms. Home dressmakers were delighted to find that the result they'd been getting for years was fashionable at last.

But in 1929 there was no such indecision. Skirts and the stock market both went up. Skirts stayed up a while. It was the Clara Bow era but unfortunately all the women wearing the abbreviated wrap arounds didn't look like Petty drawings and there were some very sad sights waddling, mincing, and loping down fashion way. On many a face could be seen the look of an apologetic kangaroo.

AT LEAST, DRESSES ARE STILL FLOOR LENGTH FOR EVENINGS. ABOVE IS ANN SHERIDAN IN A CURRENT NUMBER.

Came the downward trend and as one fashion magazine in the late months of '29 phrased it, "Now the fun begins." Immediately all the style satellites waxed feverishly enthusiastic about the "feminine styles," "the new era," and screaming "The long skirted, high waisted frocks have definitely won out," just as if there had been a struggle on the part of the worms on their hooks.

At any rate from 1930 on, fabric manufacturers began to smile in a strained sort of way, and women again felt free to sit down without a lap robe. You would have thought the style seers would be content. But working under the time honored theory that if a little of something is good, a lot more is a lot better, they couldn't call a halt. Instead they forced skirts to slither down around the ankles in an ungainly and ungraceful short nightgown length and by 1932 the knee was something seen only in biology books and Whizbang.

In 1933 as women sat nursing their bruises after falls over their long skirts, the fashion Paul Reveres rode by again, leaving scissors and tape measure in their wake, and baying ecstatically about something known as "the new shorter length." Wearily stumbling to their feet, women got to work, whacking at hemlines, gathering up long remnants and throwing them down the incinerator, only to find a sleeve missing.

Through some freak of fate skirts remained almost normal during 1936 and 1937. They were as comfortable and comforting as they had been in 1926 before the shortage and in 1930 and 1931 after the big exposure. And now it's all coming back again, the whole deadly cycle. Is it any wonder that once sane women can be seen toying grimly and morosely with the pinking shears, jerking savagely at the threads binding in last year's tacky hemline?

They know in their heart of hearts they can never enjoy the carefree composure of Daisy Mae Scragg, trotting complacently along in her thigh high skirt which for all its tatters never grows shorter, never has to be discarded for a longer, synthetically modest strip of burlap.

BITTERLY the average woman can envy Daisy, along with Dorothy Lamour, safe in a similarly changeless sarong, along with the Hawaiian girls whose garb is governed only by a shortage or a surplus of grass, not to mention the Queen of England who can brazenly blossom forth in skirts a tacky eight inches from the floor and know she has an empire to back her up.

Churlish as the prospect may seem, there are but two possibilities in sight to ward off the impending doom. As people who have little better to do than study those trends have noted, business and skirts have followed much the same course on the graphic charts. When business goes up, skirts go up. Should business go down we would all be spared the shame of showing what the last 10 years have wrought. Still happier is the thought that "they," the fashion fixing harpies of Paris, New York and points west may be women themselves, and just as reluctant as we are to start the cycle over again. Perhaps they will take a look at this year's skirts, mutter wearily, "This is where we came in," and forget to make further changes.

We wouldn't count too much on it though, if we were you. We've long ago decided that "they" are a group of sadistic bachelors, wreaking vengeance on their natural enemies. In which case there's nothing for us to do but drag out the needle and thread and reducing exercises for another 10-year whirl. Come on, sheep—last one over the fence is a sissy.

WOULD YOU WORK FOR YOURSELF? -:- -:- By Elizabeth T. Cook

WOULD you want to take a job in your own household, if you were without a particular skill, and had to earn your living?

How about those long hours? If you have a maid, does she have time off every afternoon at stated times? Does she have time to rest and relax? Or do you expect the telephone and the doorbell to be answered during a so-called rest? Do you allow sufficient time for her to eat her meals? Are you reasonably prompt for your own meals? Or do you go out to tea and expect your dinner when you return about half-past eight. Or decide to have lunch at the club and forget to telephone home until two?

Do you ask her to change her afternoon out on a day's notice without finding out if she has made plans ahead? Do you expect your general houseworker to stay in and keep an eye on the baby when you go out for dinner? How often do you expect your maid to mind the children in the afternoons?

Is your maid's bed comfortable? Does she have a room to herself? Adequate bathing facilities? Room for clothes and belongings? Are her quarters attractive? Oh do you pass on your old comforters, dilapidated furniture, and cracked china?

Do you bother to find out whether your maid is lonely? Do you try to find decent amusement and companionship for her if she is lonely?

YOU MIGHT DISCOVER THAT YOU ARE A HARD TASKMASTER.

Have you suggested the Y. W. C. A., the Girls' Friendly Society? If so, have you telephoned about her to someone who will look out for her when she comes!

Do you ever raise a household worker's wages of your own accord? Or do you let her go, and pay the new one more? Do you pay her salary promptly? Do you pay the lowest wages the agency will permit? If so, do you still expect experienced service? Oh are you willing to train a green girl patiently?

Are you always polite to those in your employment? Do you teach your children to treat them with courtesy? Or do you refer contemptuously to servants and domestic service in their hearing? When you are entertaining, and something goes wrong, do you exclaim audibly and speak crossly before the guests? Do you talk about the cook or complain about the cooking at meals? Do you make personal remarks about those in your service? Do you entertain your friends by reciting their quirks and foibles?

When you are engaging a maid, do you gloss over the work you expect her to do? Or do you tell her what you require, and stick to it? Do you say there is no laundry work and then expect her to do up your silk underwear, the baby's diapers, and put the bath towels through the washing machine?

Do you tidy up after a party? Or do you expect your maid to clear away the debris the next morning, in addition to her other work? Do you expect your maid to be more discreet than you are? Or do you sometimes remember the old adage "like mistress, like maid"? Do you neglect the housekeeping for days and then find fault when something goes wrong? Do you praise when praise is deserved? Or do you only mention mistakes?

Two summers ago, in Boston alone, employment offices found it almost impossible to fill applications of employers for household workers, in spite of 10,000 single women on relief.

Why?

We don't really know, but perhaps a few of the reasons may be found in this questionnaire.

Handbag With Stick Attached

NEW handbag ideas spring up each season. Now that most of us are accustomed to the shoulder strap bags, and the straw bags that resemble flower baskets even to the wreath of flowers around the tops, a designer comes forth with a new idea called the Hand-Me-Down-My-Walking-Cane bag.

It is a bag made to resemble a knapsack or a handkerchief with four corners tied together as a gypsy-style pouch, and attached to the "knot" of the bag is a short walking stick of wood. The bag is not to be carried over the shoulder, as you might suspect, but held under the arm by the stick.

Quilt Making

Warmer weather, bringing an increase in leisure hours, may give you more time to spend on needlework and other handcraft. If your tastes run to quilt making and you do not feel experienced enough to try a large quilt, try making one for a child's room, one of the appliqued quilts with figures of small boys in farmer hats for a boy's room, and girls in sunbonnets for the girl's. Another child's quilt that looks much more complicated than it is, uses a ship as the appliqued centerpiece with various nautical designs surrounding it.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

THE spell of the old corral and the lone prairie always has exerted a powerful pull on the imaginations of our more or less civilized city society, and now one city dweller has succumbed to the lure and is bringing Old Wyoming to Missouri, on 1000 acres of Jefferson County hills. John F. Hoene, president of a local real estate company, is the man, and his resort community, Rivermont Ranch, which reconstructs a Western scene authentic enough to bring nostalgia to the most hard-bitten broncho buster, was started as much for sentimental as for commercial reasons.

"Ever since I worked on a ranch in South Dakota I've wanted to own one," Hoene told us when this tenderfoot visited Rivermont last week. "We've done all we can to make a real Western ranch, too, not a dude one. We like to think that when you ride over that hill," indicating the first rise in the road entering the ranch, "you could be almost any place in Montana, or Wyoming, or any Western State."

OUR KNOWLEDGE of the real thing in ranches has been of necessity limited but it was considerably augmented that morning by a little horseback jaunt over 500 acres of the territory, seated snugly if not surely on a Western saddle which the ranchers informed us, as they plumped us onto its glittering midst, was a $700 possession. Even with expensive equipage there were moments when we feared we would be just an empty saddle in the old corral. It was hard typing our memoirs on the mantel, but the Western dream come true lived up to expectations.

Among bits of atmosphere are the rustic log Trading Post at the entrance to the ranch across the road from a log Indian stockade and fenced-in area for the pards to hitch their hosses while being refreshed. Lodges of the 50 "settlers," families which own weekend or summer homes at the ranch, for it is privately owned, not a public resort, are scattered along the trails which dip down into the central valley wherein lies Hoene's own lodge. The large Western-style corral and the ranch house stables are enough to make you emit an unsuppressed "yippee." Chief of horses is Perry Bryan, cowboy artist, former rodeo follower and performer at local horse shows, and his wife, who is as nonchalant about throwing a steer as most wives are about a skillet.

HILLS of Ozarkian proportions surround the valley, the highest of them being Horse Pen Hill, a Civil War landmark. The story around this spot concerns the Union sympathizing farmers who drove their horses to the top of the hill to keep rebel soldiers from stealing them. In spite of this precaution, ice covered the hills, making it impossible to send feed to the horses and penning them in and they were ultimately abandoned to die there. Along with this bit of local saga there are other landmarks to bring out the pioneer in you—with names such as Sugar Tree Valley, Trail's End and Wild Cat Hollow.

Hoene, the owner, clad in rancher clothes and cowboy hat, is obviously no mere business man concerned with a business enterprise. A philosopher about the virtues of Nature, he became a rancher when he was 22, giving up a city job because, as he says, "I looked out one day and saw a robin and I thought, 'I wish I were that robin.'" Accordingly he got a job on the Dakota ranch, eventually became its manager, and moved away only because he married and deemed the rugged life miles from a town, with only Indians for neighbors, too lonely for a young bride.

RETURNING to the city, he sold real estate instead of cattle but the hankering for a ranch persisted and a year ago he managed to work his hobby into a business. For three months he tramped over the 1000 acres, swam the river, studied the land thoroughly, for possibilities for a community of city dwellers who shared his enthusiasm for untrammeled Western freedom. One gets the idea that he is as interested in converting others to ranch life as in the commerical side of his investment, already $175,000 for developing one-tenth of the land.

Perhaps the most accurate impression comes when Hoene says with a wave toward the city:

"My business is in there, but my heart is out here."

—o-o—

SURVEYING the frivolous fauna and flora of a millinery department the other day we sighted a fetching little round of straw and lace exactly the kind of hat that stirs the jaded spirit often triumphs over better judgment. As we stood deliberating two plump passers-by noticed the hat simultaneously.

"How sweet," one cooed and then to absolve herself of guilt, added "for a young girl I mean."

Girlishly we smirked, our fingers reached for the frivolity.

"Yes," echoed the other woman as they moved on, "a young girl about 16 or 17."

Like a hot cake we dropped the hat and waddled on our staid way.

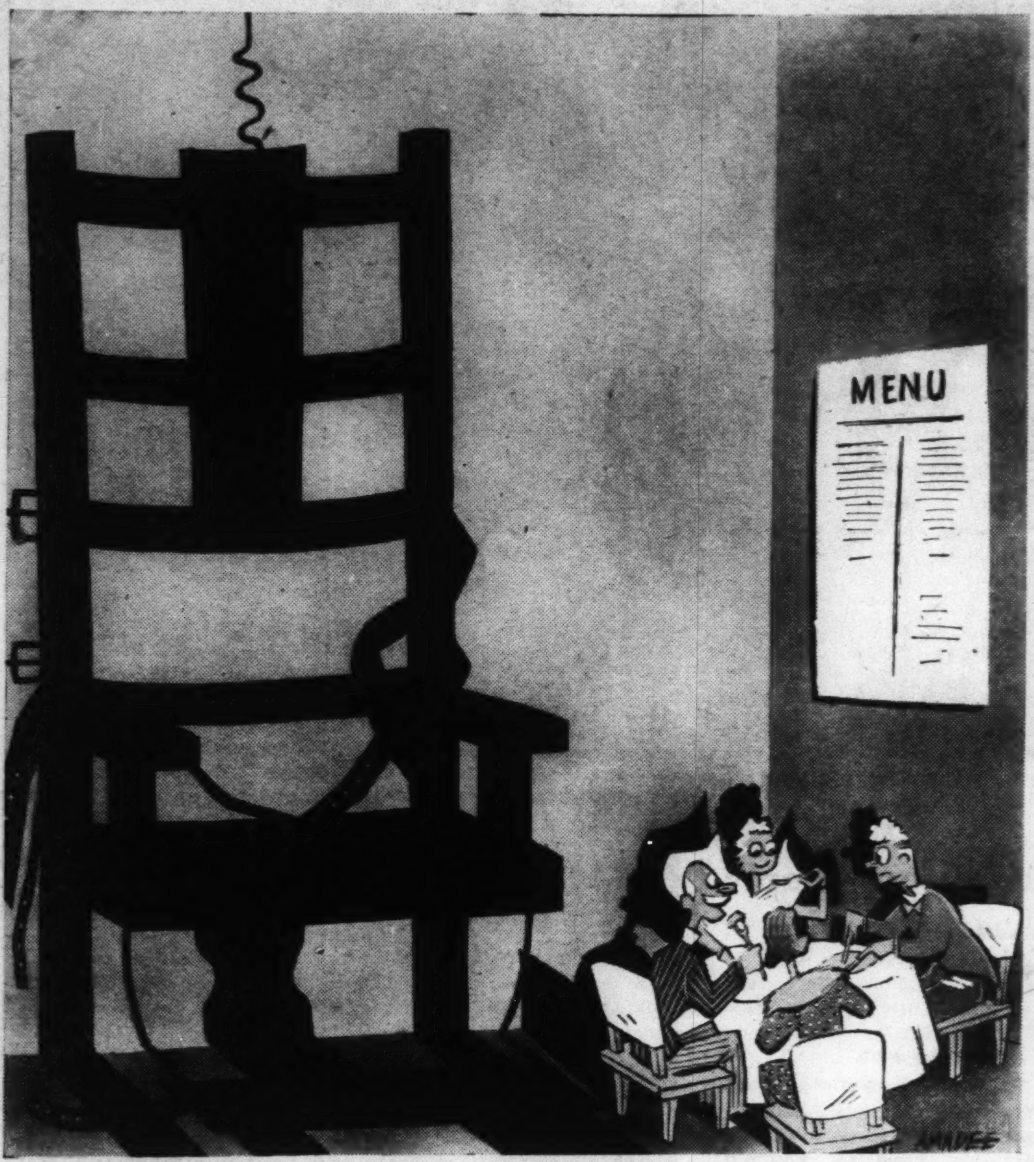
YOUR LAST MEAL---What Would It Be?

Notable Personages Tell What They Would Order Just Before Going to the Electric Chair.

By William B. Powell



SOME PEOPLE, IN THESE CIRCUMSTANCES, SAY THEY WOULD SHOOT THE WORKS AND ORDER THINGS THEY LOVE TO EAT.

THEY always sound awfully dull, those last meals before execution—especially since the prisoners can order anything their hearts desire. I decided long ago about mine. It would be a combination I never tire of—the meal I always order when I've no hankering for anything special, or when the maitre d'hotel seems to have no imagination. Moreover, it happens to be the meal that agrees with me best; it would "set" if anything would. It consists of spaghetti (with no sauce—merely butter and parmesan sprinkled on it), green salad with plenty of garlic, bottles and bottles of red wine, and bel paese cheese.

Having my own last supper all settled, I began to inquire what some of my friends would order when the warden came along and said, "What'll it be?" I thought it might be a good idea to have them down in black and white—just in case.

I found that many intended to follow a plan which is the exact opposite of mine: instead of ordering a meal they know from life's experience is sure to be easily digested, they will shoot the works and order the things they love, but have always been afraid of. The theory is, "What if I do have indigestion, it's too late now—so what the hell?" Perhaps they have the right idea.

LOUIS BROMFIELD says: "If I were having a last meal I'd have this (it would very likely give me such indigestion that death would be a relief):

"Turtle soup, blue points, filet of merlan (whiting) with mustard sauce, Maine or Swedish lobster mayonnaise, Indian curry of crayfish with 47 side dishes, celery, radishes and spring onions, pate de foie gras au porto, strawberries—the largest, fattest, reddest and furthest removed from fraises de zois, vin d'Anjou, Chateau Margaux, champagne, all followed by a stinger and coffee.

"If that wouldn't kill anybody, I don't know what would."

LOWELL THOMAS follows the same program. He thinks this meal would soften the blow:

Buffet Russe, London Club Amontillado fino tio pepe, clear green turtle, Imperial Amontillado, olives, pecans, celery, brook trout gourmet, cucumbers, sour cream, Wurzburger Sylvaner, Riesling 1935, mignon of beef bearnaise, new peas with lettuce, baked sweet potatoes, Chateau Latour 1925, passion-fruit sherbet, gray-legged partridge, wild rice, currant jelly, Waldorf salad, Musigny, Comte de Vogue. 1930, Pondicherry mangoes, Moet & Chandon Imperial Crown 1926 or G. H. Mumm Cordon Rouge 1928, coffee, Ramon Allones Havana cigars.

HERBERT BAYARD SWOPE'S hearty order calls for: Oysters, onion soup, soft-shell crabs, a great big dish containing a rare, thick steak and onions and meat balls and spaghetti and a slice or two of veal loaf, raw sauerkraut and dill pickles, a bowl salad made on the Pennsylvania ("the best I have ever tasted in France or here"), apple pie, a specially treated Roquefort cheese, coffee.

Mr. Swope added, "By their food shall ye know them. From this menu you will recognize that, in taste at least, I am no economic royalist, but a thorough-going proletarian. Damn it! As I think of these dishes my mouth waters, and I am going out to see how many of them I can surround."

LUCIUS BEEBE, you might know it, would go to the chair with his food as elaborate as his dress. The fare he'd ask the prison to set before him is in part the same he ordered recently before going to the coast—"in its own little way," he says, "a last meal."

Smoked sturgeon and black bread, Moet & Chandon's Dom Perignon Cuvee '21, royal consomme, Lake Erie whitefish meuniere, S.S. Pierce Centenaire Sherry, pheasant en casserole (cabbage and carrots), Musigny, Comte de Vogue '28, mousse of York ham, Chateau Ausone '29, field salad, vanilla souffle with raspberries, Yquem, Creme de Tete '21, coffee, Bellows Armagnac, Tresor de Famille, Hine Cognac, Imperiale, Hine Cognac '06, Medford Rum 1875 bottling, Ramon Allones No. 1 Havanas.

CROSBY GAIGE, erstwhile play producer and chairman of the Wine & Food Society, said that he would ask to be allowed to perform his last culinary rites for himself. After commandeering a table from the warden's office he would have them lay a stout cable with a rheostat (to cut down the current) from the electric chair to his cell, borrow from Lucius Beebe—"about to pay the final price for "scrivening" —his electric grill, toaster, waffle iron and coffee percolator, and hook them up. Then he would mix himself a stirring glassful of the mint-flavored variation of a martini that Rene Black of the Waldorf call "Death in the Afternoon." While his coffee percolated, his English mutton chop and kidney grilled noisily, and the toast was being nicely browned, he would relax and take his drink, secure in the knowledge that the asmosphere of the death chamber would be redolent with the memory of his last supper and that he would not fry in vain.

EDNA FERBER is torn as to what she would do. She thinks it's more spiritual not to eat at all. Then again she likes bread and cheese very much—but she really thinks her last meal will be the hemlock cup.

—o-o—

OSCAR OF THE WALDORF would order his pet chef to dish up something which would send him off with a most de luxe feeling—diamond-back terrapin, with plenty of champagne.

—o-o—

NEYSA McMEIN'S order would be: Blinis (caviar, pancake, sour cream, onions, etc.), sirloin steak, hashed browned potatoes, baked tomatoes, grape salad, baked Alaska.

—o-o—

FRANK SULLIVAN'S last meal would be sent from Saratoga. After weighing the merits of such victuals as tamales (cooked right and with the right sauce) and Welsh rabbit, he says he would settle on "buttermilk pancakes, thin enough so that three of them would be the size of the ordinary wheat cake, and a certain sausage that used to be made by a butcher in Saratoga named George Hecht, which was the best I ever ate. And coffee—good coffee."

—o-o—

BEA LILLIE would ask for just one seedless watermelon. It's as simple as that.

—o-o—

ELSA MAXWELL thinks she'd order something very simple in order to avoid indigestion in the next world. She's prone to indigestion because Cole Porter has taught her to eat so many wrong things at the right time. So, with an easy stomach for the next world in mind, she would order risotto cooked with tartufi bianchi. The white truffles come from Milan, says Elsa. But if she weren't worried about indigestion, she would order the most indigestible dish in the world — guaranteed to produce pangs immediately—frogs' legs bordelaise.

KAY FRANCIS, loving and understanding good food as she does, gives the surprising information that if she were to be guillotined—perish the thought!—she would order nothing more than an hors d'oeuvre of popcorn followed by lamb chops and French fried potatoes. She is a little ashamed of her plain order, but insists on being truthful.

DWIGHT FISKE, who leers in the Savoy Lounge, evidently assumes he would be such a good boy in jail that the warden would assign him a couple of guards and give him a key to the city for his last night out. Here is his plan:

"I divide my last meal into five parts. I start at '21' with a double Scotch whisky sour and then have the jambon de Parme with melon that is so perfect here. And nothing could be more pleasant, while eating my first course, than to look up and see Dwight and Steve Wiman, Clifton Webb, Raymond Massey, Robert Morley, Libby Holman, Bee and George Kaufman, Moss Hart, Bea and Arthur Wheeler, and other familiar '21' faces, with Jack, Charlie and Bob wishing me good luck and Mac singing 'Asleep in the Deep.'

"Next the guards drag me to the Colony, where Gene greets me with my green turtle soup and that wonderful 1876 sherry. I sit at Beth Leary's favorite table. What luxury to look up on your last night and see the very best people! In one corner, Elsa Maxwell is showing Maury Paul the pen with which she signed her Alexander Korda contract, and he is telling her how few new people made the 1939 Social Register.

"Then on to Voisin, where Mr. Mueller has pheasant en casserole with a delicious Chateau Margaux 1922. Here is cuisine par excellence. The people are so conservative here and their voices are so low that I start counting the canaries in their cages. There are five, but only four sing.

"For the salad and cheese, I take my guards to the Coq Rouge, where Frank himself prepares my favorite —heart of Boston lettuce, six herbs finely chopped, olive oil and wine vinegar, fresh-ground pepper and salt, in an old wooden bowl rubbed with garlic, served with bel paese. Care-free debutantes and their escorts drift on and off the dance floor and the future fun of America is assured.

"For the sweet and coffee I find myself at the Ritz, where Theodore has made the most delicious baked Alaska and where the decor is a reminder that no matter what capital of the world you happen to be in, the Ritz never changes. And now Theodore is bringing me my last Armagnac 1873, with coffee and Ramon Allones Havana cigars. It's all over now but the buzzer."

—o-o—

THE COUNTESS DE FORCEVILLE has talked and written so much about cooking that her final fling with food ought to be something. Actually, it turns out to be nothing particularly fussy. It seems she's going to forget diets and shoot the works—calories be damned! This is the menu she will order—all of her best-loved fattening foods:

Cream pea soup, salmon with Hollandaise sauce, roasted goose with gans gtieben, corn on the cob, an entire platter of French fried potatoes, alligator-pear salad, Brie cheese, creme brulee.

MARY FROST MABON, Town and Country's food editor, says that she would be too nervous to order her last meal. She would have Russell Codman order it for her at the Somerset Club in Boston (like Dwight Fiske, she apparently expects to impress the warden with good behavior). She would leave everything up to Mr. Codman except that he must include the Somerset's voluptuous pate de clovisses with Zeltinger Rotlay 1921 and that all the wines must come from the Codman cellar, beginning with ancient Madeira and following through to a golden and perfumed Trockenbeerenauslese. The noose then would hold no terrors.

Doomed Show No Originality

WHAT do condemned men actually order for their last meals? Warden Lewis Lawes says that at Sing Sing the convicts' orders invariably consist of a few staples that show a great lack of originality. Most have roast fowl with dressing, salad, fruit, and ice cream. The only variation is when someone orders a steak in place of chicken or turkey. They make every reasonable effort to serve what the men want—and so far they've always been able to fill the bill.

COCONUT CREAM PIE.

Follow standard recipe. When mixture is cool add one-half cup of coconut; turn into baked pie shell. Cover with meringue and sprinkle some coconut on top. Bake in moderate oven until brown.

ST. LOUIS FASHION PARADE

BY SYLVIA STILES

FLOWER turbans are more popular than ever. Contrary to the prediction of some fashion authorities that they would wane with the coming of warm weather, they have increased in favor. The trend it toward boat-shaped types which are cleverly designed. A St. Louis milliner recognized for distinctive models has made the smartest one I've seen for Mrs. Joseph Agatstein, who always wears interesting hats. The sheer foundation is covered with white lilacs and a long ribbon streamer to be wound around the throat is decorated with a nosegay of roses. White flowers, by the way, are replacing colored ones for late spring and summer turbans.

THE NEWEST CONCEITS for bridesmaids or sweet girl graduates to carry are lace fans which do double duty because there's a pocket for vanity items concealed under the surface. Chantilly and Valenciennes lace divide honors in this collection. Old-fashioned flower clusters not only adorn the frilly discs but also a long ribbon streamer. Lace ruffling seems to be extremely fashionable at present and is used for some attractive evening bags, as well as for numerous jackets and hats.

—o-o—

THOSE petticoat frocks have created such a furor that every well dressed woman has at least one in her spring wardrobe. Rumors of some striking themes combining black marquisette and white embroidered organdie are current for summer wear in St. Louis and 'tis said that several fashion-wise women will carry parasols to match. Mrs. William Lee Polk is among those who have been wearing attractive versions of this interesting theme. A black frock edged with a pleated grosgrain ruffle is accompanied by a white petticoat also finished at the hemline with the ribbon pleating.

AFTER EXPLOITING the shirtwaist themes, chignon hair-do, flower-trimmed sailor, the ruffled petticoat and all of the other style ideas associated with the Gibson Girl era, the fashion designers have started to adapt masculine styles of the same period to the current mode. The young man always pictured in an adoring pose by Charles Dana Gibson invariably wore oxfords with "bulldog" toes. These same bulging toes are the chief characteristic of the latest footwear fads for women, and according to the predictions we'll be seeing plenty of bumpers by next autumn.

THOSE gingham play suits which are on display at several St. Louis shops are merely a hint of the gingham craze which is on the way. Bathing suits, sports shirts and culottes are being made of this sturdy cotton fabric. A town suit of red and white checked gingham and a bustle evening dress of the same material in a striking green plaid are other evidences of the fad. Add to these the prevalence of gingham sandals, bags and hats and you get some idea of the informal gayety that will distinguish warm weather fashions.

JACKET FROCKS which indorse checks, especially the black and white Shepherd check variety, are seen about St. Louis. One trimly attired women strolling along Lindell boulevard the other morning wore a sheer wool checked suit which was outstanding in its tailoring. With this she has chosen a small sailor of black patent leather to match her low-heeled oxfords and saddle bag. A good-looking costume combining black and white checks with solid black has been worn by Mrs. Herman Strauss. Her hip-length jacket is of soft finished black woolen, the revers of which match her pleated checked skirt.

REDINGOTE ensembles are ideally suited to a St. Louis spring, and when these ally a printed fabric with a solid-colored one they always are flattering. Mrs. F. O. Watts is among the matrons who have chic ensembles of this type, her redingote being of navy blue and outlined with a cording of the printed fabric of which the frock is made.

Chenille Robes

Candlewick and chenille are familiar enough in the bedroom, but they step into a new role as the inspiration for beach and evening robes. The chenille robes in vivid stripes should be as popular for beach wear as the robes of toweling, an innovation of several seasons back, and the white capes and coats in chenille or tufted candlewick patterns make evening wraps as flattering as any of other summery mediums. So widespread are these robes that they may even be had in children's robes, an ankle-length bathrobe of soft white chenille, or a shorter beach robe of vari-colored chenille should enchant mother and small daughter alike,

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION -:- -:- -: By Martha Carr

MY DEAR Mrs. Carr:

My husband works from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. and on Saturday nights until 11 p. m.

I would like to go sometimes to a dance Saturday nights with my two sisters; one is married and her husband, of course, will be there, besides a lot of our friends. My husband says I have no right there at all without him.

This is only the second time I have wanted to do this in the year and a half we have been married. He thinks because he works I should stay at home evenings without him; but I feel that everyone needs a certain amount of diversion now and then. I don't nag him to go out on Sundays, because that is his only day of rest. Please don't say I haven't enough to occupy my mind; I work three days a week, besides sewing and reading at home. And I love dancing and he doesn't.

I know this is a small matter, Mrs. Carr, and I don't want to be stubborn and narrow. We get along fine except for this little thing. I want to know what is right.

SMALL MATTER.

If you are considerate of his feelings and his pleasures, I see no reason why you should not go occasionally to the dance with your family, if the place is right and you are not foolish enough to pick up or dance with strangers; which I am sure from your letter you would feel might cheapen you.

Be considerate of your husband's comfort and pleasure in every way, and expect him to accord you the same consideration.

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE TWO BOYS who are half-brothers. Both were born in a small town and I do not have their birth certificates. Where could I write for these?

CONSTANT READER.

Write to the City Recorder of this town for information, and if he cannot provide it, ask him if the State Children's Bureau at Jefferson City could help you.

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

UNFORTUNATELY, I am one of the many round-shouldered girls. What can I do to overcome this handicap? I cannot afford to attend a posture school. If you will suggest any exercises, I will work faithfully with them.

MARGE.

I have some exercises which will help correct your posture, if you will send me self-addressed, stamped envelope for them. You can join some girls' club where athletics are included in its activities and where the membership fee is very small. You will find this at the Girls' Club of Christ Church Cathedral, meeting in the Bishop Tuttle Memorial, 1210 Locust street. This club is nonsectarian.

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM GRADUATING from high school in June and the alumnae of our school is giving a dance at the Hotel Jefferson. We can invite our own escorts. Would it be proper for me to invite a young man, even though I have never gone out with him, though we are good friends?

Also, for such an occasion is a written or a verbal invitation best? What would you suggest that I should say in the invitation?

THANK YOU.

Good taste and wise policy suggest that a girl ask, for such an occasion some boy who has shown her attentions of one kind or another. In case you are without friends of this kind and you know this boy well enough to be sure that he would understand the situation and would appreciate the unusual compliment, you might ask him to be your guest.

As to the form of the invitation, you must be governed by the custom already established in your school. Probably it would be agreed among the girls, with the approval of the faculty, that a friendly telephone call or an informal note would be perfectly good form.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

DONATIONS of garden cut flowers will be greatly appreciated by the Ladies of the O. L. Bodenhamer Unit, No. 74, American Legion. The flowers will be taken to the Bethesda Dilworth Home or St. Louis County Hospital on Mothers' day, May 14. Telephone WEbster 2955W and flowers will be called for.

MATTIE M. SIGAFOOS, chairman.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I WOULD like to know whether May 15 would be too early to wear a white organdy to a formal affair at a hotel. And could I wear a black "finger-tip" cape of black velvet with little hood trimmed with white fur with this frock?

Please answer soon.

DOUBTFUL.

May 15 would be too early, unless the affair is a private party in a private dining room. If it is to be a private party, the outfit you describe would be in good form, and you might have the girdle of velvet ribbon with long sash ends to match a corsage of the same color in small velvet flowers. These touches would keep the material from looking too midsummerish. I would omit the fur trimming on the cape.

Features of General Interest

LET ME SUGGEST

By JOSEPHINE WALTER

COME, come, now, you know you'll soon be wanting to get out into the garden in a picturesque little drindl and watch your flowers grow. But, are you going to be able to do it with a clear conscience; without the fact tweaking at the back of your mind that there are things to be cleaned and put away, other things to be gotten out, and the house prepared for a summer? Yes, dears, this is just my subtle way of saying that it's time and past time for spring cleaning. That is, if you're the type that goes through the house like a typhoon, cleaning every nook and cranny, so that you know your house is really clean, come hot weather. Of course, if you're the type that believes in doing a little at a time the year round and think that spring cleaning is completely outmoded, you can just skip this whole column.

Time was, when I used to prate of ingenious methods of getting everything done between the hair dresser's appointment and the afternoon bridge game, and when hubby came home everything was shining and gleaming in summer attire. And he beamed and complimented the little woman on how well she managed her household task. Well, I'm getting hardened or something, because I'm beginning to wonder why the house shouldn't be upset when the old man comes home so he can begin to realize just what a hard job it is to be a housekeeper. What if he does bark his shins on stacked-up furniture and can't find a connected lamp by which to read his evening paper? He should be grateful for a snack on the kitchen table, and that he can actually get into bed if he will only remove those blanket boxes. If this be treason, let him make the most of it.

Seriously though, spring cleaning does not have to be the dreaded household crisis that some women still make of it. In the first place the manufacturers have done everything possible to help us in our job. They have not only invented and produced all sorts of ingenious cleaning utensils and excellent cleaning products but, in most instances, they have also made the things to be cleaned, such as wall papers, paint and fabrics, washable or easily cleaned.

● INSTEAD of suddenly starting on a chair whose dirty arms are beginning to annoy you, have a plan of attack before you begin. Decide whether you are going to use the room-at-a-time method or the unit method whereby you do the walls, then the draperies and furniture. Personally, I vary from year to year, always deciding that the method I am using is the most difficult.

When you have decided on your plan of attack and know what there is to be done, check over your supplies. This includes not only plenty of cleaning clothes and soap but such items as ammonia, furniture polish, floor wax, mirror and glass cleaner, silver and brass polishes, scratch removers and such. Check over, too, the equipment you are going to use such as vacuum cleaner and all its attachments, floor polisher, buckets, mops and all such. If there are certain items you do not have and need, either rent them or get some good neighbor to lend them.

In many neighborhoods, where life is on a friendly basis, the women often get together and buy equipment which makes the rounds of all the houses as needed. For instance, there are now Venetian blind brushes which get into the slats very easily. These would be a grand community purchase, as would a floor waxer, which is expensive but which makes such a difference in the appearance of the house. If you have one of the newer type vacuum cleaners you undoubtedly have an attachment which permits you to moth-proof your furniture as well as clean it—a big item in preserving your furnishings.

● AND NOW I will try to give a few hints on the cleaning and storing job.

Try wrapping woolens that you are storing away in newspaper. For some reason the moth family is not very intellectual and shuns newsprint.

If you haven't so far, try the cleanser that they use on windshields at gasoline stations for your windows and mirrors. And get one of those handy rubber edged tools for doing the work. I have found that these two items have solved my window cleaning problem. Incidentally, if your mother never told you, never clean windows with the sun shining on them—they are much more inclined to streak.

By all means clean and polish your furniture before you put your slip covers on. It not only saves you all that work in the fall but it also preserves the wood during the dry, hot months of the summer. There are many excellent polishes that will not mar even the fine old patine on antiques. A favorite homemade recipe of mine is two tablespoons of vinegar and two of olive oil added to a gallon of water, for this both cleans and polishes at the same time. And for those who have forgotten, the meat of a nut, rubbed over surface scratches, will make them disappear as if my magic.

SCREEN STARS SHINE AS PARENTS

PAT O'BRIEN AND HIS WIFE WITH THEIR ADOPTED CHILDREN, MAVOURNEEN AND PATRICK SEAN.

Nothing Is Too Good for Adopted Children in Hollywood Movie Colony.

By Harold Heffernan

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HOLLYWOOD, May 6.

YES, marriage does seem an unqualified failure in Hollywood. But parentage? Never! There's one branch of domesticity where the screen star reigns supreme.

Thumb over the court records (1938's as a horrible example) and you find big names in the movie colony's matrimonial league batting for a dismal team average—but just let those same glamour boys and girls shift into the uniforms of father and mother! As proud mamas and papas they step right out and burn up the circuit.

You've probably chuckled over those doting parents next door, or the ones just around the corner, but you've heard nothing, seen nothing unless you get a closeup of the lavish attention, idolatry and luxury showered on the lucky little darlings who've come to brighten the lives of the movie great and romp over their vast estates under heavy guard.

Most extravagant, of course, are the foster-parents. They run as true to form in Hollywood as elsewhere. The sky's the limit and nothing's too good for these hand-picked offspring.

No flesh-and-blood parents could possibly bestow more genuine affection on offspring or worry more about minor ailments than do Jack Benny and Mary Livingstone, the Fredric Marchs, the Pat O'Briens, Loretta Young, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Al Jolson and Ruby Keeler and others in the colony. In fact, their inexperience with the to-be-expected indispositions of normal childhood and their anxiety over baby's welfare lead them into anguishing mental turmoils.

The other evening one of the nurses in the Benny household announced to mother Mary Livingstone that her little 5-year-old daughter, Joan, was making a "funny noise" as she ate her dinner. Mary investigated. The nurse was right. While the child was eating well and appeared in excellent spirits, the noise—apparently a respiratory one—was most certainly there. Mary fairly flew to the telephone and excitedly communicated her daughter's plight to Dr. Joel Pressman, who shares equal fame in Hollywood as a leading nose and throat specialist and as husband of Claudette Colbert. When Dr. Pressman arrived, an examination revealed a very common ailment in children of Joan's age—"tonsils and adenoids." They'd best come out, he said.

Next morning a grave family consultation took place. Present were Mary, Jack, Mary's sister, her mother and father, the head nurse and Jack's business manager. After an hour's floor-pacing and clinical debate, it was decided Joan should undergo the operation—at once. But Mary insisted only the adenoids should come out. "I couldn't stand it to have the tonsils, too," she pleaded.

JACK'S business manager was delegated to call the hospital and make arrangements. He reserved a room for Joan and seven others to take care of the relatives. They all went in that night, and next morning, while the red-eyed Benny kin huddled in the corridors, Joan's adenoids were snipped out. She was back in less than a jiffy, and a couple of hours later was in a mood to get back home among her playthings. Father Jack managed to pull himself together and report back to the studio that afternoon for scenes in his picture.

Most tragic sidelight of the recent break in Wallace Beery's household is the six-months-a-year separation that must ensue between Wally and little adopted Carol Ann, practically the entire pride and joy of the rugged star's life. Intimates say Wally is now a changed man, brooding and anguished at the prospect of missing the companionship of the child for long stretches at a time.

The entire life routine of the Pat O'Briens is built around their adopted youngsters, Patrick Sean and Margaret Mavourneen, and any conversations in which those doting parents join are invariably led around to the problems of child-rearing. Pat is an incurable conveyor of "cute sayings" uttered by his pair. A few months ago, when Mavourneen complained in a childishly petulant way that there wasn't enough room in the back yard for her rabbits, Pat suddenly became dissatisfied with the home they had occupied the past four years. A few days later, a "For Sale" sign went up and the O'Briens bought a lot on which they could build—a big lot with plenty of play space.

Loretta Young, a glitterbug who flits about with an endless stream of escorts, gives way to a deep-seated mothering complex. A year ago, she adopted a child and remodeled her home at a cost of $15,000 to give it added comfort. An ultra-violet glass-inclosed nursery forms one wing of the place. Al Jolson habitually prattles on the radio about his son, and he and Ruby have been waiting two years for the Evanston Cradle to find them a girl. The Fredric Marchs have two children from the Cradle and are clamoring for two more.

Here you have one of the prettier sides of Hollywood's domestic life. It contrasts strikingly with the ever-grinding divorce mill and proves beyond question that the town isn't altogether haywire in its home perspectives.

FREDRIC MARCH AND HIS WIFE, FLORENCE ELDRIDGE, AND THEIR ADOPTED CHILDREN, ANTHONY AND PENELOPE, AS THE MARCHS RETURNED TO HOLLYWOOD AFTER APPEARING IN NEW YORK.

Psychologist's Case Records

By Dr. George W. Crane

CASE M-111: Vernette W., aged 29, is a New Yorker.

"I came to see you, Dr. Crane, at the advice of the Dean of Women here at Northwestern," she introduced herself.

"I have come to Chicago to show my parents that I can be self-supporting. I have enough money to carry me for six weeks.

"After graduating from an Eastern women's college, I spent a year of travel and study in Europe. What do you recommend?"

—o-o—

DIAGNOSIS: "What kind of a job are you looking for?" I inquired immediately.

But she didn't know. When I quizzed her in more detail, she said she thought she'd like to get into some sort of promotional work, and handed me a four-page, typed list of her school activities, college organizations, etc.

"But promotional work is a big field," I objected. "What special phase of it do you like?"

She didn't know. And here is the moral of today's case: How can you young people expect to get a job when you often have no clear conception of what you want or of what you are qualified to do?

Too many college graduates today walk into business offices and meekly hold out a college diploma as their sole talking point. They drive business executives distracted because they think they deserve a job simply because they belong to the same fraternity as the "big shot." Young people today often sit around waiting for somebody to hand them something on a platter. The business world is much like a busy cafeteria.

You must not hold up the line by futile indecision over your choice. Make up your mind before you get into the crisis. Then reach for the article or job that is on display. And be sure you have something valuable with which to buy the job.

College students will enter a busy office and ask for work when they have no experience sufficient to "buy" a job. They may be unable to operate a typewriter or comptometer machine. They have no sales experience whatever. They may never even have sold magazines or newspapers as a child.

They have only a college diploma and that will seldom buy a job anywhere. A grammar school boy cannot get into the circus by showing his semester report card.

He must buy his way in, either by cash or carrying water for the elephants. Many college students seem to think their diploma is a merchandisable commodity. It belongs, however, in the same category as the child's report card.

The way to get a job when you are through college is to be acquiring merchandisable assets in your spare time during high school and summer vacations.

Learn to sell, so you understand human nature. Learn to operate a typewriter, an adding machine. Wait on tables at a restaurant. Cook for a lunch counter or tutor students.

The big question you must answer early in a business interview is:

"What have you done?" and this means "What jobs have you held?"

Build up your business pedigree years in advance. Procure a varied background. Your big ideas count little unless supported by a business background.

Be sure to write me in care of this paper, inclosing a long, self-addressed envelope with 6 cents postage thereon if you wish my Vocational Guidance Chart. Use it to select your job and then prepare to deserve it years before you are ready for the business or professional world.

Wardrobes in Patriotic Colors

RED, white and blue are smart and practical as well as patriotic colors to build your vacation wardrobe around this year, and the stores are showing a sufficient variety of clothes in these colors to build a basic wardrobe for any needs. One store features a blue and white checked dress, ideal for traveling, with red accessories and a large red heart clip at the shoulder. Another informal frock of spun rayon has a blue skirt, white blouse and stop red bolero and belt. With this is shown a blue linen bag embroidered with red and white Tyrolean designs, but the straw "flower basket" bags in red with blue bows, or vice versa, would be equally attractive.

In the realm of play clothes, striped play suits in red, white and blue are seen in all the smart collections, and slack suits of navy slacks and red and white blouses are also quite evident. One slack suit combines white slacks, a blue sweater, and a red and white necklace of the cruise jewelry type to archive the color combination. For a colorful accent that can be worn or removed, there are red, white and blue narrow striped jackets, reminiscent of the blazers of other years, shown now with simple white shirtwaist dresses, or sweaters and skirts.

On Behavior Of Juveniles "In Company"

They Either Show Off or Don't Show at All, Says Child Expert.

By Angelo Patri

EVERYBODY puts his best foot forward "in company." Unfortunately for everybody, children are not experienced in the situations and meanings involved, and in putting their best forward, they put the foot in, deep. They either show off or they don't show at all. Those that show off are the hardest trials of all. Their parents hate to take them in hand before the company. They are quick to know that, and quicker to act on it, and so they go from bad to unbearable, and something cracks.

Janice is a well-behaved child when alone with her family. Obedient, well-mannered and unobtrusive, she lives peacefully enough with her father and mother. Visitors, strangers to the family, came for dinner. Mother had gone to special pains to have everything just so for the occasion. And she had dressed Janice in her best and told her that she was going to be allowed to meet the guests and then be excused. She was to have her supper in the sitting room, upstairs, with Granny who had come for the purpose.

JANICE ACCEPTED this all cheerfully, with no show of opposition, indeed without a seeming thought one way or the other. The guests arrived and Janice was brought in. She made her courtsy, and all was well until, to her mother's amazement, she went across the room to the gentleman and, putting her hand on his, said, "Want to see me stand on my head? Look." Down went the beautifully curled head and up came the two faultlessly shod feet. "And I can dance, too. Just see me." And she jumped on the coffee table to show her steps.

Mother sat, looking on with unbelieving eyes and ears. This could not be her well-mannered, obedient daughter. Father recovered first and gathered his screaming, protesting child in his arms to take her out of the room. She kicked furiously and shouted, "You bad old Daddy, you. I'll kick you—" Father turned her over, gave her one smart slap where she needed it most, and then removed her, more quietly now, from the scene.

The old gentleman rose to the occasion. "Do you remember the night Bob did that to us?" he asked his wife. She chuckled. "Like yesterday."

Turning to her stricken hostess she told the story. "We wanted to make a good impression on these people. Their good opinion meant a great deal to us, so we laid ourselves out to have everything perfect. We arranged to keep the children out of the way. Bob was about the age of your little girl, about 4 I think. Sarah was a baby.

"AFTER DINNER, and things had not gone as well somehow as we had hoped, for they seemed to be hard to interest, the gentleman asked if we had any children, and when he heard about Bob he asked to see him. We brought Bob in, never dreaming that he would not be his usual self at least.

"Well, he wasn't. The sight of the strangers seemed to inspire him with deviltry. He strutted, and he posed, and finally took to running about the room slapping each of us on the head with a folded newspaper he picked up from the table. His father caught up with him, took him across his knee and gave him his first and last spanking. I was covered with humiliation, but the guests seemed to become human after that and we got along splendidly. Children are the same the world over."

The same, but different, each time. Don't be humiliated, but take hold of the situation and so prevent what is an extraordinary exhibition from becoming the usual thing. Prepare children ahead of time by giving them a program of action, something to do, and a way out again when they do it.

Comfortable Shoes For Vacation Wear

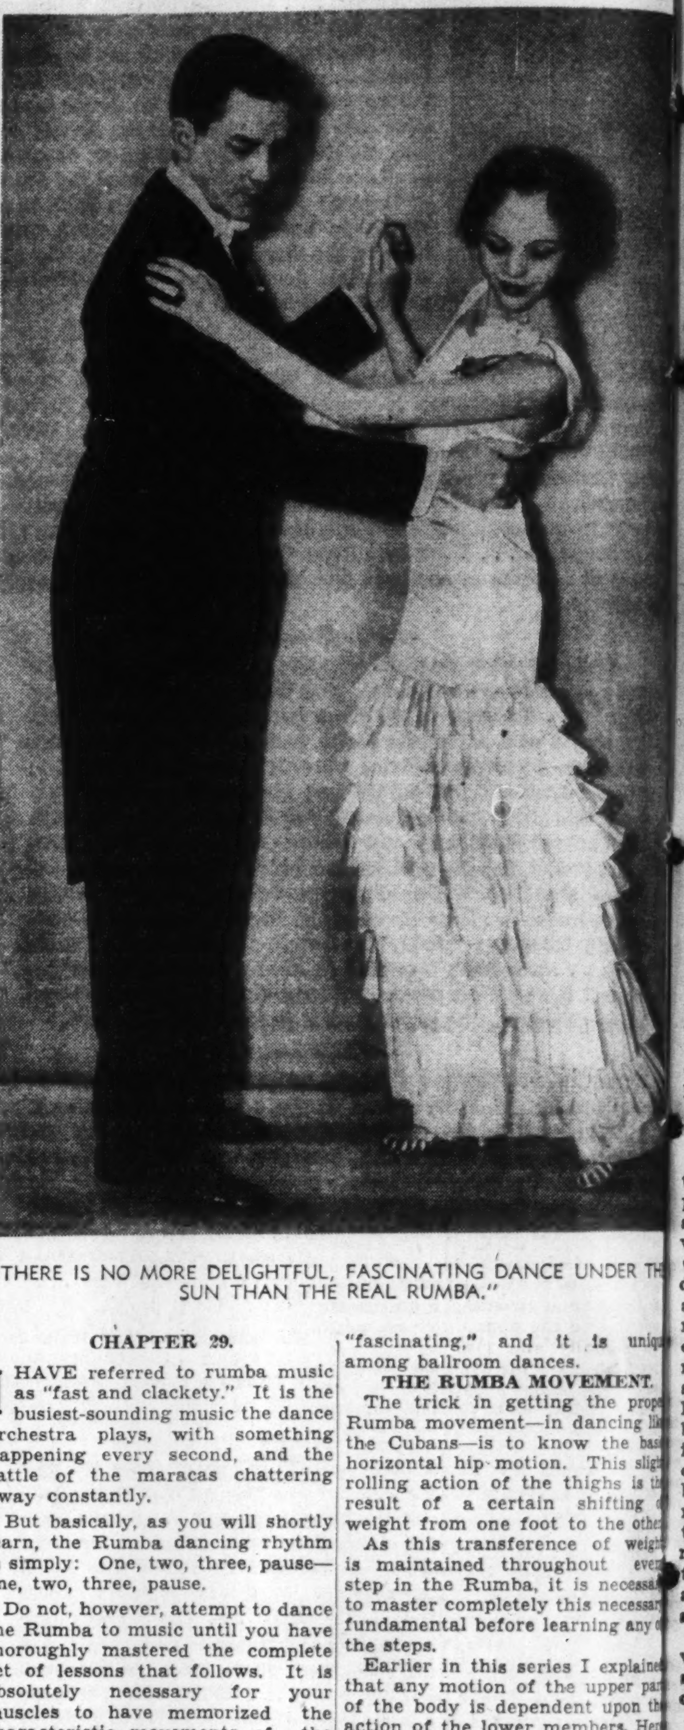
COMFORTABLE shoes should head your list of vacation needs and manufacturers having anticipated this need, made more pressing by the two fairs in progress, are offering as many types of shoe in this comfortable, practical class, as they are the more frivolous, dress shoe. Saddle oxfords, of course, are classics in every woman's wardrobe, and will serve the needs of many. But there are also low-heeled Dutch shoes, sabots, and the like, some of them made toeless for summer comfort.

Mesh shoes may be had in low or oxford heels. A variety of cut out summer sandals, suitable for walking as well as for beach wear, have made an appearance, and huaraches, those woven Mexican shoes, may be had, now, not only in their original ghillie form, toeless and heeless, but made into tie oxfords with flat heels, some with the added comfort of crepe soles.

Rhythm of the Rumba

By Arthur Murray

From His Book, "How to Become a Good Dancer"



"THERE IS NO MORE DELIGHTFUL, FASCINATING DANCE UNDER THE SUN THAN THE REAL RUMBA."

CHAPTER 29.

I HAVE referred to rumba music as "fast and clackety." It is the busiest-sounding music the dance orchestra plays, with something happening every second, and the rattle of the maracas chattering away constantly.

But basically, as you will shortly learn, the Rumba dancing rhythm is simply: One, two, three, pause—one, two, three, pause.

Do not, however, attempt to dance the Rumba to music until you have thoroughly mastered the complete set of lessons that follows. It is absolutely necessary for your muscles to have memorized the characteristic movements of the Rumba before you try to dance it in a ballroom.

There is neither fun nor beauty in the awkward, imitation sort of "Rumba" that some inexperienced dancers do, trying pathetically to make it look like the genuine thing. And at the same time, there is no more delightful, fascinating dance under the sun than the real Rumba, correctly danced.

Don't worry too much at first whether or not you will keep correct time to the Rumba music. It is so individual, and so exactly attuned to the nature of the dance, that once you have really mastered the movements you just can't miss.

POSITION IN THE RUMBA.

The Rumba is a ballroom dance, and its etiquette is consistent with that of the Fox Trot, Tango, Waltz, One Step, and other accepted ballroom dances.

The dancers stand a half arm's length—about eight inches—from each other throughout the Rumba. The weight is balanced forward, feet flat (both heel and toe) on the floor, bodies erect. The Rumba posture differs from others, in that the rolling knee motion makes a slightly relaxed knee necessary. Therefore the dancers stand farther apart than in other dances. In Cuba, however, the better dancers among the natives are able to stand fairly close together.

Some people, disgusted with the exaggerated hip rolling and absurd postures to be observed on certain dance floors, form a prejudice against the Rumba. This is unfortunate, for these exaggerations are by no means necessary in the Rumba as it should be danced. It is only fair to add that any dance—even the Waltz—is susceptible to exaggeration as danced by certain people. Naturalness is an essential of good dancing. The Rumba, correctly danced, is as smooth as a Fox Trot, as decorous as a Waltz. Its real difference lies in tempo and a simple knee movement.

Of course, the exhibition Rumba is a dramatic affair, in which certain basic motions are emphasized for theatrical effect. But the ballroom Rumba—the Son (pronounced s-oh-n)—is simple, dignified, and spirited, with a charm peculiar to itself. Some dances are "charming," others "great fun." But the Rumba is most often described as "fascinating," and it is unique among ballroom dances.

THE RUMBA MOVEMENT.

The trick in getting the proper Rumba movement—in dancing like the Cubans—is to know the basic horizontal hip motion. This slight rolling action of the thighs is the result of a certain shifting of weight from one foot to the other.

As this transference of weight is maintained throughout every step in the Rumba, it is necessary to master completely this necessary fundamental before learning any of the steps.

Earlier in this series I explained that any motion of the upper part of the body is dependent upon the action of the lower members. Here you will note that the shifting of your weight from foot to foot affects the movement of the hips. It is therefore not necessary to think about moving your hips. Just concentrate on the following:

Stand erect, heels together:

1. Shift your entire weight to the heel of the left foot, relaxing completely.
2. Shift and relax your weight to heel of right foot.
3. Shift weight again to left, just as in the first movement. Pause after every third movement.

1. Shift weight to right heel.
2. Shift weight to left heel.
3. Shift weight to right heel.

Pause after third count.

Read carefully the foregoing, study the illustrations, and then practice this shifting of the weight until you can do it smoothly, easily and quickly.

In order to get the tempo of the Rumba movement, sing aloud the first phrase of the old favorite "Tony's Wife." Repeat the phrase over and over, so: "TON—Y'S—WIFE — (pause): TON — Y'S—WIFE—(pause)." Then practice the movement in time to your singing.

Several hours of practice will be required before the muscles are trained to move from one heel to the other in a relaxed manner.

TOMORROW—THE RUMBA KNEE MOTION.

COOK'S TOUR

BY GEORGE RECTOR

A POPULAR food in Rector's was lamb steak and I am sorry to report that this certain cut from the leg of lamb is not so easy to purchase in the meat stores. Suppose that there are just two in the family, the housewife naturally figures that a whole leg of lamb is too much. A lamb steak weighing three-quarters of a pound can be cooked either saute or broiled in a few minutes as compared to the time it takes to roast a leg of lamb.

When I use the word "saute" in cooking it means just plain frying in the pan and that, I think, is the best way to cook a lamb steak. Just sprinkle a little salt and pepper on both sides of the steak and melt and heat a tablespoon of butter in the frying pan. Brown the steak on both sides and a suggestion of garlic isn't at all bad. Simply rub the meat with a cut clove of garlic before putting it in the pan. Whole fresh mushrooms should be added along with the steak, and a little butter added from time to time while they are cooking.

On my recent trip out to the West Coast I had a delicious snack that was served as an appetizer. It was half an avocado filled with well-seasoned crabmeat. ● LEG OF LAMB is a good old family standby and a meat which is available the year round. Right now it is of excellent quality and low in price, making it an economical purchase. In giving the following recipe I have used garlic as a seasoning, as it seems to bring out or accentuate the flavor of the meat. However, if you are prejudiced about garlic, omit its use and proceed with the recipe.

ROAST LEG OF LAMB, MINT SAUCE.

With a sharp skewer puncture the leg of lamb in six different places (top and under side) and insert strips of garlic as skewer is withdrawn. Place meat in hot oven (475 degrees) for 30 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees) and continue roasting, allowing 20 minutes to the pound. Baste meat occasionally and just before it is ready to leave the oven season with salt and pepper. Remove leg of lamb to hot platter, pour off all but two tablespoons of fat in baking pan, add one and one-half cups of hot water and stir and scrape bottom and sides of pan to dissolve meat essence. Thicken with one tablespoon of flour which has been mixed with a little cold water. Bring to boiling point, season with salt and pepper and strain gravy into sauce boat. Have plates hot.

Mint sauce: One-half cup mild vinegar, one tablespoon powdered sugar, two tablespoons finely chopped mint.

ROAST SADDLE OF LAMB.

Have the butcher prepare the saddle for roasting. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge lightly with flour. Place on rack in roasting pan and start to cook in hot oven (450 degrees) for first 15 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees), allowing 20 minutes to 25 minutes to the pound, basting at 15-minute intervals. This particular cut of lamb never should be overcooked but rather a little on the pink side. When saddle is cooked remove to hot platter. Pour off all but one tablespoon of fat remaining in roasting pan; add to it one-half cup of hot water, or stock if you have it, and stir until all meat essence is dissolved. Pour this small quantity of juice over the lamb and as lamb is carved a tablespoon is served with each portion. Serve with mint sauce or current jelly. Fresh green peas, glazed carrots, glazed onions and Parisian potatoes make a nice accompaniment.

GLAZED CARROTS.

● WASH, SCRAPE and cut the carrots ball shape, using a French vegetable cutter. Cook them in boiling salted water until soft, or about 20 minutes. Drain, melt four tablespoons of butter in frying pan and add four tablespoons of granulated sugar. When well blended add the drained carrots and cook until browned and glazed. Carefully turn while cooking to obtain an even glaze. Small or tiny carrots may be left whole.

GLAZED ONIONS.

Cook small white onions in boiling water until tender or about 25 minutes. Drain and dry on a towel. Melt four tablespoons of butter in frying pan and add four tablespoons of granulated sugar. When well blended add the onions and cook until browned and glazed. Turn the onions frequently to obtain an even glaze.

BOILED PARISIAN POTATOES.

Wash and pare large potatoes. Cut in small balls, using a French vegetable cutter. Cook them in boiling salted water until tender, drain, add a piece of fresh butter and carefully shake pan until potatoes have absorbed butter. Sprinkle with finely chopped parsley.

THE Columbia Graphophone Co. has just issued the fifth volume of its "History of Music Through Eye and Ear." As with the four preceding volumes, the album contains eight records—16 sides—devoted to a representative selection of music from the period under consideration, in this case the Twentieth Century. And the records, which were selected by Percy A. Scholes, is accompanied by a booklet which discusses the general style of the period and indicates the particular significance of each musical example.

As might be expected, much of the music is more significant than enjoyable. One would not expect the ordinary music lover to give house room to Edgar Varese's "Octandre" unless he had a curiosity about the work that extended beyond its power to evoke simple emotions. But considered as an abstract of the tendencies and vagaries of contemporary composition, the 16 examples which have been selected certainly tell a complete story.

By presenting the textual explanation of twentieth century characteristics along with the auditory experience involved in hearing the music, Dr. Scholes makes his points with clarity and economy of means. His view of modern music is a little conservative but wholly reasonable. His skepticism, for instance, in the face of microtonality—the use of intervals smaller than the semitone—derives from seemingly natural limitations of the ear. As he points out, the human race has not yet learned to sing its tones and semi-tones consistently on pitch. So why talk of quarter, sixteenth and thirty-second tones?

Although this volume is meant for students, whether formal or informal, it should have an interest for all music lovers whose ears have acquired a little sophistication.

ORCHESTRAL.

Arturo Toscanini and the London B. B. C. Symphony Orchestra are the recording artists for the Beethoven Symphony No. 1 in C Major and the Brahms "Tragic Overture" (Victor 5 records), which constitute the leading item in the May releases. The records present all of the widely advertised Toscanini virtues. The music has the flowing continuity of a stream coming out of a rock, and the sparkle that derives from immaculate phrasing, a springing rhythmic quality and incontestably just tempos. And of course it has a flawless transparency. Everything in the score can be heard and to the correct degree of intensity. In short it is good Toscanini and good Beethoven and Brahms which should be enough for anybody.

The recording of Mozart's "Paris" Symphony (Columbia 3 records) by Sir Thomas Beecham and the London Philharmonic Orchestra discloses another piece of virtuoso conducting which is also consonant with exacting taste and musicianship. Grace and elasticity are noticeable hall marks of Beecham's treatment but they do not detract from the energy of the fast movements and the poetic depth of the slow movement.

Felix Weingartner's presentation of the Brahms "Variations on a Theme by Hayes (Columbia 2 records) will not supplant the previous recordings made by Toscanini for Victor but it has its points. It is rugged and eloquent, more truly Brahmsian than the more closely integrated Toscanini recordings, but not quite as ingratiating.

Lovers of the Johann Strauss waltzes will find four of them, excellently played by orchestras under Weingartner and Bruno Walter in a volume just released (Columbia 4 records). They are "Roses From the South," "The Vienna Woods," "Voices of Spring" and the "Thousand and One Nights." This reviewer does not profess to have an ear for the true Straussian rubato but Weingartner's waltzes are somehow more youthful than Walter's.

A new recording of Haydn's "Surprise" Symphony is offered by Howard Barlow and the Columbia Broadcasting Orchestra. (Columbia three record.) The rhythms and tempi are good and the orchestra in general plays energetically. Unfortunately Mr. Barlow does not hesitate to play piano passages forte with the result that the performance is coarse at times.

A single record worth having is that made by Efrem Kurtz directing the London Philharmonic Orchestra in the music for the ballet "L'Epreuve d'Amour." It is released by Columbia.

CHAMBER WORKS

Schumann's Sonata in A Minor for Piano and Violin was completed during the late and tragic period of the composer's life and it is pervaded by a mood of self-contemplation and melancholy. It is beautiful music clearly expressed and its sadness is a noble sadness. Adolf Busch, violinist and Rudolf Serkin, equally celebrated pianist, have recorded the Sonata (Victor two records) with impressive artistic and acoustic results. I do not find Prof. Busch an appealing violinist as a rule but his plainness and sincerity are highly suitable to this music. Mr. Serkin's piano part is rich and beautifully poised and accented.

A more than usually interesting novelty is the Sonata for Oboe and Harpsichord by Handel (Victor one record) played by Mitchell Miller and Yelli Pessl, the latter being the harpsichordist. The music offers a fine example of Handel's expressive and agile lyricism.

PIANO WORKS

Walter Gieseking's recording of Beethoven's "Waldstein" Sonata (Columbia three records) is the piano volume of the month without question. Beethoven turns a perverse side of his nature in this music and the pleasure one gets from it is a good deal like the pleasure of exploring a hollow tooth with one's tongue. But Mr. Gieseking's combination of the bravura and the poetic make his performance an irresistible one. Some pianists are known for their feeling, others for their technique, still others for their force and scholarship. Gieseking has practically everything.

A first class piano performance is also turned in by Emma Boynet in a volume of French Piano Music (Victor 5 records). The music can be classified as little known since few persons who go to piano recitals or listen to the radio have ever heard Faure's Bacarolles or the Debussyesque compositions of de Severac. Other composers represented in the volume are Pierne, Debussy and Chabrier. The kinship between all these composers, despite surface distinctions, is quite plain.

Ravel, who is not represented in this volume, finds a dashing interpreter in Jesus Maria Sanroma whose performance of the "Alborada del Gracioso" (Victor 1 record) is a feature of the May list.

VOCAL.

Nine songs by Brahms are recorded by Ernst Wolf, baritone (Columbia 3 records) in a style more admirable for its sincerity and scholarship than for its charm. The songs are representative Brahms not often heard.

A spirited performance of Poulenc's Mass in G (Columbia 2 records) is given by the Singers of Lyon. The music may sound something less than consecrated to persons with fixed ideas of liturgical song but it is certainly ingenious. The high tessitura of the treble voices makes it a little shrill at times. On the other hand it is never dull.

Whiter Linens

To whiten handkerchiefs or yellowed linens, soak them in a basin of cold water to which has been added one-fourth teaspoon cream tar to each quart of water. Let them stand for 12 hours and then launder as usual.

Ham Slice

Two-pound ham slice.
Twelve whole cloves.
One-half cup brown sugar.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One-fourth teaspoon cloves.
One cup apricots.
Three tablespoons lemon juice.
One-third cup orange juice.
One-half cup vinegar.

Fit the ham into a shallow pan. Stick cloves into the ham and sprinkle with sugar and spices. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Add the rest of the ingredients and bake 30 minutes or until the ham is very tender when tested with a fork. Cover with a lid to hasten the cooking. Uncover and bake 10 minutes to brown the top.

Travel Kit

A necessity if you're planning on traveling this summer, and a thoughtful gift for someone else, is a rubberized travel kit for make-up, small bottles, jars, and all the feminine paraphernalia easily lost or likely to wreak havoc if packed loosely in a traveling bag. Many of the kits have compartments for beauty aids, envelopes for powder puff or misccellania, and very decorative exteriors.

THE SCREEN in REVIEW

By COLVIN McPHERSON

SOME say that the movies should never be used for propaganda, that controversial issues have no place in a business which sells entertainment. This is one of the Ten Commandments of Hollywood and it may seem that the Warner Bros. have split it wide open this week with a feature called "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," on the screen at the Ambassador.

Actually the Warners are not guilty. "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" can hardly be called propaganda when every agency of information already has handled the Nazi intrigue as fact. And since the great majority of Americans have made up their minds by now, it's not controversial. Actually it is nothing more than a reporting of events.

Anyone who goes to the Ambassador expecting a good old rabble-rousing, with speakers calling the enemy dirty names and exhorting the country to arms will be disappointed. "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" keeps its balance. Its conclusion is the conclusion of most Americans —that the Nazis are crazy to try that in this country, that the whole thing sounds incredible.

The story proceeds in chronological order, building up the structure of the spy ring in this country and bringing it to the notice of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, through a tip from the British secret service. The incidents are those testified to in the recent spy trials in New York.

Newsreel shots from Germany are interpolated, diagrams, maps and montage used to show the international background of the story. Invasions of Austria and Czechoslovakia, Hitler mass meetings are flashed on the screen in proper sequence. A commentator boldly speaks of the Nazis' "glorification of conquest and war," "the ominous shadow" over the earth and "this bacteria" of Nazi propaganda and espionage.

Names and places are changed but "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," in minute detail, is based on evidence. Hitler, of course, appears as himself and is dutifully hissed. An "Excellency" of Hollywood's creation very strongly resembles Dr. Joseph Goebbels, German Minister of Propaganda, and has a place in the story. Scotland is the place of detection of the spy ring. Four defendants face the bar of justice—an army deserter, a former air corps private, a woman hairdresser from a German liner and an airplane mechanic. The leader of the spy ring, a physician, is abducted to Germany.

On down to unimportant accuracy, "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" tallies with the testimony in court, so that it is apparent Leon G. Turrou, who helped uncover the spy ring and served as technical adviser to the Warners, earned his pay.

And yet, with all its mass of fact, the film has a fascinating story interest. It may be three-quarters of an hour before Edward G. Robinson, as an F. B. I. man, gets busy on the case, but the opposition is sensed from the beginning of the film. We know Uncle Sam is ready to swing into action and has the strength to deliver a smashing blow.

All praise is due then to the picture's method, to the way in which it clarifies its material. More pictures of its manner of treatment are on their way, you may be sure. The day may even come when truth, fully documented and full protecting movie producers in the courts, will be more serviceable to the screen than Hollywood's hackneyed fiction.

Performances are exceptional. Paul Lukas, as the physician who heads the spy ring, is the combination of bombast and slyness that he should be. Francis Lederer has one of the finest roles of his career as the hysterical, bragging scoundrel who volunteers his services to the Nazis. Robinson calls this type "Hitler happy," which is perhaps the best phrase in the entire film. Robinson is an inspiring G-man, who has the audience's confidence from the first. Most of the other players are unfamiliar to movie audiences but have been guided by Director Anatole Litvak into highly efficient teamwork.

For those Ambassador patrons who have nothing else to do, there is a second feature called "Sweepstakes Winner," in which Marie Wilson wins $150,000 and buys a horse.

—O—O—

Never Say Die.

THE presence of Benny Goodman and his swing musicians on the stage at the Fox Theater is the other big event of the week at the first-run houses. Those who are not jitterbugs may find some pleasure in watching the faithful, who are bound to gather in the front rows and go into a bit of camp meeting stuff when Benny and his artists bear down on "One O'clock Jump." If the non-swing patron knows "Star Dust," "Song of India" and "Dinah" in advance, he may even get an education in swing as he hears them played.

The screen feature, "Never Say Die," is worth staying for. Constructed as pure farce, it seems silly until it has begun to warm up but several sequences are hilarious, particularly a burlesque duel between Bob Hope and Alan Mowbray at the finish. Martha Raye and Andy Devine are contributing comics.

—O—O—

Prison Without Bars.

The British film, "Prison Without Bars," at Loew's, is an English variation of a French film, which in turn may have been inspired by "Maedchen in Uniform." It is a very acceptable drama of its type.

Corinne Luchaire, an attractive young French woman, and Edna Best, the English actress, have the principal roles. Miss Luchaire is an unruly inmate, Miss Best the humane administrator of a reformatory outside Paris. Both fall in love with a doctor and Miss Luchaire gets him, although by American standards of masculine appeal, Miss Best probably would be accounted the more fortunate.

"King of the Turf," Loew's main feature, is a father-son story which falls into old habits of plotting, after starting out brilliantly. Menjou's appearance as a drunken bum at the opening is masterly but even his fine work cannot overcome the stereotyped plot later on.

—O—O—

The 400 Million.

Two films of special interest are available. One of these is a documentary, "The 400 Million," at the Screening Room, 3143 Olive street, and the other is "Moonlight Sonata," at the Will Rogers Theater, Union and Page boulevards.

"The 400 Million" refers to the population of China and the film, produced by Joris Ivens with the sponsorship of various Hollywood notables, aims to gather sympathy for the Chinese cause by presenting their side of the conflict now going on with Japan. Some newsreel shots are used but most of the material was gathered by Ivens and his collaborators in China. Faulty organization, by comparisons to the standards of "The March of Time," detracts from its interest, although it contains much new and original footage.

"Moonlight Sonata," a British production which failed to get a run at the first-run houses, is new to St. Louis and is a spot booking for the Will Rogers, which ordinarily has only subsequent run features. The film stars the noted pianist, Ignace Jan Paderewski, and contains four different selections by that artist. Also of note is the presence of the British stage star, Marie Tempest, in a leading dramatic role.

—O—O—

"I Was a Convict" and "Danger Island," at the St. Louis, furnish the audience there with gunplay, mystery and the other ingredients of melodrama. The first feature has Barton MacLane in the leading role, the second is of the Mr. Moto series, with Peter Lorre in Porto Rico this time.

"Dark Victory," already entered into the records as one of the best pictures of 1939, is now at the Missouri, with its companion of two weeks, "Climbing High," and a new issue of "The March of Time," dealing with Japan's aims in the Orient.

Early Fair Crowds Neglect Broadway, Despite Price Cuts

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP).

FINANCIAL report on Broadway: The impresarios are not reaping the bonanza they expected with the World's Fair crowds and the current outlook is that shows may begin to fold as they customarily do at this season of the year when warm weather begins creeping in.

Too, the shows are reducing prices so that now musical hits like "Set to Music," "Hellzapoppin," "Stars in Your Eyes" and others are available at $3.30 top prices, whereas a decade ago when the Florenz Ziegfeld-Earl Carroll-George White dynasty ruled the tuneful show world, one had to pay double that price to see shows of equal or less merit. There are a half dozen serious and excellent dramas now that have seats as low as 55 cents, and the answer is that managers are trying to win back a steady patronage to the flesh-and-blood theater rather than gamble upon luring an overnight audience.

A pertinent example of the change that has happened in the business end of the theater is that of Katharine Cornell. S. N. Behrman wrote "No Time for Comedy" and wanted her to play the leading role. But, Miss Cornell is both producer and actress and Behrman is also a co-producer as a member of the Playwrights Company. So Miss Cornell and the Playwrights consolidated as producers to present Miss Cornell in the leading role of Behrman's comedy, all at prices that range up to $3.30, whereas 10 years ago such a star and combination of producing talent would have demanded $5.50 or more for tickets. Also the playwright and actress would not have attempted to be producers also.

Why the World's Fair crowds are not clamoring to break into the Broadway shows is a question easily answered by the pilgrims who shoulder their way through nude dancers, mermaids and other such enticements and walk back to their hotels with a minimum of equilibrium. Broadway is as far from the fair grounds as a jaunt into the next state.

So World's Fair crowds or not, the Broadway playbill, within the next few weeks, may reduce itself to this:

"Abe Lincoln in Illinois," with Raymond Massey in the leading role, should run all summer and go on tour in the fall. It is the Pulitzer Prize winner.

"Hellzapoppin," that berserk Olsen and Johnson revue, will run forever. When it opened on Broadway, the critics contended that not only it couldn't have a Broadway run, but also that it just couldn't possibly have opened on Broadway. It is, has been and undoubtedly will be the biggest financial success the Rialto has seen since "Abie's Irish Rose," which also wasn't popular with critics.

Tallulah Bankhead should remain long in "The Little Foxes" for it is a play that Lillian Hellman has written with particular venom; it is a drama with an allurement for women and one that intrigues men for they don't quite understand it.

In "Mamba's Daughters" is Ethel Waters and there is the perfect example of performance for always before she was a blues singer, half-comic with her endeavor to cry. As the disturbed, harrassed Hagar in this play she does a serious, dramatic role and achieves the transition with artistry that one rarely sees.

Errol Flynn as Bolivar

Simon Bolivar, the George Washington of South America, will be played on the screen by Errol Flynn. Warner Bros. also have under consideration the casting of Bette Davis as Manuela Sanz, in the same film.

First Group of Principals Announced by Opera

WITH the opening of its twenty-first season less than four weeks away, Municipal Opera yesterday announced six of its singing stars for the coming summer.

Three—Muriel Dickson, Rosemarie Brancato and Hazel Hayes—are new to Forest Park; three others—Gladys Baxter, Nancy McCord and Helen Gleason—have been popular prima donnas in past seasons. All give indication that the opera, in keeping with its promises, will place an emphasis on musical ability in its casting this year.

Miss Dickson, who will sing the leading soprano role of Marie in "The Bartered Bride," is a native of Scotland. She came to this country and 1935 as the leading prima donna of the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company, and before the company had completed its tour, was engaged as a principal of the New York Metropolitan Opera. She made her debut at the Metropolitan in 1936, immediately after the D'Oyly Carte Company had completed its American engagement, receiving an ovation as Marie in "The Bartered Bride." She also has sung the roles of Musette in "La Boheme," Caroline in "Clandestine Marriage" and Amelia in "Amelia Goes to the Ball," at the Metropolitan. She made her American recital debut in Town Hall, New York, last December.

Miss Brancato, coloratura, soprano and a native of Kansas City, will be heard as Nina in Rudolf Friml's "Firefly." She has been singing since she was seven years old and as a child sang before 2000 persons in Kansas City. Upon graduating from high school at the age of 15, she entered the Eastman School of Music at Rochester, N. Y. She appeared there in concerts, operatic performances and as soloist with the Rochester Civic Orchestra. During her second year at the Eastman School, she won a nationwide radio contest.

After two years of constant study in New York, she was acclaimed on her operatic debut as Gilda in "Rigoletto" with the Chicago Grand Opera, on Jan. 17, 1934. She was only 21 years old. She has appeared in other leading roles in Chicago and triumphed on a joint appearance with John Charles Thomas in the Hollywood Bowl. She has been featured on principal radio programs including Erno Rapee's Music Hall of the Air, and has attained success on the concert stage.

MISS HAYES will sing leading roles in "Queen High," "Waltz Dream," "Firefly" and "Mary." She made her debut in "Aida" at the age of 19 and has been starred with grand opera companies in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Canada and Panama. Her repertoire includes other great operas such as "Il Trovatore," "Faust," "Lohengrin," "Die Walkuere," "Tosca" and "Tannhauser." She has been soloist with the Boston, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Havana, Miami, Denver, Buffalo, Portland, Seattle, Vancouver and New York symphony orchestras. She also has appeared on the recital stage throughout this country, Canada and Central America.

Opera goers will remember Miss Gleason, another member of the Metropolitan, for her roles in "The Bohemian Girl" and "The Merry Widow," during the summer of 1936, her only previous appearances at the open-air theater. She will sing the title role in "Victoria and Her Hussar," which will have its American premiere here. Miss Gleason has been a featured singer at the New York operatic institution since 1933. She is one of the few American singers given an opportunity by Guilo Gatti-Casazza, former general manager of the Metropolitan. She also has sung in Italy, in summer European musical festivals and on the concert stage and radio. Her last Broadway appearance was in the leading feminine role of "Frederica" singing opposite Dennis King.

Miss McCord will appear in "Rose Marie," "Lost Waltz," "Katinka" and "Song of the Flame." Last summer she was heard in "Roberta" and "Lost Waltz." She made her first appearance at the Forest Park theater in 1931, returning in 1933, 1935 and 1938. She joined the Metropolitan in the spring of 1937.

Miss Baxter has been a favorite with Municipal Opera audiences since her first appearance in Forest Park in 1930. This summer she will return for "Queen High," "Lost Waltz," "On Your Toes," "Waltz Dream" and "Katinka." She was another star of "Lost Waltz" last year.

Tryouts for the singing and dancing choruses at the opera were held during the past week and rehearsals have already begun, with final ensembles yet to be drawn. The season opens June 2 with "Rose Marie" and has, as the full list of productions to follow, "Queen High," "Lost Waltz," "Katinka," "Waltz Dream," "On Your Toes," "Firefly," "The Bartered Bride," "Mary," "Babette," "Song of the Flame," "Victoria and Her Hussars."

Blackstone, Magician, And Company Booked For the Fox May 26

THE stage magician, Blackstone, and his company of 30 persons have been booked for a Fox Theater stage show for the week beginning Friday, May 26. Called "The Show of 1001 Wonders," Blackstone's is one of the most elaborate ever used in the business.

The master magician, who has been performing for more than 25 years, is noted for his feats of sawing a girl in half, making a horse disappear, making bodies float through the air and other standard mystifications.

The current stage attraction at the Fox, Benny Goodman and his swing band, will be presented Wednesday night in a special Washington University performance at the theater. Goodman will be initiated into the Quadrangle Club. After the close of the last show, at 11:30 p. m., Goodman and his band will return to the stage to play for 30 minutes, during which those caring to dance may do so, on the stage.

'Grapes of Wrath' Bought for Screen

Purchase of John Steinbeck's new novel, "Grapes of Wrath," acclaimed by some critics as the greatest interpretation of the American scene ever written, was announced this week by Darryl F. Zanuck, 20th Century-Fox production chief.

Zanuck paid $70,000 for the screen rights of the book, the highest price ever reported for a novel for motion pictures.

He also has in his possession two other important literary properties of the last few years and is getting to work on screen versions of them. One is Louis Bromfield's "The Rains Came," now in production on a $2,000,000 budget, the other "Drums Along the Mohawk," which is being done in color to take advantage of the numerous outdoor scenes.

Hollywood Decides to Do 'Cavalcade' About Itself

Epic, However, Will Be Only Triangle Story Of Actress, Director and Actor Through the Years, With Significant Omissions.

HOLLYWOOD, May 6 (AP).

THIS town is about to tell its own story, a cavalcade, it's called. A cavalcade of Hollywood, to be thorough and honest, ought to include such essentials to motion picture progress as the Fatty Arbuckle case, the rise and death of Will Rogers and the effect of the Legion of Decency's demands.

Such a picture, frank enough to admit these and similar highlights that played a part in Hollywood's development, probably never will be made. At least these and like matters will not be chronicled in a picture 20th Century is readying, a piece all-inclusively entitled "Cavalcade of Hollywood."

The scenario, as Director Irving Cummings outlined it with considerable enthusiasm, is not much more than a love story—the familiar triangle, formed by an actress (Alice Faye), a director (Don Ameche) and an actor (maybe Cesar Romero). It starts in the merry pie-throwing days of slapstick and Sennett and takes its characters (presumably without aging, in the Zanuck manner) up to the arrival of sound, a decade ago.

Cummings believes that in such a story as this, designed to further the evidence motion pictures are your best entertainment, too much detail and too much history would be disadvantageous. He also said that anything told after the time the movies learned to talk would be an anti-climax. Maybe Cummings is right.

It seems that a cavalcade of the movies ought to include a brief preface telling of early experiments in breaking down movement on a film and reconstructing it. It might be a good opportunity to give the Belgian, Plateau, who built the phenakistoscope 110 years ago, a bit of film footage. His machine was one of the first steps of the motion picture. It should include snatches of the first film, the first feature, the first serial, the first newsreel and the first color film.

It should not fail to include at least a reference to the Arbuckle case, because its repercussions led to the formation of the important Hays office. (Mightn't the producer of such a picture encounter censorial troubles from this same Hays outfit for attempting to show what was responsible for its being?)

Of importance also in the story of Hollywood was the Pickford-Fairbanks separation and divorce. Coming after years of their build-up as the ideally married couple—the world's most famous partners in love and business—it pointedly told the public that even Hollywood idols have feet of clay. It prepared the world for the interminable domestic difficulties of the rest of Hollywood and perhaps softened the blows.

Hollywood's greatest loss was the death of Will Rogers. The public's singular affection for him put him in the role of a much-needed ambassador of good will for the entire industry.

Sound is important, historically, for a variety of reasons, but principally because it created a new interest in an art that was sadly in need of a stimulant. Stimulating, too, was enforced censorship. It is doubtful whether a filmed biography of the make-believe town would be honest enough to include the reasons which caused an outraged public to threaten boycotting if the movies failed to do their own cleaning up. To the pleasant surprise of even the skeptics, self-censorship improved and made business better.

Post-depression urgencies brought the oft-maligned double bill, which apparently doubled Hollywood's work but did not double its payroll. As an aside, it might be added that double bills are responsible for "B" pictures.

A very cute sequence might be inserted in this mythical movie showing Clark Gable's name sharing a marquee with a soup bowl. After the depression, business fell to such a state that theaters were obliged to give away money, autos and crockery to attract customers. It isn't a flattering commentary on Hollywood's objectives, but it's part of the story.

Civic Theater Chooses Cast for Its Opening Comedy, 'Call It a Day'

"CALL IT A DAY," the comedy with which the Civic Theater will open its second season on June 20, has been cast with these players: Lenore Griffith, Charles Barnhardt, Tommye Birch, Billie Lou Watt, Alan Green, Margaret Hart, Dorothy Gillan, Katherine Maze, Anne Rheinholdt, Betty McGrew, Eugene Wood, Martha Jensen and Jane Owsley.

The play, new to St. Louis, deals with the romantic behavior of a lively English family from 7 a. m. to midnight on a single day. The father becomes enamoured of an actress whose income tax report he is straightening out, the mother has her own romantic lapse, the elder daughter throws herself at a married artist, the younger daughter survives a youthful adoration and the son goes out with the girl next door. In the motion picture version of 1937, Olivia de Havilland, Ian Hunter, Anita Louise, Alice Brady, Roland Young, Frieda Inescourt and Bonita Granville were featured players.

The Civic Theater season will consist of six plays, each to run six nights. Arrangements have been made for public transportation from the City Limits loop in Maplewood to the theater on the Sebago Club grounds.

SO IS BASEMENT LAUNDERING

LADY WASHWOMAN, WHAT WAGES?

YOU carry the clothes to the cellar. Sort the white into one pile, the colored into another.

You run the water. You put in your wash. You take it out and put it through the wringer. You lift it from one rinse to another. You hang up to dry.

Seems simple enough, but what about the armache, the backache, the tired feet? How about risking rheumatism?

And the total result is an imperfectly clean, damp wash that has cost you $30 a year more than had it been sent to a Dependable Power Laundry.

An ordinary washwoman would have done the job for $2.50, plus carfare, plus meals.

You have not received a penny. You are old before your time.

Quit it. Send your clothes to a Dependable Power Laundry, where your clothes are perfectly washed and sterilized.

Be sure this Emblem is on the truck that stops at your door. It means ownership responsibility and pride in every detail of the laundering.

ing, too, was enforced censorship. It is doubtful whether a filmed biography of the make-believe town would be honest enough to include the reasons which caused an outraged public to threaten boycotting if the movies failed to do their own cleaning up. To the pleasant surprise of even the skeptics, self-censorship improved and made business better.

Post-depression urgencies brought the oft-maligned double bill, which apparently doubled Hollywood's work but did not double its payroll. As an aside, it might be added that double bills are responsible for "B" pictures.

A very cute sequence might be inserted in this mythical movie showing Clark Gable's name sharing a marquee with a soup bowl. After the depression, business fell to such a state that theaters were obliged to give away money, autos and crockery to attract customers. It isn't a flattering commentary on Hollywood's objectives, but it's part of the story.

Civic Theater Chooses Cast for Its Opening Comedy, 'Call It a Day'

"CALL IT A DAY," the comedy with which the Civic Theater will open its second season on June 20, has been cast with these players: Lenore Griffith, Charles Barnhardt, Tommye Birch, Billie Lou Watt, Alan Green, Margaret Hart, Dorothy Gillan, Katherine Maze, Anne Rheinholdt, Betty McGrew, Eugene Wood, Martha Jensen and Jane Owsley.

The play, new to St. Louis, deals with the romantic behavior of a lively English family from 7 a. m. to midnight on a single day. The father becomes enamoured of an actress whose income tax report he is straightening out, the mother has her own romantic lapse, the elder daughter throws herself at a married artist, the younger daughter survives a youthful adoration and the son goes out with the girl next door. In the motion picture version of 1937, Olivia de Havilland, Ian Hunter, Anita Louise, Alice Brady, Roland Young, Frieda Inescourt and Bonita Granville were featured players.

The Civic Theater season will consist of six plays, each to run six nights. Arrangements have been made for public transportation from the City Limits loop in Maplewood to the theater on the Sebago Club grounds.

NBC Improves Broadcasts to South America

Puts Programs Into Argentina With Clarity Almost Equal to That of Buenos Aires Stations.

WITH a new steerable transmitting antenna in use, the NBC's short wave station, W3XAL, at Bound Brook, N. J., is laying programs down in Argentina with a clarity almost equal to that of the local stations at Buenos Aires. Tests show that the station's effective power toward Buenos Aires is now 600,000 watts. The new antenna system renders unnecessary multiple antennas or elaborate mechanism to change the direction of W3XAL'S transmission. When a second section is placed in operation, the engineers at Bound Brook will be able to move the beam through an angle of 20 degrees by pushing a button. Because the 9.67 megacycle band on which the steerable antenna works is effective only for evening and night broadcasts to Latin-America, NBC is building a second one and an extra 25,000-watt transmitter for broadcasting of the 21.63 meg. band.

A Mason Jar for Lard

Keep the lard in a Mason jar instead of a tin kettle. You will like it because it does not become rusted at the bottom and you also can see exactly how much you have at a glance. Unless lard is used quickly a slightly rancid taste is apt to form in the tin container that is obviated with glass.

Monogrammed Towels

Monogrammed towels are always welcome wedding presents, if you are racking your wits for a gift that will not be duplicated too often. Especially clever are the towel sets marked for "Mr. and Mrs." If your gift is to a woman with a family, you can also obtain towels marked for "Son" and "Daughter."

Miss Baumes Is Married to F. A. Barada

St. Louis Woman's Club Is Setting for Late Afternoon Ceremony and Reception—Honeymoon at Sea Island, Ga.

MISS MARY JANE BAUMES, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Bowler Baumes, became the bride late yesterday afternoon at the St. Louis Woman's Club of Franc Alexander Barada, formerly of Lees Summit, near Kansas City, Mo. It was one of the largest of the mid-spring weddings.

The entire lower floor of the clubhouse, including reception halls and music room, where the wedding march was played, were decorated with palms and spring flowers. All white floral arrangements were used in the colonial banquet hall, where dinner was served at small tables after the service.

The ceremony was performed in the large pink and blue east lounge by the Rev. Dr. George H. Tolley of Second Baptist Church, where the Baumes family has worshiped for many years. A candlelit aisle was stretched diagonally from the door to a flower altar arranged before white transparent velvet drapery covering the entire corner of the room from ceiling to floor. Standards of white snapdragon and larkspur were massed across the setting with quantities of lemon foliage, and woodwardia ferns were clustered at its base where the bride and bridegroom knelt on a satin prie-dieu for the blessing.

The bride and her father, who gave her in marriage, were preceded to the altar by Mrs. Frank Rice Sheldon, the former Miss Lillian Tuttle Bixby, who was matron of honor and her only attendant. A. Silvestre Barada Jr. of Dallas, Tex., was best man for his brother, and four Kansas City friends—John Murphy, Samuel Princeton Quarles, Benjamin Stoddard Hargis and Compton Tucker—were ushers. The families of both principals and several out-of-town guests, mainly from Kansas City, were grouped near the altar.

The bride wore a creamy all lace wedding gown over matching satin, its flaring bouffant skirt terminating in a three-yard oval train, and the bodice designed with a heart-shaped neckline and short puffed sleeves. Her full tulle bridal veil, graduating down the back from fingertip length, was worn with a face veil from a band of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was lilies of the valley, centered with a cluster of white orchids.

Mrs. Sheldon's gown was pale French blue marquisette alternating with wide horizontal lace bands made over blue taffeta. Lace bands outlined the low square neck, formed short puffed sleeves and an inset girdle, and trimmed the bouffant skirt. A widebrimmed yellow leghorn hat, adorned simply with delphinium blue velvet ribbon tied into a bow with waist-length streamers, completed the costume, and Mrs. Sheldon carried yellow daisies and hybrid blue delphinium.

The wedding party, with the parents of the principals and Mrs. Barada Jr., stood at the altar to receive their guests after the ceremony. Mrs. Baumes' gown was iris purple crepe, a simple model trimmed with cartridge pleating at side pockets to give skirt fullness. Her small hat was made entirely of French blue veiling with a cockade of purple feather flowers in front and veiling falling softly down the back. She wore purple-throated white orchids and purple accessories. The bridegroom's mother chose aquamarine marquisette and lace and a matching straw hat adorned with lavender and blue veiling. Deep purple orchids were fastened at her shoulder.

At the far end of the banquet hall, before mirrors to the ceiling, a tiered wedding cake stood in clusters of snapdragon and larkspur with greenery at each side. A lace-covered reception table in the center of the room was decorated with a centerpiece of gardenias, lilies of the valley and snapdragon contained in porcelain bowls, and was lighted by white candles in silver candelabra. Smaller bouquets adorned tables of six and eight for the 150 guests, and each window was decorated with ferns.

In addition to the bridegroom's parents and his brother and sister-in-law, out-of-town guests included his aunt, Mrs. Florence Bowman, Mrs. Quarles and Mrs. Hargis, wives of ushers; Miss Nancy Jane Hargis, Miss Betty Hamilton, F. W. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wilson, all of Kansas City; Mr. and Mrs. E. Sydney Stephens Jr. of Columbia, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Lindsay of Cleveland, uncle and aunt of the bride.

Mr. Barada and his bride will spend their honeymoon at Cloister Inn, Sea Island, Ga. They will live at 375 North Taylor avenue.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute, returning there for graduate work in jewelry design and

The Rev. F. H. Duggan officiated in the presence of the families. Mr. Thatcher is the son of former Judge Thomas Hudson Thatcher and Mrs. Thatcher of "Glen Owen," Ferguson.

After the ceremony, breakfast was served at the Waldo home. Later Mr. and Mrs. Thatcher, the latter dressed in a green printed dress and beige jacket, departed for a month's trip in the East. They will live temporarily with the bridegroom's parents.

St. Louisans in New York for World's Fair

Virginia and Blanche Fischel Guests of Their Aunt, Mrs. George Gellhorn—Mrs. M. E. Holderness Among Eastern Visitors.

NEW YORK, May 6.

WHEN the Fair opened on Sunday, with a flash of cosmic rays, myriad lights, flags, flowers and splashing fountains, no end of St. Louisans turned up there. Mrs. George Gellhorn was at the Theme Center, where so many avenues come together; Mr. and Mrs. John Hylan Heminway (she is the former Jane Johnson) were near the soaring white Trylon and the steel doors of the Perisphere, and, even before the Fair opened, Mrs. George W. Crawford and her mother, Mrs. Robert N. Warmack, were lunching at the Terrace Club overlooking the waters of Fountain Lake.

Mrs. Gellhorn, chairman of the Missouri Women's Advisory Committee for the Fair, attended the reception given Sunday afternoon by Mrs. Vincent Astor, chairman of the National Committee, in the committee's modernistic, two-storied redwood building, which is garlanded with red geraniums and is situated near the Amusement Area.

Senator Michael Kinney is the Missouri Commissioner for the Fair and he and Mrs. Kinney, here for the opening, were at the Waldorf. They returned to St. Louis on Wednesday, but Senator Kinney will be back in New York again next week for the opening of the Missouri Building May 10.

Miss Virginia Fischel, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Fischel, of 14 Lenox place, arrived in New York Tuesday, to attend the Fair and visit her aunt, Mrs. Gellhorn, who has taken Miss Anna Lord Strauss' apartment at 136 East Sixty-fourth street for a month. Miss Blanche Fischel is also in town, spending the week end with her aunt, and will return to New Haven on Monday. She attends the Yale school of Fine and Applied Arts, and specializes in painting. Mrs. Gellhorn's daughter, Miss Martha Gellhorn, who always seems to be doing something of interest, is now living in Cuba, where she has a house just outside of Havana and is at work on a new book. Another St. Louisan who has been visiting Mrs. Gellhorn is Miss Eunice Holderness, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin E. Holderness. Before coming to New York, Miss Holderness was in Richmond, Va., with her mother. Mrs. Holderness arrived in New York yesterday, and early next week she and Miss Eunice Holderness and Miss Virginia Fischel will return to St. Louis.

Miss Grace Niggeman, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar G. Niggeman and their daughter, Miss Jane Niggeman, are returning to St. Louis this week end after a 10-day visit in the East. They were in Boston for several days last week and motored to Cape Cod, looking over various summer resorts. Soon after arriving at the Waldorf on Friday, they drove to Spring Lake, N. J., to see this spa where the Cornet family has gone for years and where the John S. Leahys were frequent visitors. The Niggemans spent Monday at the fair—which is so colossal that even inveterate walkers are going to take more than a passing interest in the benches and chairs that greet visitors at every turn.

Mrs. Robert Brookings Wallace of the St. Louis Country Club Grounds came to New York on Thursday and is at the Waldorf for a week while visiting her daughter, Miss Kathleen Wallace, who has an apartment nearby with Miss Bonnie Langenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Langenberg. Miss Langenberg, who has been living in New York since last fall, is planning to return to St. Louis to visit her family during June and to attend the wedding of Miss Mary Louise Simpkins and John Allan Love Jr. on June 24.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Herndon Smith, Miss Kathleen Wallace's cousins, will leave New York the first of June with their son Jay to occupy their house at Harbor Point, Mich. Mr. and Mrs. Smith own this place jointly with Mr. Smith's sister, Mrs. Katherine Herndon Smith.

The new galleries of the Associated American Artists on Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street, opened recently with an exhibit of Thomas Hart Benton's paintings, and the work of this Missourian has been drawing 19,000 persons per week—something of a record for any art show. Mr. Benton has not had a one-man show in New York for seven years, and he came from his home in Kansas City to be present at the combination preview and fiftieth birthday party, given April 17, when 1700 art lovers, friends and socialites dropped in between the hours of 9 p. m. and 2 a. m. St. Louisans at Opening Of New York World's Fair clair Lewis and William Saroyan, the St. Louis painter, Joe Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney and the John Philip Marquands were among those who turned out to see the collection, which included 14 new paintings never before shown, and also "Suzanna and the Elders," the picture which caused such a stir when it was at the St. Louis Art Museum earlier this year. Helen Keller came in early this week, with the writer Frazier Hunt, to see the exhibit (and that is just the way she put it when she called up to ask about it). Raymond Griffith of the movies was a recent visitor and if you want to see Katharine Hepburn, this gallery is a good place to find her for she is a great admirer of Benton's work.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Nims are planning to spend a day in New York before going up to Hartford, Conn., on Thursday, for the wedding of Mrs. Nim's niece, Miss Elizabeth Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Clifton Long Jr., to Judson Bemis, son of Mrs. Albert Farwell Bemis of Chestnut Hill, Mass. The wedding will be on Saturday, at the Asylum Hill Congregational Church in Hartford, and will be followed by a small reception at the home of the bride's parents. The bride and bridegroom will make their home in St. Louis after a wedding trip to Honolulu.

Mrs. Thomas Ratcliffe, a sister of Mrs .Nims and Mrs. Long, who lives at the La Salle Hotel in New York, and her son, Thomas Ratcliffe Jr., will go to Hartford on Friday. Thursday night Mrs. Ratcliffe will attend the National Institute of Social Science dinner at the Waldorf's Starlight Roof. Former President Herbert Hoover will present the annual awards to Martha Berry, director of the Berry Schools in Kentucky, and to Church Osborne vice-president of the Metropolitan Museum and director of the World's Fair. Mrs. Ratcliffe will be in Hartford with her sister, Mrs. Long, for a week after the wedding, and will then return to New York for a few days before going to Woods Hole, Mass., to open her summer home.

Winifred Caldwell Becomes Bride of Robert W. Crasher

MISS WINIFRED DAVIS CALDWELL, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Handly Caldwell, 16 Algonquin lane, Webster Groves, and Robert William Crasher of Marion, Ind., were married yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. The ceremony was performed at 420 Berry road, former home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Guth. A long aisle outlined with white tapers marked the way to the improvised altar placed at the end of the living room. White spring flowers and woodwardia fern formed the altar and decorated the house throughout. A bridal table similarly decorated was arranged in the solarium. The Rev. Marion Forst of Mary Queen of Peace Church officiated. Mr. Crasher is the son of Mrs. Carl McEntire of Marion.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in white embossed chiffon made with a low heart-shaped neckline and long leg-o'-mutton sleeves. The bodice was closely fitted to the hips and flared into a long train. The bride wore a diamond pendant, an heirloom in the bridegroom's family—a bridal gift. Her long veil was secured by a tiara of pleated tulle. She carried an arm bouquet of white lilacs. The bridesmaids, Mrs. William G. Coffey, Mrs. John H. Caldwell Jr. and Miss Sara Louise Guth, were gowned alike in chartreuse chiffon. Their gowns were made with low V necklines and wide shirring at the waist. The skirts fell in tiny pleats from the waistline. The young women wore coronets of the same material with short veils and carried lavender lilacs. Mrs. Caldwell was in wine-colored lace, with a matching hat, with which she wore orchids. Miss Katherine Stuart sang preceding the ceremony.

James P. Mooney of Marion, Ind., was best man. Groomsmen were John H. Caldwell Jr. and George Wilkinson, both of Marion.

After the reception the pair left for New York, where they will attend the World's Fair. Then they will sail for Bermuda. They will be at home at 1923 South Washington avenue, Marion, Ind.

Mrs. Crasher attended Ward Belmont School, Nashville, Tenn.; Washington University, and was graduated from Drake University, Des Moines, Ia. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Mr. Crasher received his law degree at the University of Indiana. His fraternities are Sigma Chi and Phi Delta Phi.

How would you like to win a Kimball Grand Piano—a famous Kimball Consolette or a Kimball Studio Piano—beautiful instruments every one of them? You can. There are many other valuable prizes, too. There is absolutely nothing to buy, nothing hard to do; no trick puzzles to solve, because we want you to enjoy every minute of this really different contest—and we want you to win. Here's the whole story:

The KIMBALL Child Culture Contest

This is our Eighty-Second Anniversary, an event that calls for real celebration—and we want the public to be a part of it. Eighty-two years of giving music lovers the finest possible instruments! Kimball success is proved by the tens of thousands of Kimball Pianos which are making life cheerful in the American Home, and have for decades. This is a record of which we are justifiably proud—and we are grateful to the music lovers of America for their appreciation of our ideals. So, we are going to celebrate another Anniversary most practically. As our contribution to the advancement of music; and to give your child the opportunity of a musical training which he should not be denied, we are offering you parents a chance to win Kimball Pianos and hundreds of dollars in cash.

Here's all you have to do to win a genuine KIMBALL PIANO . . or valuable cash prizes

Just write us a letter, on a special blank that we or your local Kimball dealer will gladly provide—in your own words—expressing your reason for wanting your child to create his or her own music. You can do this easily in fifty words or less—and do it well. Remember—just put down on paper why you want your child to have a piano. No literary talent necessary. In fact it's just the other way around. We want matter-of-fact, plain reasons—just simple English description of your reasons for wanting a piano in your home. We can use this material widely in the preparation of our national advertising and our literature.

HERE ARE THE MANY ACTUAL PRIZES . . . AND THEY ARE EASY TO WIN

For the best letter received on the subject—"Why I Want My Child To Have A Piano"—the First Prize is a De Luxe, Artist-size, Kimball Grand Piano, with the internationally famous balanced, even tension scale. The letter judged to be next best wins a famous Kimball Consolette. The Kimball Consolette includes the exclusive tone chamber, conceived and perfected by Kimball Pipe Organ engineers. The writer of the third best letter will receive a handsome, 1939 Kimball Studio Piano—the famous vertical piano that has long held first place in the esteem of Schools, Colleges, Teachers, and thousands of fine homes. All brand new instruments, of course; and all with the Kimball tone guarantee.

In addition, there are one hundred thirty five (135) cash prizes, totalling hundreds of dollars:

5 First Cash Prizes of $50 each
10 Cash Prizes of $25 each
20 Cash Prizes of $10 each
and 100 Cash Prizes of $5 each

Donnelley Corporation, a well-known, old, and reliable organization that specializes in the expert and impartial judging of national contest entries, as the sole judge of all contributions; and you agree to abide by their decision as final. (4) In case of ties, Prizes will be equally awarded to tying contestants. (5) Neatness does not count. Just write plainly on one side of the paper. (6) Because of the necessity for uniformity, all contestants must use the same form of entry blank, on which your letter is to be written. Blanks are available at your local Kimball dealer, or we will be glad to mail them upon your request. (7) Final closing date of this contest is Monday, June 12th, 1939. Your letter must reach us on or before midnight of that day.

No employees of the W. W. Kimball Company or its dealers or their employees throughout the country are eligible to enter this contest.

Barnett-Fulenwider Engagement Announced

At a tea given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. George Banger Jr., 1077 McCausland avenue, announcement was made of the engagement of her sister, Miss Ella Roe Fulenwider and William King Barnett. The bride-elect, who was reared in Cape Girardeau, Mo., makes her home here with Mr. and Mrs. Banger. The prospective bridegroom, son of Mrs. Florence Barnett of Greenfield, Mo., lives on Sylvester avenue in Webster Groves.

Guests were greeted at the door by little Nancy de Voe who presented each with a rose tied with a limerick suggesting that further information would be found on the tea table. The table was centered by a miniature car filled with sweet peas to which was attached the engagement announcement and plans for a honeymoon to Seattle, Wash.

Mrs. Banger was assisted by Mrs. Frank Temme, Mrs. Gertrude Weaver, and Mrs. Richard Bowes as well as Miss Helen Hackman of Cape Girardeau.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Southeast Missouri State Teachers' College and has studied at the University of Missouri and the University of Colorado. Her fiance was graduated from Southwest Missouri State Teachers' College and has studied at Colorado and the University of Wisconsin. Both teach at the Webster Groves High School.

Plans are being made for an early summer wedding.

ANNUAL HORSE SHOW TO BE HELD AT ATLANTIC CITY

Atlantic City is preparing for the annual horse show which is to be held in the municipal convention hall May 16 to 20. The vast floor space in the main hall is being converted into a woodland with evergreens, box hedges and flowers. The courses for both hunters and roadsters are larger than those at many other shows and horses are to be quartered in the main hall which will make them accessible both to owners and spectators. Trophies and cash awards will total about $15,000.

On May 27 "Miss Atlantic City" will be selected. She will act as hostess to the visiting beauties who will compete for the crown of "Miss America 1939," Sept. 4 to 9.

ADDITIONAL EXTRA FARE TRAIN

An additional extra fare train, the "Treasure Island Special," will go into service on the Overland Route between Chicago and San Francisco beginning May 22. The new train will be operated jointly by Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and North Western Railroads throughout the summer, supplementing the two regular streamline trains which are on a 40-hour schedule.

Trains will leave Chicago on the 4th, 10th, 16th, 22nd and 28th of each month. The new train will carry seven standard Pullmans, a diner, club, observation and baggage car. This added train provides service out of Chicago and San Francisco on an average of every second day in the month.

MANY CALIFORNIA EVENTS

Events scheduled to take place in May in northern and central California are numerous, and will afford exposition visitors the opportunity of combining a number of interesting activities, with general sightseeing. The world-famous international jumping frob jubilee at Angels Camp takes place May 20-21. Rodeos, stampedes and horse shows are numerous during the month, too, climaxed by the Golden Gate International Exposition Rodeo, on Treasure Island, from May 12 to 21. Other sports include yachting events, spring festivals, flower shows, homecoming gatherings, a mountain play, and a pet parade.

MAURETANIA TO SAIL ON MAIDEN VOYAGE

Largest Ship to Be Built in England to Have Sea Trials May 15.

The new Cunard White Star liner "Mauretania" which is being made ready for sea trials to be held during the week of May 15th, will sail on her maiden voyage from Liverpool to New York on June 17.

The new ship which has a displacement of 36,000 tons is the largest ship ever to be built in England. It will have two propellers, each weighing 25 tons. The anchors weigh nine tons each and the weight of the main gear wheels exceeds those of the Queen Mary and the Queen Elizabeth.

The double-bottom principle of modern marine construction has been carried out, making the new liner a ship within a ship. The steel "skins" with ample room between form the entire lower part of the hull.

Three hundred miles of wire and 15,000 lamps will furnish light for the ship and 70 electric clocks will tell time throughout. In addition to the usual motion picture theatrs there are shops, special children's nurseries, and a hospital. A printing shop is equipped to turn out a daily newspaper as well as menus, cards, etc., which will be needed on board during a trip.

Eleven elevators will carry the passengers to the 10 decks from which open 710 portholes. Enough tableware has been stocked to enable the serving of a banquet for 6000 guests if it were possible to seat that number. Blankets, towels and table cloths number 650,000 pieces.

While the New Mauretania is called a streamlined "two-stacker" there are in reality eight funnels which lead to the boilers in the stokehole. Each funnel encases four separate funnels. The main funnels are 90 feet in circumference and 56 feet high and include a system of washers which separate soot from boiler smoke. The soot is discharged below the water line.

The new liner which was launched July 28, 1838, is 772 feet long and 89 feet wide. She carries 24 lifeboats, two of them motor driven and 14 with auxiliary Diesel type engines. Space is provided on board for 70 automobiles. The holds will accommodate about 390,000 cubic feet of merchandise and cargo, including space for refrigerated cargo.

In additional to a Marconi wireless system the new ship will carry a Marconi "echometer." This is a sounding device by which the shape of the ocean bed is recorded. Whatever the speed of the ship or the prevailing weather conditions, this instrument records the depth of water beneath the keel.

MICHIGAN TO HOLD TULIP AND PERCH FESTIVALS

The eleventh annual Tulip Time festival at Holland, Mich., will open on Saturday, May 13, with the traditional street scrubbing ceremony, Folks parade and Klompen dance. The Netherlands museum, Industrial Fair, tulip lanes and gardens will continue throughout the week.

The Mayor and the Aldermen are being measured for costumes patterned after Rembrandt's seventeenth century Dutch officials. Natives expect to don the full skirts and knee length "broeken" of the island of Marken. Six hundred people are being trained for parts in the pageant called "Tulip Tales", the dramatic history of the tulip. Three hundred children will take part in the wooden shoe dance and the American Legion Zouaves who use a drill tempo of 320 steps per minute will be a highlight of the band review on May 20th.

During this time there will also be a "perch festival" at Charlevoix. Since Round Lake falls into the category of being "great lakes and connecting waters" the limit is set at 50 per day and the size seven inches.

WESTBOUND TRAIN SERVICE

Fast through Pullman service between St. Louis and San Francisco via the new General Pershing streamlined train will be inaugurated on June 10th by the Burlington, Denver & Rio Grande and Western Pacific Railroad. Departure of the Pershing zephyr is being moved up one hour. Westbound travelers will leave St. Louis at 2 p. m. for Lincoln where a hookup will be made with the Exposition Flyer which reaches Denver at 7:55 the next morning and Salt Lake City that night. San Francisco will be reached on the second night. The schedule has been arranged to include most of the scenic high spots of Colorado during daylight travel.

Cape Town to Celebrate Centenary.

Cape Town, Union of South Africa, will open its centenary celebrations on Dec. 3, 1940, and continue then for 13 months. The Franconia will call there on her annual cruise around the world. Cape Town and the Cunard Line were both founded during the same year, 1840.

MANY FOREIGN VISITORS TO ATTEND N. Y. WORLD'S FAIR

Nearly 200 foreign groups totaling over 8000 individuals will visit the New York World's Fair this summer, according to information from the American Express. These 8000 foreign visitors will come principally from Europe, South America, North Africa and the Near East. This does not take into account additional foreign groups from various countries nor the thousands of individuals who will not be members of tour groups.

The above 200 groups represent France, England, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Yugoslavia, Greece, Turkey, Holland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Latvia, Belgium, Poland, Finland, Switzerland, Rumania, French North Africa, Brazil, Portugal, Hungary and from that area which was Czecho-Slovakia. Large numbers from India and Japan are expected, but these people will not be coming in organized groups.

"Four groups have already arrived in the United States—three from Germany and one from Brazil—and are now on tour in the Middle West until the Fair opens. The last group of the season, which will come from Germany, will arrive late in October.

The largest South American party, more than 100 persons, is scheduled to arrive on June 15th. A staff of linguists and guides will be on hand to accompany these visitors while they are in the United States. These foreign visitors will see cities other than New York. A typical 15-day program will include New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Detroit, Niagara Falls and back to New York.

EXTRA FARE TRAIN

An additional extra fare train, the "Treasure Island Special," will go into service on the Overland Route between Chicago and San Francisco beginning May 22. The new train will be operated jointly by the Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Chicago & North Western railroads and will supplement the two fast trains now in service which are on a 49-hour schedule.

Trains will leave Chicago on the 4th, 10th, 16th, 22d and 28th day of each month. The special train will carry seven Pullmans, a diner, a club, observation and baggage cars. The addition of this new train will provide fast train service out of Chicago and San Francisco on an average of every second day instead of every third day.

ANNUAL HORSE SHOW TO BE HELD AT ATLANTIC CITY

The annual Atlantic City horse show will be held in the Municipal Convention Hall, May 16 to 20. The 140,000 square feet of space available are being converted into woodland with evergreens, box hedges and flowers. Because of the large amount of space available, the course for both hunters and roadsters are large. The horses will be quartered in the main hall, making tsem more accessible to both owners and spectators.

A number of junior and adult events for amateur riders have been added to the program. Trophies and cash awards will total approximately $15,000.

"Miss Atlantic City" will be selected on May 27. The young woman selected will be hostess to the visiting beauties, who will be in Atlantic City during Sept. 4 to 9 to compete for the crown of "Miss America 1939."

SUMMER CRUISES SCHEDULED BY HOLLAND-AMERICAN LINE

The Holland-American line has an unusual variety of trips scheduled on its summer and fall program. Beginning May 5, when the Volendam sails for Bermuda for a 12-day trip, 13 cruises have been scheduled through October.

There will be four cruises from five to 13 days duration in June, touching Curacao, La Guaira, and St. Thomas, and Nassau and Havana. Two cruises are announced for July. A Labor day cruise leaves for Halifax; a 12-day trip at a later sailing date touches Nassau, Haiti, Kingston and Havana.

Sailing hours have been arranged to meet the convenience of business people. The steamers depart after 5 p. m. on Friday; several leave at noon on Saturdays.

To Attend Advertising Convention.

A group of 25 advertising men will arrive on June 5 to attend the convention of the Advertising Federation of America, to be held in New York. Russell Chapman of the British Advertising Association, will be at the head of the group.

Miss Lillian James To Be Wed June 30

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Lillian James and Chester Von Rump. Miss James, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. James of St. Louis, makes her home with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott James, and her sister, Miss Emilie James, 3302 Magnolia avenue. Mr. Von Rump is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman A. Von Rump, 223 West Big Bend road, Webster Groves.

The engagement was announced last Saturday afternoon, April 29, at an informal tea given by Miss Emilie James from 3 to 6 o'clock. Two young nieces of the prospective bridegroom, Patricia and Katherine Von Rump, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lee Von Rump, 714 Marshall road, Webster Groves, wore colonial dresses and stood in the hallway to present each guest with corsages, to which cards were attached with the names of the engaged pair.

The wedding will take place Friday night, June 30, at 8 o'clock at the First Congregational Church. The Rev. Dr. Robert Porter will perform the ceremony. Miss Emilie will be maid of honor for her sister, with Mrs. Elliott James, sister-in-law, and Miss Adele Bowler, bridesmaids. Langston Van Dover will be best man, and ushers are Arthur Lee Van Rump, brother of the bridegroom-elect, and Orion Jones.

Miss James, a graduate of Harris Teachers' College, attended St. Louis and Washington Universities. Mr. Von Rump attended Washington University.

Gray Hair—at my age?

Certainly NOT! I can't afford it

CANUTE WATER solves my problem

If you have gray hair, simply wet it with Canute Water and allow to dry. A few applications, (all in one day, if desired), completely re-colors it . . . similar to its former natural shade. Attention only once a month will keep it that way.

Canute Water will not interfere with permanent waving or curling. The new color also withstands sunshine, salt-water and shampooing. Your hair remains clean and natural to the touch and looks natural in any light.

Canute Water is pure, safe, colorless and crystal-clear . . . and remarkably easy to use at home. No experience is necessary. It solves your problem so completely that you, yourself, will find it difficult to distinguish the re-colored hair from your natural.

SAFE!
No Skin Test Needed

Canute Water is safe and pure. It has been used for over 25 years without injury to a single person. In addition to this remarkable record of safety Canute Water was also tested and proven perfectly harmless by a Noted Scientist in one of America's greatest Universities.

No Other Product Can Make All These Claims

Humidity is what keeps fruits and vegetables fresh and crisp — meat fresh and moist. The new Westinghouse Refrigerator gives you 85% humidity in the Meat-Keeper — 95 to 100% in the big glass-top Humidrawer. But with humidity you want to be SURE of the right cold. If cold isn't right the humidity may encourage molds and bacteria where you want to keep them out. So — only Westinghouse has it!

For the first time in any refrigerator! True-Temp holds temperature on the line in the food compartment regardless of fluctuations in kitchen temperature. You set it for "40-Normal" and the main food compartment stays at 40 degrees until you change the dial setting.

Other features you'll like in the new Westinghouse include a big new Meat-Keeper, 15 pounds capacity! It slides in and out like a drawer. Janitorial and Engine-Room Forces of St. Louis Public Schools Reported 107 Jobs Overmanned Survey Finds Eliminations Would Result in Annual Payroll Saving Estimated at $162,120.

By RICHARD G. BAUMHOFF
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

Janitorial and engine-room forces of the public schools, now numbering slightly more than 600 persons, are overmanned to the extent of 107 jobs, or about 17 per cent, it is asserted in the survey report delivered to the Board of Education recently.

Elimination of these jobs would result in an annual payroll saving estimated at $162,120. Jobs suggested for abolition are: Twenty-eight janitors and matrons in high schools, 50 janitors and matrons elsewhere, nine assistant engineers, nine oilers, five coal passers, four firemen and half of the time of five other firemen. Of those who would be dropped in the custodial section, about 50 would be men and 28 women. Gradual dropping of employes as normal vacancies occur, rather than wholesale discharges, is proposed.

Purchase of electricity for the high schools is urged, instead of generating it. This would involve some additional expense, so that the net saving through elimination of the jobs is placed at $145,245 a year.

School Patronage Center.

The operation of school buildings is under the building department, where principal school patronage occurs. Concerning this, the report says:

"It is not strange that members of the survey staff heard charges to the effect that political favoritism enters into the selection of new employes. It was admitted at several points that pressure exerted by board members, as well as by other influential citizens, influences the selections at times. In all fairness, however, it should be said that the custodial employes as a group appear to be capable people regardless of any possible political affiliation they may have."

For the Merit System.

Adoption of a merit system and permanent tenure on good behavior for the operating forces is urged. The report points out that applications for jobs throughout the building department are handled by Philip C. Brante, one of the three assistants to the building commissioner, but that he is overburdened with details, having direct supervision of 77 per cent of the department's employes, in five divisions.

Brante, it is shown, exercises great power in selection and promotion of all employes, subject to the commissioner's final approval. Written examinations have not been given since 1926. One of Brante's divisions includes the force of more than 500 custodians and matrons and the report declares a full-time executive is needed for that work alone.

Lack of carefully prepared written work schedules is given as one reason for excessive numbers of employes. Recommending a retirement pay plan for elderly custodians and matrons, the report quotes school officials as saying the force is too large in the high schools because they are used as a sort of "old folks' home." However, the surveyors found only 56 members of the whole force past 60 years of age last November.

New Southwest High.

At the new Southwest High School, the load on the housekeeping staff is scarcely a third of that in some cities, in spite of the use of labor-saving devices. The size of the custodial and engine-room staffs cannot be justified in any of the high schools, it is asserted, with the proposal that in these schools the aggregate number of janitors and matrons be reduced from 133 to 105 and of heat and power workers from 61 to 31½.

St. Louis, with a 51-hour work week for janitors, averages 10,998 square feet of floor space for each of them, but the report urges that the custodial and engine-room forces be put on a 44-hour week, with an average of 16,000 square feet for each janitor. A comparison of annual payrolls for custodial and engine-room workers in typical high schools follows: Soldan High, St. Louis, $34,071; John Jay, Cleveland, $27,491; Woodward, Cincinnati, $21,925; Eastern, Detroit, $20,000; one in Indianapolis, $17,645. Soldan is the only one generating its own electricity.

Quality of Service.

Detailed scoring of the quality of service by the staff in 14 representative schools, with 1000 points as perfection, ranges from 649 at the Jefferson (Negro) School to 903 at Southwest High.

Attention is called to divided authority, as the academic officials have no control over the janitors —26 out of 114 principals reporting unsatisfactory working relations— and as the janitors and engine-room workers in the high schools are under different heads.

Gross operating costs, the report concedes, do not appear to be far out of line, compared with those of other cities, although the payroll item is comparatively high.

Many factors in the operation of the building department are approved by the report. Salary schedules of the janitorial and engine-room forces are held to be fairly reasonable. The custodial service, it is related, is not just cleaning and heating, but involves care of $41,517,000 worth of property; safety of pupils and teachers, and their health, as reflected in temperature, ventilation and lighting; setting an example of cleanliness and neatness, preventing waste and creating good will for the school system.

Uniforms of many custodians were found slipshod in appearance, with this typical picture: "Dirty shoes; dirty, unpressed gray moleskin trousers, and soiled gray shirt open at the collar."

Inspection Service Favored.

Immediate reduction of the custodial payroll by $50,000 a year is urged. The report also proposes expenditure of $10,000 to establish a training school and inspection service, $10,000 a year for tools, equipment and floor materials to facilitate work and $20,000 a year for seven years to re-sand and seal all wooden floors.

The janitorial force could be reduced gradually through the following means, it is stated: Use of a training school, definite inspection and supervisory service, staggered work schedules, with cleaning at night, and no more overtime in the heating season for head custodians; written work schedules, part-time jobs where feasible, proper use of WPA help, provision of more labor-saving devices and tools, use of electric motors instead of steam engines to drive many ventilating fans, changing the high-pressure heating plants to low pressure, shifting head custodians to janitorial work from the boiler rooms, a retirement plan for the aged and infirm, treating floors with preservatives to simplify cleaning, use of oil mops, instead of brushes and vacuum cleaners, in many spots, and reduction of the working week to 44 hours.

REALTY RESTRICTION ON NEGROES UPHELD

Court Enjoins Owners of Two Houses on Evans Av. Under 1923 Agreement.

Restrictions against Negro occupancy of property in the 4200 and 4200W blocks of Evans avenue, adopted by the property owners in 1923 for a 20-year period, were upheld by Circuit Judge Ernest F. Oakley, in a decision yesterday. The Court issued an injunction prohibiting Mrs. Nellie J. Connors, 4446A Evans, from selling or renting her property at No. 4221W to Negroes and Mrs. Rose Sanders from selling or renting No. 4211W to Negroes.

It was also held by the Court that Mrs. T. J. Herriot, Negro, had no title to No. 4211W. Fred A. Gossom, attorney for the plaintiffs, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that Mrs. Sanders was a straw-party owner. Both houses have been occupied by Negroes, and since the suit was filed Negroes have moved into some other houses in these blocks, he said.

The defendants, the owners of the two houses, contended that the restrictions were no longer binding because of the changing character of the neighborhood, property in the vicinity having been turned over to Negro occupancy. Furthermore, they alleged, the restrictions violated the constitutional rights of Negroes.

Plaintiffs and property owned by them on Evans avenue were: Mrs. Marie Downey, No. 4215; Mrs. Agnes Roach and Mrs. Louisa Buckholz, 4207W; George and Della Stourton, 4213; Marie Krueger, 4209, and John J. Burke, 4212. Also appearing as plaintiffs were three representatives of the Real Estate Exchange, who were made trustees under the restrictions — Edward L. Kuhs, Chester A. Doerflinger and Henry L. Cornet Jr.

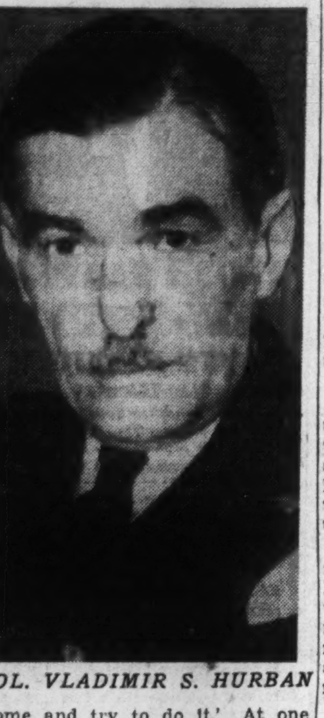
Czecho-Slovakia's Colorful Envoy, Now Man Without a Country, to Be Missouri U. Journalism Speaker

Col. Vladimir S. Hurban, Statesman and Soldier, Still Keeping Nazis From Seizing Legation and World's Fair Pavilion.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.



COL. VLADIMIR S. HURBAN

WASHINGTON, May 6. — Case-hardened Washington has been jolted from its cynical apathy to personal misfortunes by the plight of one of its most popular officials, Col. Vladimir S. Hurban, Czecho-Slovakian Minister to the United States, journalist, soldier, diplomat, and a patriot who cannot return to his own country.

Missourians will have an opportunity to see this distinguished exile next Friday night when he speaks at the annual journalism week banquet of the University of Missouri School of Journalism at Columbia.

Personal hardships and political discouragements are not new to this virile but soft-speaking diplomat who refused to evacuate the imposing Czecho-Slovakian legation on Massachusetts avenue at the demand of the German Embassy after the absorption of his country by Hitler. To a former army captain whose arm was broken by proletarian sailors during the "October revolution" in Petrograd in 1917, this and the subsequent demand to turn over the Czecho-Slovakian pavilion at the New York World's Fair were merely episodes in a full and dramatic career.

Still Lives in Legation.

He still resides in the ornate, French-style legation, but his staff has been reduced to the minimum. Temporarily, he is almost without funds, but is confident that the 2,000,000 Americans with Czech, Slovakian and Ruthenian racial ties will come to the support of former President Benes and see that the legation is maintained as a symbol that the Czecho-Slovakians retain their ideal of a free and democratic homeland. Nazi officials tried to attach the legation bank account in Washington but it was so small the action, had it been successful, would have meant little.

At present, much of Col. Hurban's time is taken to frustrate German efforts to take over the Czech pavilion at the World's Fair.

"The building and exhibit will be completed," he declared. "The Czecho-Slovakian flag flies above the building greatly to the annoyance of the Nazis. That flag is a memento that Czecho-Slovakia still lives, although the land itself is under German domination."

Hurban's Heroic Career.

Col. Hurban's career proves that no matter what the difficulties he is not one to give up his ideal of independence. The patriotic urge is hereditary. His grandfather led the 1848 revolt against the Magyars, and his father, a poet and editor, was frequently jailed because of his writings for independence. Although trained as an engineer at the Technical College in Vienna, the young Hurban went into journalism almost immediately after graduation and ran his father's newspaper in Slovakia while the elder Hurban served a jail term.

Young Hurban soon become deeply and deviously engaged in the independence cause. By 1909, when he was only 26 years old, he was lecturing to Russian staff officers in the Warsaw district on military problems.

At that time Bohemia, Moravia and Ruthenia were provinces of the Austro-Hungarian empire, and the military strategy was for Czarist Russia to attack from the north and east. Hurban instructed the Russian officers in Hungarian and lectured on the Magyar personnel of the Empire's army. His aim was to get the Russians to agree that in event of a successful war against the Hapsburgs, the Czechs and Slovaks would be given more, if not complete freedom.

Joins Russian Army.

When the war broke out in 1914, he immediately joined the Russian forces as a captain in military intelligence. By 1916 enough Czechs, Slovaks and Ruthenians had joined the Russians to have their own separate units. Hurban transferred to one of these units and became the editor of a newspaper for the Czech troops.

"I was more a journalist than an engineer," he said.

During the "Ten Days that Shook the World," in November, 1917, Hurban was in Petrograd and saw Lenin and his Bolsheviks take over war-torn, disorganized Russia and lay the foundation of the Soviet Union.

"I was wearing my uniform of a Russian captain," Hurban told the writer, "when I was attacked by two sailors of the revolutionary forces. They broke my arm and I was in the hospital for several weeks."

After the signing of the Brest-Litovsk treaty in March, 1918, which ended the war between Russia and the Central Powers, Hurban was in command of a Czech detachment which joined others at Penza.

Defies Trotsky, Evades Trap.

"Trotsky said he wanted to send us out of Russia by way of Archangel," Hurban said, "but this was a trap to turn us over to the Germans.

"We had no interest in the Russian revolutionary movement at the time. We were neither 'Reds' nor 'Whites.' Our sole aim was to get out of Russia and join the allies on the Western front. Trotsky ordered us to disarm, but we said, 'Come and try to do it.' At one time our troops were so numerous we could have taken Moscow."

Hurban, by this time a member of the Czech Provisional Government Executive Committee set up by Masaryk, was in the vanguard of the Czech anabasis eastward to Vladivostok. His detachment, traveling by the Trans-Siberian railroad, made the trip from Penza in a little less than two months.

Hurban was ordered by Masaryk to go to Tokyo to get supplies for the Czech troops which were concentrating in Vladivostok. Here he met Admiral Kolchak, the Russian "White" leader.

"I gave Kolchak his visa to go to Vladivostok," Hurban said. "I told him that if he was to succeed he must build his organization from the ground up, beginning with the co-operatives, which were then strong in Eastern Russia. But he was a flop. No sooner had he landed than he named himself supreme commander of the Russians. His efforts were doomed because he did not have the support of the middle classes."

At Masaryk's Side in U. S.

Hurban came to Washington in August, 1918, as military aide to Masaryk and head of the Czech military mission in the United States. He had offices in the Munitions Building here to facilitate the transport of the Czech troops, which had remained in Russia to save it from German invasion.

"I am the only foreign officer to review his own troops at the Capitol grounds," he said proudly. "This was when our men came from Russia in 1919. After reviewing them, I led them to the White House, where President Wilson addressed us."

In August of 1919, Hurban married Miss Olga Boor of Lansford, Pa., and in 1921 he and his wife went back to the newly formed republic of Czecho-Slovakia. He remained in the army for a year and a half and then turned to diplomacy.

His first diplomatic post abroad was that of Charge d'Affaires in Egypt in 1924. Six years later he was named Minister to Sweden, Norway and Lithuania, and in 1936 returned to the United States as Minister.

Popular as a Speaker.

Popular before the Czecho-Slovakia absorption by Hitler because of his Old Word manners, his wide knowledge of affairs and his interest in all things American, Col. Hurban has become a much-sought-after dinner guest and public speaker. He captivated a large audience in an "off-the-record talk" at the National Press Club, and received what amounted to an ovation at the recent Gridiron Club dinner.

He understands English perfectly but his speech is a little halting, with an accent. He is at his best at answering questions in public where he always is the diplomat.

He says that he often is asked how a country whose sovereignty has been extinguished can afford a legation.

"I reply that this is a most interesting and important question to ask," he laughs, "and a good question not to answer."

SCOUTS GOING TO CAMP IN ORGANIZED UNITS

Changes Decided on for Season Lasting From June 18 Through Aug. 20.

The camping committee of the St. Louis Council of the Boy Scouts of America has adopted several major changes for the summer season, which last from June 18 through Aug. 20.

Instead of attending in unorganized groups, as has been the custom in the past, scouts this year will go to camp as troop units, under the leadership of a trained supervisor. Ninety troops in the St. Louis Council hold certificates for trained camp staffs.

Free camping will be provided for any troop that furnishes its own tenting equipment, food and cooking utensils. The council will provide medical care, purified drinking water, sanitation facilities and instruction in swimming, handicraft, cooking and other subjects. Troops also may have food served on the camp site. In previous summers campers ate at a central mess hall.

Forty-one troops have made reservations for Camp Irondale and Lions' Den. Locations in the Camporee, to be held May 19-21 at Tilles Park will be open tomorrow for the first time. Registrations will be received at the executive offices in the Chemical Building, 721 Olive street.

The organization committee of the St. Louis Council will meet Wednesday evening in the executive offices. The eight new units organized since the last meeting are: Troop 172 of the Monroe School Patrons' Association; Pack 78 of Scullin School; Troop 251 of the Wellston Community Welfare Association; Troop 134 of the Holy Ghost Catholic Church; Troop 36 of the Grace Evangelical Church; Troop 121 of St. Rita's Catholic Church; Pack 2 of Benton School, St. Charles, Mo.; Troop 339 of Brentwood Kiwanis Club.

The Sea Scout ships Golden Eagle and Sea Lion were selected as members of the national flagship fleet, at a recent meeting of the national Scout subcommittee on ship rating at New York. Only 22 of 2000 Sea Scout ships in the United States achieved this rating. Ambrose S. Wilhite is skipper of the Golden Eagle, and Noel Chadwick of the Sea Lion.

The annual Scouter family week end will be held at Camp Irondale May 27, 28. Committeemen, troop, Cub and senior leaders and Cub den mothers may attend during the week end, for which a special program of recreation is planned.

Dr. Russell W. Hibbert Jr. of Troop 77 of the Tyler Place Presbyterian Church, and Scouts Albert Eggeman and Henry Heusack received Eagle Scout rating last week. Three scouts were advanced to Star rank, one to First Class rank and 75 merit badges awarded. Roland Russell of Troop 6 of the Second Presbyterian Church also was made an Eagle Scout last week.

WORK RELIEF CAN'T STOP, DEMOCRATIC WOMEN ARE TOLD

Mrs. Florence S. Kerr, WPA Official, Says People Must Reconcile Selves to Long Continuance.

7,000,000 BACK ON PRIVATE JOBS

This Is Cited as Accomplishment of Administration — 11-State Meeting Ends With Luncheon.

The American people must reconcile themselves to the continuance of the Works Progress Administration or some similar large public work agency for many years, until the unemployment problem may be solved, Mrs. Florence S. Kerr, assistant administrator of the WPA, declared at a Democratic women's luncheon at Hotel Jefferson yesterday.

A conference of Democratic women from 11 midwestern and southwestern states was concluded at this gathering.

As to the solution of unemployment, Mrs. Kerr asserted that 7,000,000 persons had been restored to private jobs under the Democratic national administration. However, she pointed out that 500,000 youths became jobseekers annually and that labor-saving machinery was constantly reducing opportunities for workers. Yet she expressed hope that unemployment could be solved eventually.

"Great Deal for the Money."

Work relief "costs a lot of money and never seems to come to an end," Mrs. Kerr conceded, but she went on:

"It is true that we get a great deal for the money we spend on work relief. We get hundreds of thousands of miles of new and improved roads, thousands of schools, hospitals and other public buildings built or repaired, tohusands of bridges, hundreds of new airports, thousands of parks, athletic fields, gymnasiums, swimming pools, thousands of miles of new water mains and sewers, hundreds of miles of levees, thousands of dams, millions of new trees planted in our state and national forests.

"Our communities seem to approve of the work program. They ask for more and more WPA projects all the time and put up their own money to help pay for them. In the last three years our communities have contributed more than $1,000,000,000 of their own to WPA projects for civic improvement."

Poll Favors Further Work.

A recent survey of the American Engineering Council and other independent organizations, reporting views of county and town officials throughout the nation, showed an almost unanimous sentiment in favor of continuing work relief, the speaker said.

"Maybe the critics of the work program know better,' she continued. "Maybe it is a mistake to put our unemployed to work for the benefit of the communities in which they live. Maybe they should be maintained in enforced idleness on a starvation dole, losing their skills, losing their morale, losing all hope for themselves and all faith in American democracy."

Statistics such as the following have taken the humor out of jokes about WPA shovel-leaners, she asserted: 280,000 miles of roads and streets built and improved by the WPA; nearly 3000 schoolhouses built and more than 21,000 repaired and modernized. Lately, Mrs. Kerr said, critics have turned from construction, constituting 80 per cent of the Federal works program, to the WPH white-collar projects, but these projects are one of the "great virtues" of the program.

White-Collar Activities.

Technical, service, clerical and professional workers must be given jobs and it would be a waste of time and money to put them at manual work for which they are unprepared, she declared, in a defense of the white-collar activities. Communities all over the country have put up their own money to help pay for such undertakings, she said, listing some of them as follows:

About 40,000 workers, more than half of them women, are engaged in adult education, which is in great demand; about 30,000, more than a third of them women, are handling public recreation programs; many communities employ women in nursing, household aid and nursery schools; many towns and counties have library programs, chiefly employing women; cities have traffic, tax and health surveys; valuable historical records, heretofore neglected, are being preserved; music, art and theater projects are operated in some larger centers, and in every State there has been the large task of preparing a guidebook.

The WPA, Mrs. Kerr pointed out, has been assisting communities in getting a start on what has long needed to be done. in public recreation, health protection and adult education.

She defended, in particular, the music enterprises, which have established 28 symphony orchestras; the art work, which she quoted some art critics as hailing as the beginning of a renaissance of American art; the Federal Theater, "revitalizing the American theater"; the historical records survey and the guidebook preparation.

The WPA dollar is the fastest moving dollar in the United States, she said, for it is spent by the recipient quickly for necessaries and goes swiftly back to the mill, mine and farm.

Address Over Radio.

In an address over radio station KSD yesterday, Mrs. Kerr also spoke of work-relief wages as the lifeblood of trade, but she called attention to the third of the nation which is said to be ill fed, clothed and housed. These 40,000,000 persons are potential domestic customers, she said, who could bring new industrial and agricultural prosperity if their incomes were raised. In Missouri, she added, about 90,000 persons are able to pay the landlord and buy food and clothing for their families only because they are on the WPA payroll.

Nationally, she said, about 283,000 women are among the 500,000 WPA workers in professional and service fields. The efforts to promote health, under WPA auspices, she declared, have only served to show how much more should be done. As an example, she cited more than 23,000 WPA dental operations and treatments in St. Louis in one six-month period.

Mrs. Kerr, previously regional director of women's and professional activities for the WPA in 13 midwestern states, became assistant administrator in charge of professional and service projects last January. Formerly she was a teacher at Grinnell (Ia.) College.

INDEPENDENT ARTISTS EXHIBIT AT MUSEUM

Third Show by St. Louis Groups This Spring— 90 Pictures in Display.

An exhibition of 90 oils, water colors, and pastels by St. Louis painters who are members of the Independent Artists of St. Louis is now on view in the downstairs galleries at the City Art Museum in Forest Park and will continue through the month.

It is the third show by St. Louis art groups which the museum has sponsored this spring. Previous exhibits were by members of the St. Louis Art League and the Artists' Guild. Some of the painters in the current show were previously represented, but there are also a great number of newcomers.

An overwhelming percentage of the pictures are still lifes of flowers and landscapes. There are a few portraits, but very few pictures with any dramtic content. Most of the still lifes are detailed in design; most of the landscapes romantic.

Among the best of the still lifes are Estelle Ehrmann's "Yellow Apples" and one by Tanasko Milovich simply entitled "Still Life." Among the portraits there is one of a pathologist by Marie Gilmour which has some life to it, as has Eva Lucille Sokol's "Doris and Daisies." Dorothy Bartholemy has a water color of an old woman resting.

Some paintings of old houses are contributed by Warren Ludwig and Cornelia Maury. Frank Nuderscher is represented by a landscape, "Misty Afternoon in the Mountain." Differing entirely from all of the pictures in the show is Simon Greco's abstraction, "Of Thoughts Subconscious."

It is a non-jury exhibit, and the pictures shown were picked by the painters themselves.

Water Color Exhibit Continues at Monticello College.

A large and varied exhibit of water colors, showing the work of 102 American artists, will continue to be on view in Wade Hall at Monticello College, Godfrey, Ill., through May 15. There are 190 pictures by artists from 17 states, with Chicago, St. Louis, and California painters heavily represented.

The purchase prize of $75 has been awarded to William S. Schwartz of Chicago for a meticulous landscape in sharply contrasting colors which owes considerable to an oil technique. First and second honorary awards were given to Emile J. Kosa of Los Angeles and Wallace Mitchell of Bloomfield, Ill., respectively. Honorable mention was accorded to Ernest Walker of New York, James Patrick of Los Angeles, and Margaret Tomkins of Hollywood.

Donald S. Vogel of Chicago contributed one of the best things in the show, a small portrait of a woman washing windows. Other stand-outs were sent in by N. Ziroli of Chicago; Herman and Briggs Dyer, brothers, of Rockford, Ill.; Don McKenzie and Burr Singer of St. Louis; and James Penney of New York.

The show was compiled by Dean Chipman and Kay Irwin of the Monticello faculty and is to be an annual affair.

Five of them, selected at preliminaries, will compete Friday night in finals, to which the public is invited. They will be required to repeat into a microphone the messages of a reader five feet away.

Assembly rooms at the hotel are being equipped with special hearing aids and a staff of persons with normal hearing will attend all sessions to assist delegates who are totally deaf. Reports will be presented from authorities in medicine, education and social work on the progress of efforts to aid persons with impaired hearing.

TRY FOR A Free Art Course

Copy this girl and send us your drawing — perhaps you'll win a COMPLETE FEDERAL COURSE FREE! This contest is for amateurs, so if you like to draw do not hesitate to enter.

Prizes for Five Best Drawings — FIVE COMPLETE ART COURSES FREE, including drawing outfits. (Value of each course, $195.00.)

FREE! Each contestant whose drawing shows sufficient merit will receive a grading and advice as to whether he or she has, in our estimation, artistic talent worth developing.

Today design, color and illustrating influence the sale of most merchandise. Trained commercial artists have, therefore, become important in industry. They are in demand, — well paid — machines can never displace them. Artistic talent is comparatively scarce. If you can draw, why waste this rare gift? Train yourself to do work for which nature has fitted you and which few people can do. Success nowadays comes easier to those who develop natural ability. We have trained many young men and women now capable of earning up to $5,000 yearly as artists. Use this opportunity to test your talent. Read the rules and send us your drawing.

RULES: This contest open only to amateurs, 16 years old or more. Professional commercial artists and Federal School students are not eligible. 1. Make drawing of girl 6½ inches high, on paper 7 inches high. Draw only the girl, no lettering. 2. Use only pencil or pen. 3. We return no drawings. 4. Print your name, address (town, county, state), age, occupation on back of drawing. 5. All drawings must be received by May 31st, 1939. Prizes will be awarded for drawings best in proportion and neatness by Federal Schools Faculty.

APPROXIMATELY 250 DEALERS attended a meeting held by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. Thursday at the Coronado Hotel. The 1939 merchandising and advertising plans were explained by A. P. Bethel, branch manager, and other speakers. Featured was the new Centennial line of Goodyear passenger car tires introduced after several years of development and planning. The program of the meeting included a double feature motion picture, one phase of which detailed the story of the company's development, while the other depicted the development of the process of rubber vulcanization by Charles Goodyear which was celebrated earlier in the year in the centennial and home coming program at Akron, O., where the Goodyear company was started in 1889.

HUDSON DEALERS AND salesmen will meet Friday, May 12, at Hotel Chase to observe the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the Hudson Motor Car Co. and to help inaugurate a country-wide merchandising drive. A feature will be an address by A. E. Barit, president of Hudson, speaking from Detroit over a coast-to-coast telephone hook-up to the meeting and to sessions in 16 other key cities. His talk will conclude the meeting, which will be followed by a banquet and entertainment. W. S. Milton, zone manager, will be in charge of the local meeting.

A BREAKFAST MEETING WAS held Tuesday morning at the Claridge Hotel by the Mound City Motor Co., distributer for De Soto and Plymouth, to mark the conclusion of a five-week sales drive. More than $1850 in cash prizes were distributed to salesmen, and special factory awards were made by Lawson Henry, regional manager for De Soto. The meeting was in charge of James Fowler, manager of the wholesale department of the Mound City Motor Co., and among the speakers were George Weber Sr., president of the firm, and Lester W. Reinke, retail sales manager.

PART OF THE TRAVELING that King George and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain, will do in Canada will be in a special-built Chrysler Royal car which was completed recently in the plant of the Chrysler Corporation at Windsor, Ont. The car is a convertible on the 138-inch Royal wheelbase, and its rear compartment is entirely enclosed in shatter-proof glass. The seat design is unusual in that the auxiliary seats face to the rear The rear compartment is upholstered in dark blue broadcloth and a blue carpet covers the floor. Each of two siderests has ash trays and cigarette lighters, and there is a movable hand mirror on each side of the movable center armrest. The British Royal insignia is carried on the panel of each rear door and also is mounted, illuminated, above the center of the windshield. The car has white sidewall tires with Goodyear puncture-proof tubes. It was purchased by the Canadian Government.

FRIDAY, JUNE 16, HAS BEEN set as the date for the first annual convention of the Missouri Automobile Dealers' Association. The convention will be held in St. Louis, and all auto dealers and representatives of finance companies will be invited to attend. Officers of the association, which has offices in the Missouri Theater Building, St. Louis, are: President, J. M. Allton, Columbia; vice-president, Roland H. Record, Kansas City, treasurer, G. M. Berry, St. Louis; secretary, Joseph A. Schlecht, St. Louis.

THE H. J. SMITH MOTOR CO. has succeeded Ray Rixman, Inc., as the Ford V-8, Mercury and Lincoln-Zephyr dealer at 222 South Florissant road, Ferguson. H. J. Smith, head of the new firm, was vice-president of Ray Rixman, Inc.

AN AUTOMATIC WINDSHIELD washer is now available as an accessory for Pontiac cars. It removes dust, rain spots, road splash and insect marks while the car is running. The device includes a small tank full of water. Turning on the windshield wiper and then turning a switch, the driver sends this water across the windshield in two streams and the wiper does the cleaning.

NASH "WEATHER EYE" CONDITIONED air cars have been chosen as the family cars for the "House of Tomorrow" in the Town of Tomorrow at the New York World's Fair. Nine of the 22 models in the Nash line will be seen in the garages and on the driveways of the 15 model houses in the town, and will be the only automobiles displayed in the town, W. A. Blees, general sales manager for Nash, says. A feature of the town is the motor home. Arriving by automobile, one drives right into this house, for the entrance is a motor entrance and the front door leads from the motor room.

HEAT LAMP REFLECTORS IN the electric ovens of the Ford Motor Co.'s Rouge plant are plated with gold to bake the paint on bodies from the inside out. The plated lamps, thousands of them, are arranged in tunnels through which the car bodies pass and make possible baking of the primer coat in 15 minutes instead of the hour formerly required. This quickening of the drying process is due to use of infra-red rays with the gold-plated lamps. The rays penetrate the primer coat and heat the metal beneath it. Gold plating reflects infra-red rays with less loss than other surfaces.

AN INCREASE IN ITS USE OF newspaper advertising space, to carry its spring and summer Golden Jubilee campaign, is announced by Standard Oil Co. of Indiana. The company will use a larger number of newspapers, 1789, and will spend more than 75 per cent of its campaign advertising appropriation in them. Standard Oil of Indiana was organized to build a refinery at Whiting, Ind., June 18, 1889, when its principal product, kerosene, was sold from the old tanks in the back rooms of grocery stores to light lamps and stoves of the Middle West. Today, the Whiting refinery, which has become the largest complete refinery in the world, and other Standard refineries make gasoline, motor oil, kerosene and altogether 2000 products from petroleum, and more than 23,000 Standard Oil dealers, independent of the company, serve nearly 8,000,000 motorists in 13 Middle West states.

AN AUTOMATIC TOP, WHICH is raised or lowered by vacuum power from the engine, is now optional equipment on the Lincoln-Zephyr convertible coupe. Operation of the top is controlled by a button on the instrument panel. The vacuum power mechanism, which utilizes the same principle as windshield wipers, is hidden within the inner side walls of the rear seat.

A FLEET OF RADIO-EQUIPPED Plymouth cars used by William P. Lear of Roosevelt Field, L. I., the inventor, can find their own way to a garage or to any specified point. The cars are fitted with Lear's direction finder, which has been placed in service in army and navy planes as well as in transport planes and private craft. The only outward evidence that the cars are specially equipped is a teardrop-shaped antenna on the roof. Installed in a plane, the device gives the pilot an optional means of finding his position. Fitted with a gyromatic drift corrector, the device can hold a plane on a straight course toward a radio station picked up irrespective of wind force or direction. By equipping the automobiles with his device, Lear is able to give ground demonstrations.

THE RHOADS BROTHERS, who operate the super service Shell station at Lindell and Vandeventer, have opened another station at 3880 Washington boulevard which will handle Shell products and Goodrich tires. The brothers, O. L. Rhoads and N. B. Rhoads, have been in business here for more than 25 years. O. L. Rhoads formerly was with the Standard Tire Co. N. B. Rhoads, who has operated an electrical generator business just east of the Washington boulevard location, will move his machinery and equipment to the new building, which has more than 12,000 square feet of floor space and will employ 35 persons in its electrical department. He has specialized on generator and coils work, and is distributer of Mallory carburetors and coils. Thomas Norton will be sales representative and Earl Cross, service manager.

DRIVERS OF NASH CARS who make the circuit of the New York and San Francisco world's fairs can save up to 40 per cent of the traveling cost, the Nash factory estimates. This estimate is based on the fact that every Nash sedan can be converted in a few minutes into a six-foot double bed and the savings in gasoline and oil effected by Nash's cruising gear, which reduces the number of engine revolutions by 30 per cent for any speed at which it is used.

AN IDEA OF THE VARIETY OF products which go into the making of an automobile is afforded by figures covering the making and sale of about 200,000 Pontiac cars a year, as follows: 13,800,000 pounds of cotton; 100,000 bushels of corn; 500,000 gallons of molasses; 640,000 pounds of wool and 70,000 of goat hair; 400,000 pounds of turpentine; 13,800,000 pounds of rubber; 270,000 tons of steel; 3300 tons of copper and brass; 200 tons of tin; 21,700 tons of lead; 14,400 tons of cast pig iron; 500,000 gallons of spraying lacquer; 3,600,000 square feet of plate glass.

CLIFFORD McCLURE, PRESIDENT of the Mendenhall Motor Co., Ford V-8 dealer, returned yesterday from a two-day factor-dealer conference at Cincinnati conducted by J. R. Davis, general salesmanager of the Ford Motor Car Co., assisted by A. S. Hatch, Lincoln salesmanager, and Tom Naubert, general service manager. It was said after the meeting that the opinion of those attending was that the automotive upward trend would extend beyond this year, especially because production of 2,600,000 cars in 1938 and a projected 3,500,000 this year would leave a deficit of about 2,000,000 cars from normal production for the two years.

ONE OF THE MOST ELABORATELY appointed cars seen in a local show room in some time is a Brunn custom-built all-weather cabriolet on a Packard Twelve chassis displayed by the Berry Motor Car Co. It might be called a town car with landaulet features. The rear quarter is collapsible and may be easily raised and lowered. The front quarter canopy, when not installed to protect the chauffeur in inclement weather, is readily stored in a concealed compartment.

THREE APPOINTMENTS TO high positions in the Hudson Motor Car Co. are announced by George H. Pratt, general salesmanager. C. G. Beeching has been made Mid-West salesmanager, and H. F. Byrne, Eastern salesmanager. Both wil have headquarters in Detroit. Howard P. Grove will be Pacific Coast salesmanager.

A SCHEDULE OF FIVE RECREATION days and golf tournaments sponsored by the Greater St. Louis Automotive Association provides for five golf tournaments, in May, June, July, August and September. The first will be held at the Meadowbrook Country Club Thursday, May 11. Members of the committee of arrangements include H. K. MacCarthy, chairman; Hugh Roberts, Thomas S. Kenny, William J. Rassmussen, president of the association, and Joseph A. Schlecht, its secretary-manager.

JOURNALISM AWARD TO RAYMOND P. BRANDT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 6. — Raymond P. Brandt, head of the Washington bureau of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, will be cited for "brilliant correspondence as a nationally recognized authority on news of the United States Supreme Court and for interpretative articles of more than ephemeral value" when he is presented with one of the five Medals of Honor Thursday afternoon during the Journalism Week program at the University of Missouri.

Other awards will go to the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal, to The Times of India, to Wallace Crossley, publisher of the Warrensburg Star-Journal, and to H. J. Blanton, editor of the Monroe County Appeal at Paris, Mo.

The Journalism School departed from precedent in making awards to two Missouri editors as the honor medals usually go to an outstanding foreign newspaper, to an outstanding United States newspaper, to one Missouri editor, and to an alumnus of the Journalism School with an enviable record as a journalist.

Dean Frank L. Martin said the award to Brandt, graduate in journalism here in 1918 and a Missouri Rhodes scholar from 1920 to 1923, took into consideration Brandt's persistent and unusually discerning questioning at the White House press conferences; unusually informative, constructive reporting from the national capital; interpretative articles contributed to the Sunday Editorial Title Page of the Post-Dispatch and three series of distinguished articles on the Soviet Union—"for uniformly thorough, accurate and entirely dependable Washington correspondence."

The Louisville Courier-Journal, whose award will be accepted by Barry Bingham, president, will be cited for colorful and epigrammatic editorial comment, for independent and intelligent emphasis upon news coverage, and for recent progressive development of, and leadership in graphic and pictorial journalism.

The Times of India, leading daily newspaper of Western India, was selected as an outstanding example of foreign journalism because of the importance of its influence in the Middle East; for constructive liberalism of outlook and restrained, generous editorial criticism of public affairs. The award will be accepted by Percy Bullen of New York, recipient of a medal himself some years ago, who has been correspondent for the London Daily Telegraph for 40 years.

Crossley will be cited for 36 years of effective newspaper work, for aggressive and independent editorial stands upon civic, political and moral questions; and for inspirational and factual support of intelligent programs to improve the farm youth of his area.

Blanton, member of the university Board of Curators, is to receive his citation for vitalizing his journalistic position by an impressive personality of wisdom and originality; for vivifying his newspaper by effective projecting his personality into it; for producing journalism which manifests intellectual versatility, exceptional local coverage, marked reader-interest, and high moral courage; for consistently producing an editorial page of far wider than community interest and significance.

The medals will be presented on the program at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon during the Journalism Week program which will open Tuesday with an open meeting of the Missouri Writers' Guild. Homer Croy, Missouri writer, is to be the principal speaker on the opening day.

Other speakers on the program for the week are Isaac F. Marcosson, editor, author and traveler; Col. Vladimir Hurban, Czecho-Slovakian Minister to the United States; Gov. Lloyd C. Stark; Dr. Frederick A. Middlebush, university president; Edson K. Bixby, Springfield (Mo.) publisher; Bart Howard, editorial writer on the Post-Dispatch; Art Witman, Post-Dispatch photographer; Robert L. Coe, of the Post-Dispatch Radio Edition; Webb Miller, war correspondent for the United Press; Paul Mickelson, divisional news editor of the Associated Press; Mark Ethridge, general manager of the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal; Miss Nell Snead, editor of the women's page of the Kansas City Star, and Car. B. Ike, poet laureate of the Ozarks.

Hydraulic Brakes!

Largest on any low-price car!
Big 12-inch brake drums and 162 square inches of lining area for quick stops and long life!

Bigger brake drums, more braking area mean safer, quicker, smoother stopping and longer life.

Ford improved mechanism has made hydraulic brakes easier in action, with straight-line stops.

The 1939 Ford cars are equipped with big, powerful hydraulic brakes, precision-built to meet strict Ford standards of safety.

They give you the braking power you would expect on cars sold at a much higher price. Big 12-inch brake drums and 162 square inches of brake lining for quick stopping and long life.

Ford brakes add to the comfort and pleasure of driving. Pedal action is exceptionally easy—a feature women drivers will like.

Brake action is always under full control of your foot, and in exact proportion to your pressure on the pedal. Braking pressure is equalized for smooth, straight-line stopping from any speed.

APPLE BLOSSOM TIME IN PIKE COUNTY

LAST Sunday was one of the fairest of the spring with apple orchards flowering forth in annual glory. The lovely blossoms beckoned many native sons as well as visitors to Pike County, one of Missouri's noted apple raising centers, and among them was Governor Lloyd C. Stark, who spent part of the week end visiting his orchards and those of his brother, Paul, near Louisiana.

DANZIG—Europe's Tension Point of the Week

GERMAN demands concerning the Polish Corridor having been brought officially into the open by Hitler's Reichstag speech of April 28, the Free City of Danzig, Baltic port at the head of the corridor, was Europe's chief tension spot last week. Hitler said he had proposed to Poland, which has special treaty ties with Danzig, that the city be reincorporated in the Reich, and that Poland had rejected the offer as well as his demand for a German route across the corridor; he announced that the German-Polish non-aggression pact was broken. The world waited uneasily for the next move.

Danzig, centuries ago a member of the Hanseatic League, now is a modern city-state, created in 1920 by the Treaty of Versailles to provide a Baltic port for Poland. The municipality is the nucleus of a territory comprising 754 square miles with a population of more than 400,000; more than half of that number live in the city. The town is at the mouth of the Vistula River, important Polish waterway which has connections with streams in Germany, Lithuania and the Ukraine. The harbor which is seldom ice-locked, can accommodate large vessels and has extensive shipbuilding and warehousing facilities. The Danzig merchant fleet sails to most of the Baltic and North Atlantic ports. There is direct train service between the port and important cities of Poland, Germany and the Baltic states. While the situation of Danzig at the mouth of Vistula and its long-established port facilities make free access to it important to Poland, development in recent years of Poland's own Baltic port of Gdynia, a few miles to the northwest, has lessened the nation's economic dependence on the older outlet to the sea.

Since medieval times Danzig has had a succession of masters, including Denmark and Pomerania. In the fourteenth century it was under the rule of the Teutonic knights, in the fifteenth it became Polish territory. In one of the partitions of Poland, Danzig was given to Prussia. It was taken from the German Empire after the World War to become a free city under the protection of the League of Nations, with a constitutional government. The government is conducted by a legislature called the Volkstag and a ministry composed of the President and seven Chief Senators. Poland has special economic rights in Danzig, such as equal representation on the board administering the harbor and waterways. It also has been given the duty of conducting the Free City's foreign affairs.

Most of the people of Danzig are German. In the last few years Nazis have obtained control of the government, have adopted typical Nazi policies, including suppression of opposition, terrorization and anti-Semitism, and have clamored for return of Danzig to Germany. After Hitler's Reichstag speech a Danzig Nazi paper expressed confidence on this score because Danzig's fate "is now the Fuehrer's personal concern."

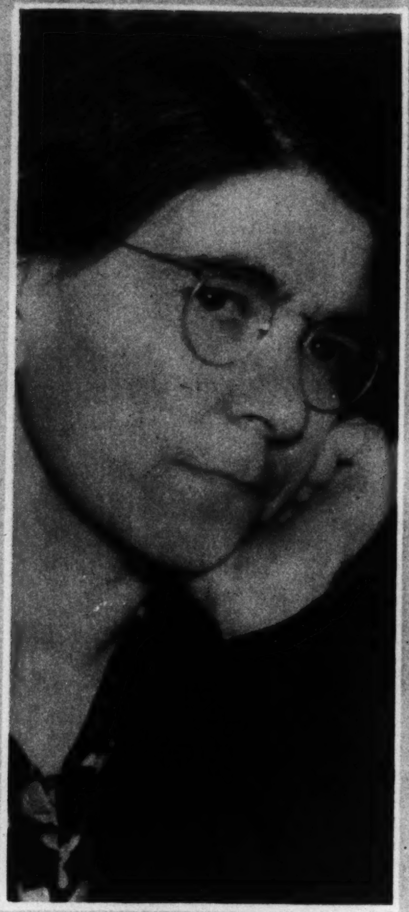
NEIGHBORS THOUGHT THEM SIMPLE HOUSEWIVES—POLICE HOLD THEM IN MURDER INVESTIGATION

Mrs. Carina Favato, fat, phlegmatic, and 44, alarmed neighbors by her attempts to practice the "evil eye." She stopped her trial to confess murdering her 17-year-old stepson, Philip Ingrao, her common-law husband, Philip Ingrao Sr., and Giuseppe di Martino, a friend. She collected $16,000 insurance. She watched stolidly for 18 months as her stepson died in slow agony, and threw a party the night he died. Tried to commit suicide in cell when haunted by "witches."

Mrs. Stella Alfonsi, 29 and pretty. Confessed aiding in poison murder of her husband, Ferdinand Alfonsi, middle-aged W P A worker. He was insured for $4000; she collected half. It was his death last fall that led to uncovering of mass poison plot. Herman Petrillo, agent of ring who gave Alfonsi "enough poison to kill six men," was convicted and faces death sentence. Police first believed she was Petrillo's sweetheart, now think arrangement only "business."

Mrs. Susie di Martino, wife of Giuseppe di Martino, and under indictment in his murder. Gray-haired at 42, she looks older. She denied any part in his death, "never got a cent," and after being in jail three weeks asked naively, "Am I under arrest?" She says she was tricked into signing over a $2000 insurance policy on Di Martino to Mrs. Favato. However, Mrs. Favato charges Mrs. Di Martino collected $2200 insurance, and knew what was going on.



Mrs. Josephine Romaldo, 41, quiet and quick-minded; confessed poisoning her husband, Antonio, a lamp lighter, in 1936, after debating 10 months the proposal of Mrs. Favato that she do it. She made up her mind, she told police, after a minor quarrel. She excused the crime on the ground he abused her, was sickly and "would have died soon anyway." Of the $7000 insurance she collected, she paid Mrs. Favato $300 for the poison and $500 for "aid."

Mrs. Agnes Mandiuk, 36, and plump, was charged with homicide in the death of her husband, Raymond, a baker, in 1935. It was listed as heart disease, but he had been in good health, and died the same day he was taken ill. Indications were he was poisoned and run over twice with an automobile. He was insured for $13,000. Herman Petrillo was said by police to have been a frequent visitor to her home, but she vehemently denied any part in the poison plot.

Mrs. Marie Wolosyn, 41, charged with homicide in the death of her husband, John, in January, 1936. His case was listed as a traffic death, but police say she confessed he was slugged with a lead pipe and deliberately run over. They say she collected $10,600 insurance. Wolosyn's body is being exhumed to be examined for traces of poison. The police investigated the possibility that other victims of the murder ring were deliberately run over by automobiles.

Philadelphia's Fantastic Poison-Murder Ring

PHILADELPHIA'S amazing poison-murder ring case—one of the most fantastic mass murder plots ever uncovered in this country—was brought to light accidentally last fall when a secret service agent stumbled on it while trying to trap a counterfeiter.

George Myers, alias Neumeyer, was told, after getting out of jail where he had been serving time on a minor charge, to see Herman Petrillo, a bald little olive oil and spaghetti salesman, for a job "shoving" counterfeit money. Myers, sometimes a Federal informer, told the United States Secret Service. The Philadelphia office assigned Agent Stanley Phillips and Myers to investigate. During the course of the counterfeiting dealings with Petrillo in which they were piling up evidence against him, Petrillo told Myers he could pick up $500 extra by "bumping a guy off." The proposed victim was Ferdinand Alfonsi, a W P A worker. Petrillo said he could collect thousands of dollars in insurance on Alfonsi, suggested sandbagging him and then either drowning him or running over him with an automobile.

Phillips and Myers "stalled" on the proposal. Then Petrillo told them he didn't need them—Alfonsi had been poisoned instead. Alfonsi was rushed to a hospital, but died. The police arrested Petrillo and Alfonsi's pretty 29-year-old wife. They traced Petrillo's friendships, and wherever they found recent deaths, had the bodies exhumed and autopsied. That led to the arrest of fat Mrs. Carina Favato, who used to scare her neighbors with the "evil eye." Poison was found in the bodies of Mrs. Favato's common-law husband, his 17-year-old son, and a friend. She had collected a total of $16,000 insurance.

Petrillo was found guilty of Alfonsi's murder, with the electric chair recommended. Mrs. Favato stopped her trial last month and confessed the three murders she was charged with, and later tried to commit suicide in her cell, screaming that witches were coming after her. Then Petrillo broke and confessed to taking part in 12 murders and told of nine more. Other arrests followed rapidly until last Wednesday police had the names of 35 alleged victims, all killed for insurance, and all Philadelphians. Police believe the toll will be 100. Poison had been found in six bodies, 12 more were being exhumed; six women and seven men were under arrest, a brunette "professional widow" was being sought; four of the women and five of the men had confessed.

Officers said the ring usually had women do the poisoning. A member would either make love to a housewife and urge her to get rid of her husband, or else propose an outright financial arrangement whereby the woman would put "witch's brew" in her husband's food or coffee. The agent—in many cases Herman Petrillo—would sell the "witch's brew"—a deadly poison—to the wife for $300 a pint, and also collect 10 per cent of all insurance over $1000. It was discovered last week that Mrs. Favato and two other women suspects were suffering from slow poisoning. They had taken a teaspoonful of poison out of every four-ounce bottle they had fed their husbands, because agents of the ring had told them it was a magic potion which would harm only those "bewitched." Police think higher-ups in the ring wanted to get rid of the women to prevent "snitching." Meanwhile police are investigating possible ramifications of the ring in other states.

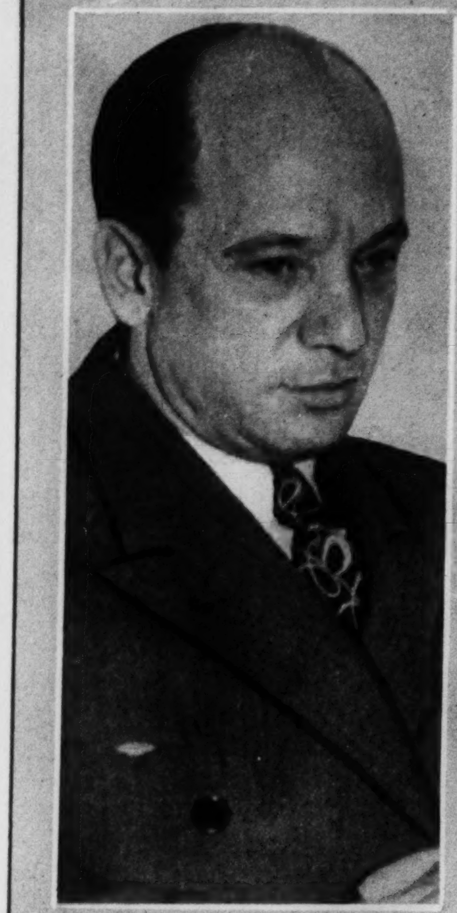
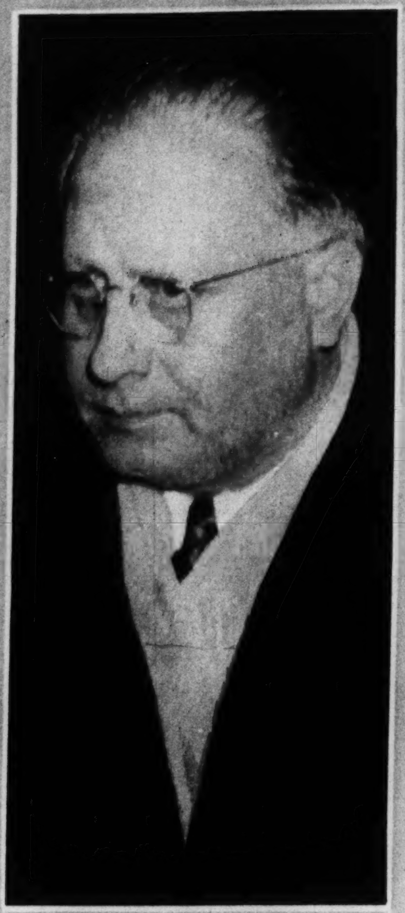
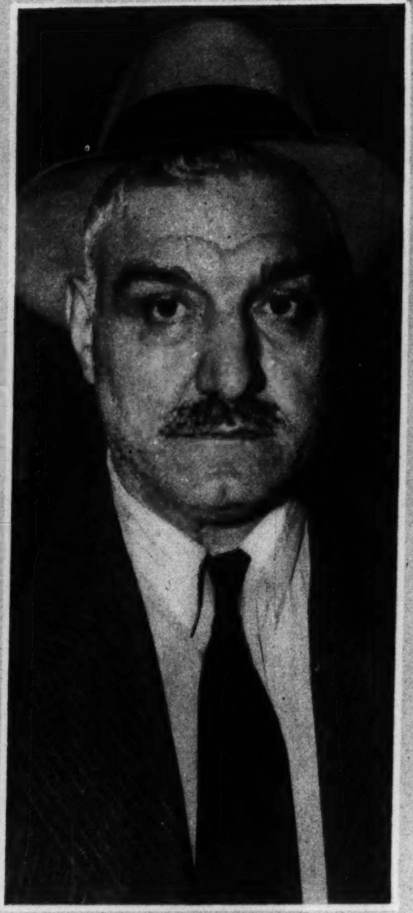
CHARGED AS POISON RING'S LEADERS AND AGENTS



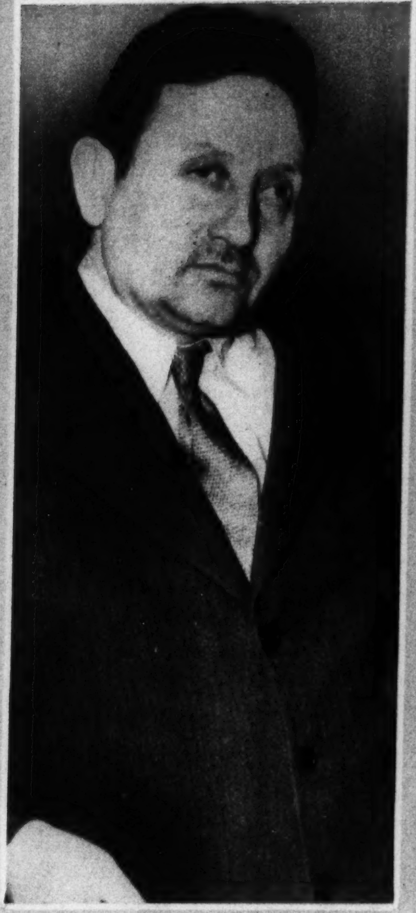
Herman Petrillo, little spaghetti salesman, who made love to housewives and peddled his "magic potion" poison for $300 a pint for them to feed to their husbands. Convicted in murder of Ferdinand Alfonsi, with death sentence mandatory, he struck at woman jury foreman. Later confessed part in 12 murders, knowledge of nine more.



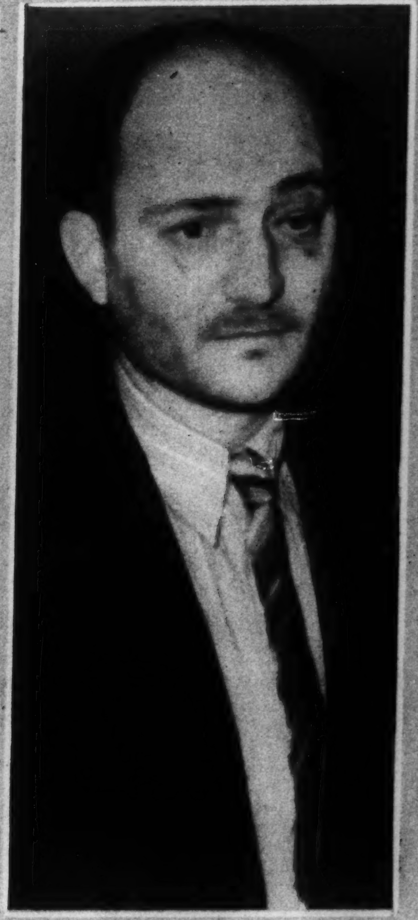
His cousin, Paul Petrillo, a tailor, under indictment for murders of Ingrao, Di Martino and Alfonsi. At a hearing in February, a convict who is his nephew testified Paul Petrillo asked him to put "powder" in beer of certain people so they could collect $500 insurance on each one. Police testified he practiced "fatuoro," an Italian name for witchcraft.



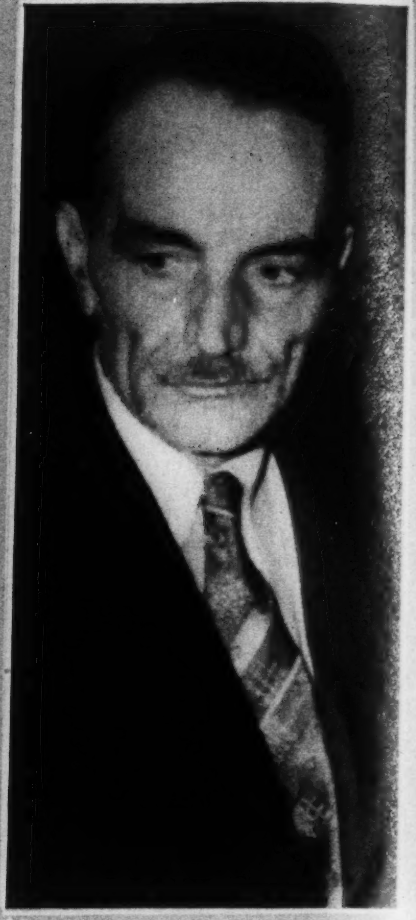
Cesare "Jumbo" Valente, alien ex-convict, who was implicated by Herman Petrillo. "Jumbo" confessed taking part in the murder of Charles Ingrao and one other killing. Philadelphia police said that Valente was the leader of one faction of the murder ring, which split up four years ago, after carrying on their operations for six years.



Morris Bolber, known as "Louie the Rabbi," who confessed heading the South Philadelphia branch of the murder ring, the District Attorney announced. Officials said he gave data on murders not hitherto known and said the ring extended to other states. To police, he was a "witchcraft practitioner"; to his attorney he was a "psychiatrist."



Amedia Muscelli, a boarder in Mrs. di Martino's home, who police said confessed a part in three killings. They said he admitted posing as Di Martino to get insurance on him. The bruises around his left eye were inflicted by Mrs. Favato when she knocked him sprawling at police headquarters because he called her a liar.



Rafael Polselli, who admitted participating in three poison killings and was charged with murder. Valente, Herman Petrillo and Polselli talked over various crimes in bickering before police, each accusing the others until details were brought out and pieced together. Meanwhile, police looked for a man Petrillo said was "the real brains."

At the nine-Power conference on China at Brussels in 1937. He was in favor of the League of Nations aiding China against Japan.

THE "displacement" last week of Maxim Litvinov as Soviet Foreign Affairs Commissar provoked a storm of speculation as to how it would affect the European crisis—whether it meant that Russia would withdraw into isolation from the quarrels of Western Europe. Litvinov was believed to be strongly pro-British and French and anti-German, and one theory was that Stalin and the Red army chiefs had become alarmed at the possible extent of commitments to fight for such countries as Poland.

Western diplomats regretted Litvinov's departure. He was shrewd, stubborn, worldly, well-groomed—a man who could deal on equal terms with capitalistic diplomats. John Gunther called him "the smartest foreign minister alive." His real name is Mayshiev Vallakh. He was born 62 years ago in what is now Poland of a bourgeois Jewish family, served in the Russian army for five years, became involved in revolutionary activity, and after an escape from exile met Lenin in Switzerland in 1901 and worked with him. After a revolutionary career in Russia he was an exile in England for 10 years until 1917, working as a publisher's clerk and purchasing agent. He became Soviet Minister to England after the Bolshevist revolution, then returned to the Soviet foreign office as assistant commissar. He became commissar in 1930, but never had the power inside Russia that he had outside—he did not become a member of the Central Committee of the Communist party until 1934. Among his greatest diplomatic triumphs were recognition by the United States in 1933, and Russian entry into the League of Nations in 1934.

Litvinov's successor, Vyacheslav M. Molotov (molotov means hammer—his real name is Skriabin), Soviet Premier and Stalin's right hand man. Methodical, precise, an old Bolshevik. Understood in Warsaw to favor the British-French pacts with Poland.

At the London economic conference in 1933, he obtained the things he was sent to get, such as long term credits in buying American cotton, and was the only delegate who appeared to be in good humor.

"Bearded with Moss," this 900-year-old oak tree in Middleton Gardens is world famous. The trunk circumference is 37 feet, the limb spread 144 feet.

CHARLESTON, SOUTH CAROLINA, is world famous for its beautiful gardens. There are three of them, Middleton Gardens, about 15 miles northwest of the city, Magnolia Gardens, 12 miles away and also on the Ashley River, and Cypress Gardens, 24 miles north.

Middleton Gardens, oldest and most historic landscape gardens in America, were started in 1740 by Henry Middleton, later president of the Continental Congress, who had an English landscape gardener arrange formal terraces and walks to harmonize with forest and river vistas. His descendants still own the estate. Magnolia Gardens, more than 100 years old, have been compared to the famous Kew Gardens of London. They are most noted for the beauty of the camellias and azaleas, which each winter and spring attract thousands of visitors. Cypress Gardens were opened only in 1930 after a fresh water lake heavily grown with cypress trees was diked, and planted with rare flowers and shrubs. Visitors may paddle in boats among trees and tiny isles, or follow paths along dikes and over bridges.

Flight, clearance, and position information being recorded on wax by a recording machine in the control center. John Knowel, assistant manager, is putting a new cylinder in a machine, to which the recordings will automatically shift when the cylinder at right is filled.

THE new airway traffic control center, to co-ordinate all flights to and from Lambert-St. Louis Municipal Airport, officially went into operation Monday. Under jurisdiction of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, the center is designed chiefly to direct aircraft when bad weather makes instrument flying necessary. Air lines give the control center their flight plans by use of which, with weather and other data, planes are cleared for flight, checked constantly on their course by means of charts and markers, and reported on by the pilots at specific stations by radio. The exact location of every plane in the St. Louis control area is thereby known at all times.

When many planes are in the air at one time, especially those coming in during bad weather, altitudes are alloted, and directions given for circling over the airport to avoid collisions. The control center lowers the planes ready for landing, usually in order of arrival, and then turns the actual landing supervision over to the airport control tower.

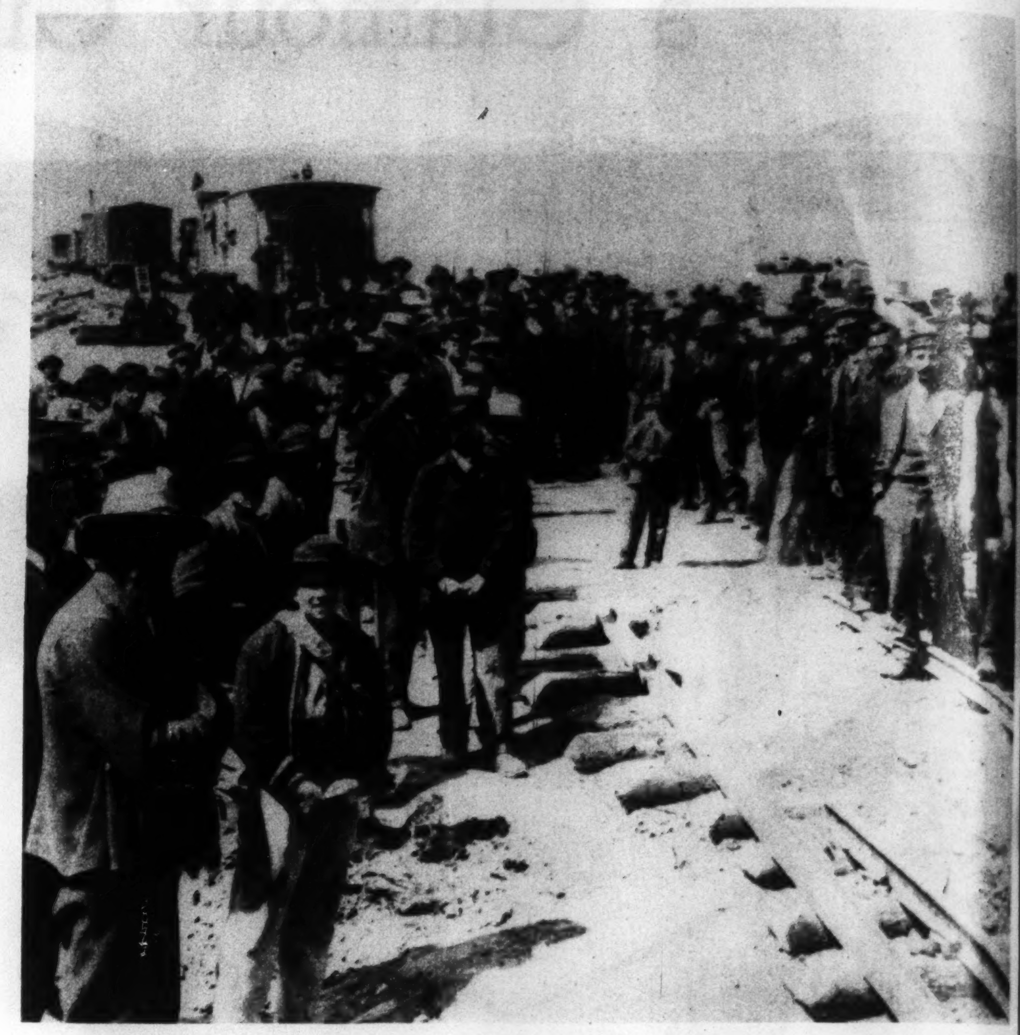
The Union Pacific's announcement of the opening of the new railroad line to the West.



Some of the crowd which gathered at Promontory Point, Utah, May 10, 1869, to witness the laying of the last rails joining the Central Pacific tracks from the West and the Union Pacific from the East—the completion of the country's first transcontinental rail route.

ON MAY 10, 1869, two sets of railroad tracks were brought together at Promontory Point, a few miles west of Ogden, Utah. One set had been laid eastward from Sacramento, California, the other, westward from Omaha, Nebraska. Their meeting on the shore of the Great Salt Lake gave the United States its first continuous railway service between the Atlantic and the Pacific. The seventieth anniversary of that historic event is being celebrated this week by the Union Pacific Railroad Company and the city of Omaha. The Union Pacific laid the eastern end of the line, 1086 miles, beginning in 1865. The Central Pacific, which started construction in 1864, laid 690 miles of the track. Both sets of builders had to overcome great engineering difficulties, and, despite Government subsidy, much financial trouble. Through the plains region Indian fighting was part of the railroad building. The last part of the epic task was followed with intense interest throughout the nation, daily reports on progress were sent out to the world, and when the tracks finally met, celebrations were held in many American cities. The telegraphic signal for these celebrations was set off when Leland Stanford, president of the Central Pacific, drove the last spike, a golden one, with a sledge of silver. These pictures include 70-year-old photographs made at the final ceremony.

Tiger Hunt in the Soviet Far East

TIGERS live on the snow-covered taiga lands of the Soviet Far East, near Khabarovsk, the town just below the confluence of the Ussuri and Amur rivers. Their cubs are captured alive by Russian hunters, who fire a shot to scare off the mother, then pursue the cubs with dogs and pin them to the ground with forked sticks, as shown in these photographs of a recent hunt.

Roller Hockey in the St. Louis Streets

Flurry of action in a game between the Dixon Midgets and the Bulldogs. In foreground, from left: Art Koblyinski, Bernard Roach and Philip Amato.

A NEW game is being played in St. Louis this spring. It is roller hockey, which differs from the popular ice game chiefly in that the players scoot about on wheels instead of steel blades and the playing field is a stretch of city pavement instead of a frozen rink. The game was introduced here by Neighborhood Association, which has organized a league for playing it among the association's boy members. The league is now composed of four teams, the Dixon Midgets, Bulldogs, Brownies and Blue Eagles; one or more teams may be added. Every Saturday, from 10 a. m. to noon, a block of North Nineteenth street between Wash and Carr is closed to traffic, by permission of the police department, and there two games are played between league teams. The playing field is 120 feet long and the width of the street between curbs. A wooden puck is used because it slides over the asphalt pavement more easily than does a standard rubber one. The rules, adapted from those of ice hockey, were worked out by Walter Giesler, boys' work director of Neighborhood Association, and Art Newman, his assistant, who organized the league and give general supervision to the enterprise.

A foul. Angelo Lombardo, right, trying to check Harry Kress as the latter advances with the puck, gets his stick and one leg between his opponent's legs.

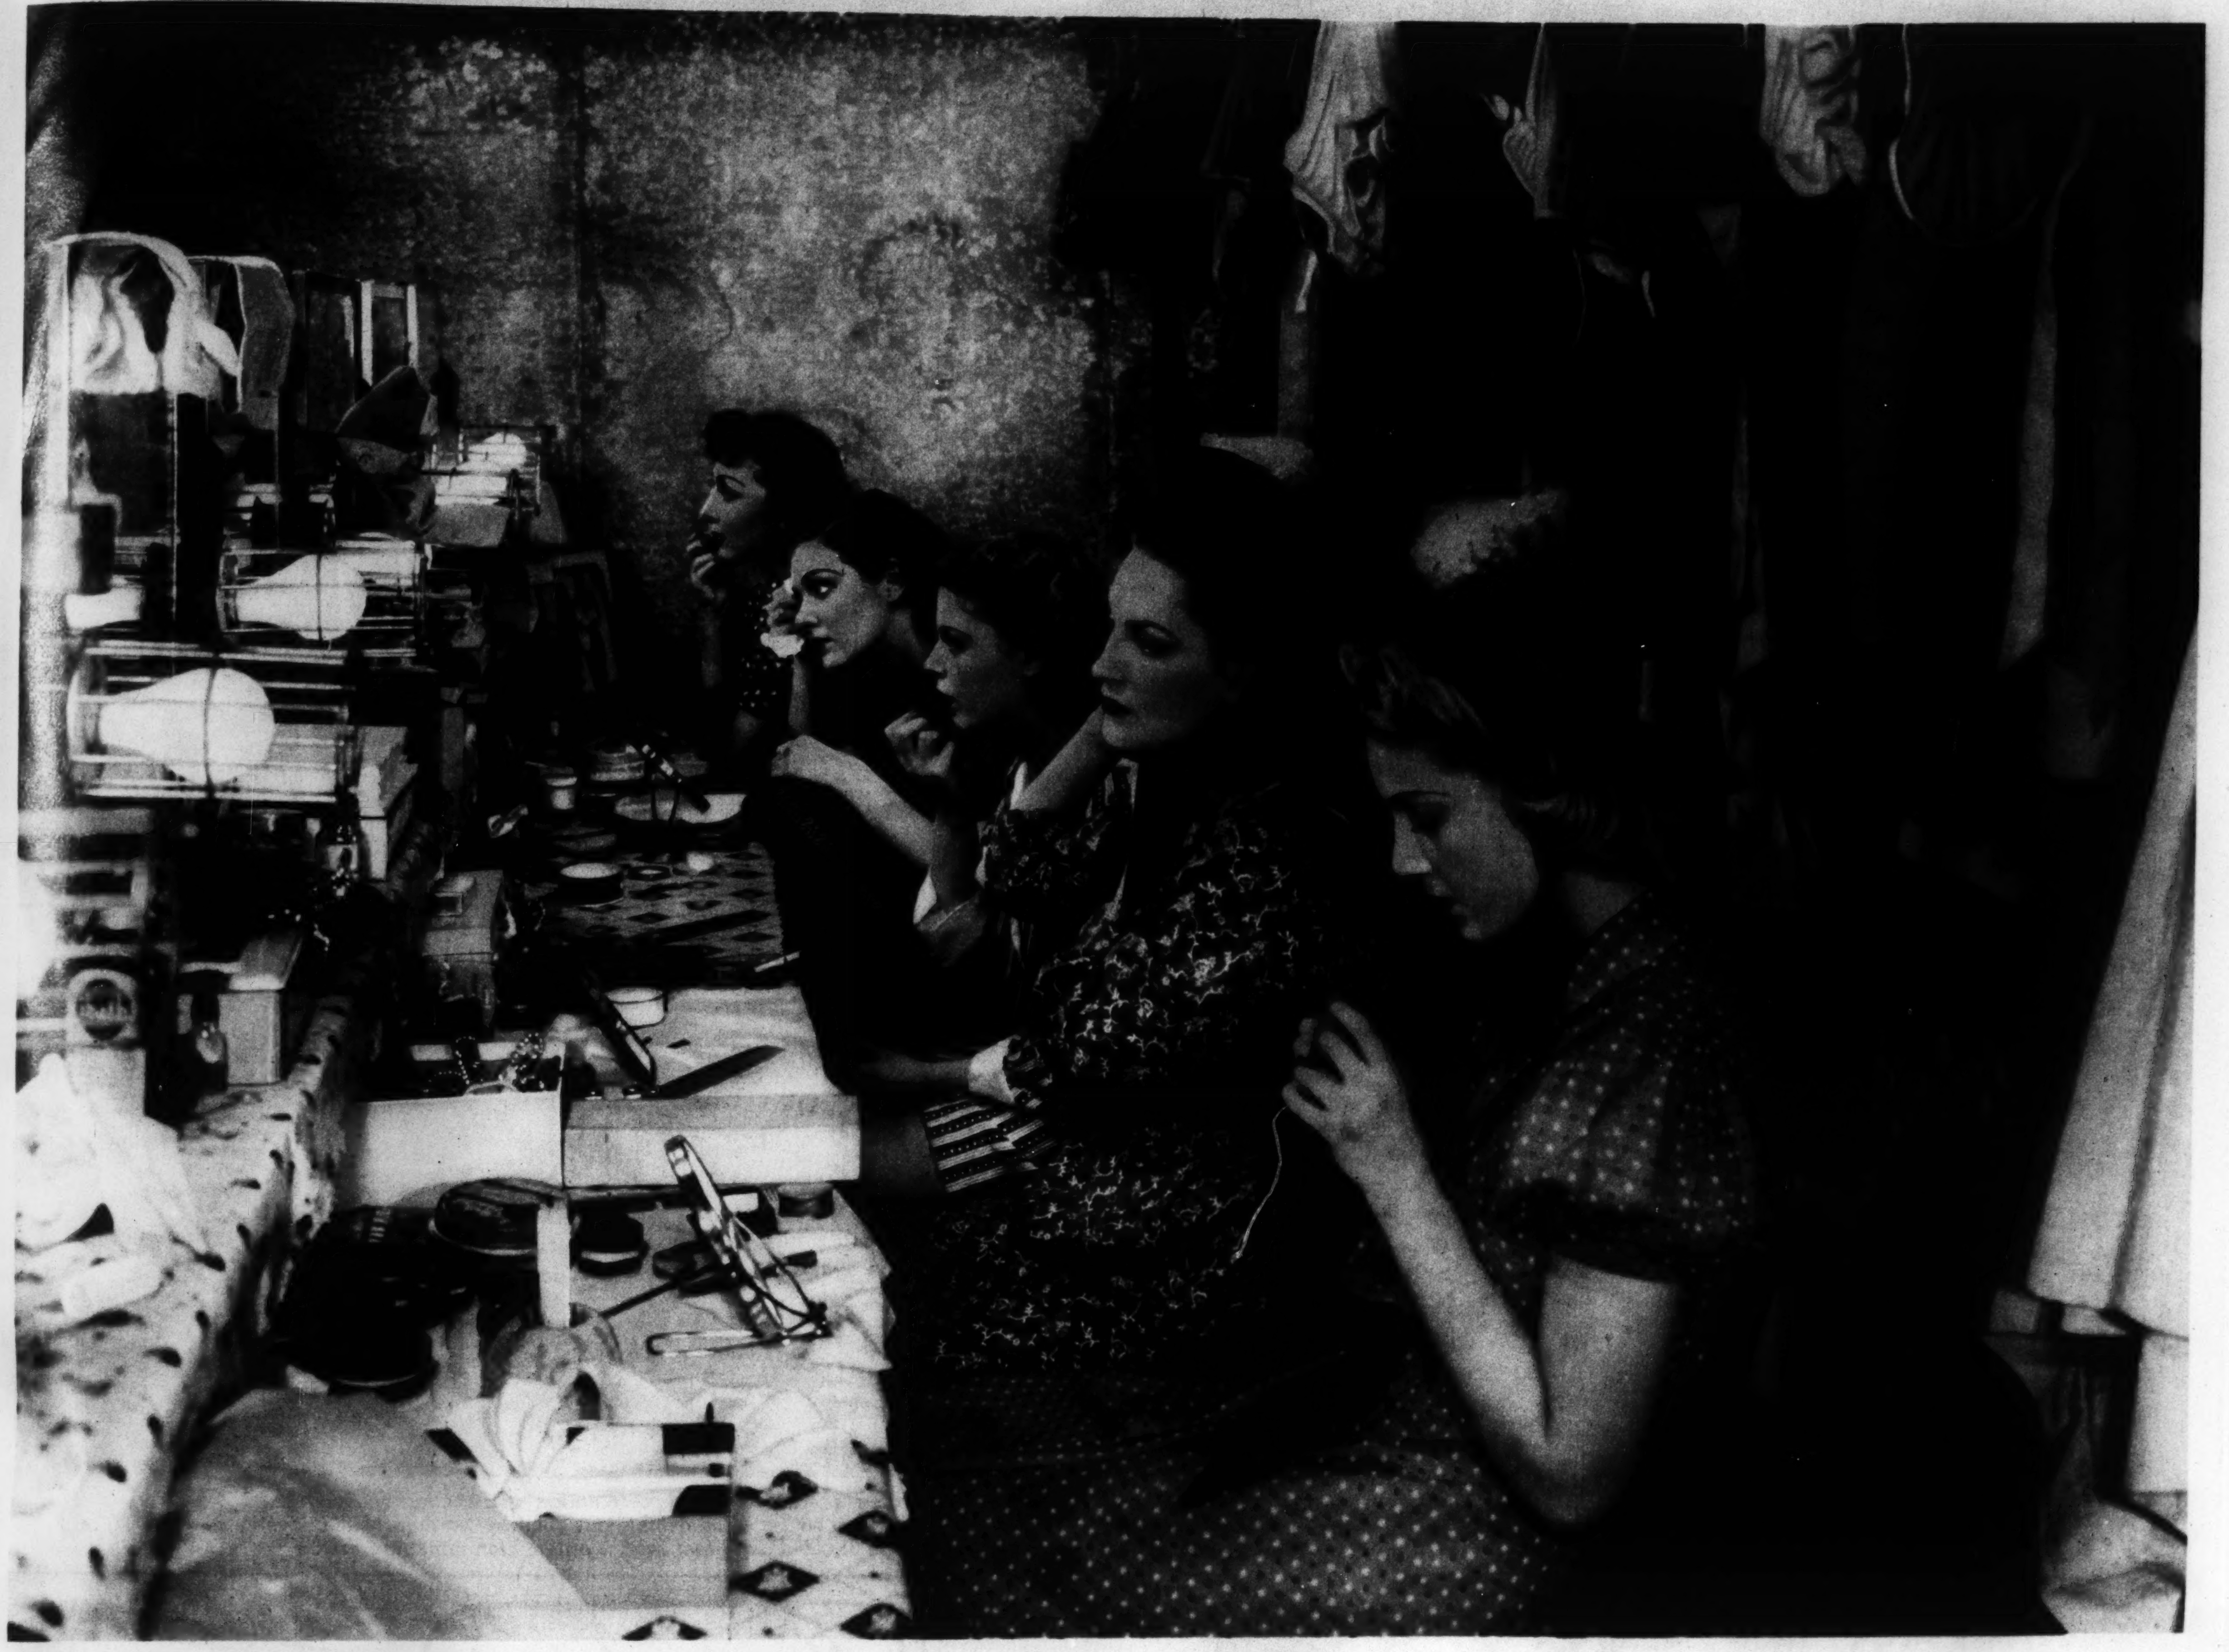
Backstage at 'Leave It to Me'



Chorus girls making up.

"LEAVE IT TO ME," a musical comedy adapted from a play by the Spewacks and with music by Cole Porter has been one of the big hits on Broadway since its opening last November. Full of spoofing of the American diplomatic corps and European politicians, it centers on the adventures of Alonzo P. Goodhue, a Kansas millionaire who becomes Ambassador to Russia. The cast includes Victor Moore, Mary Martin, William Gaxton, Sophie Tucker, and Tamara. These Dufay photographs by Jack Price were taken backstage as the cast dressed for the show.

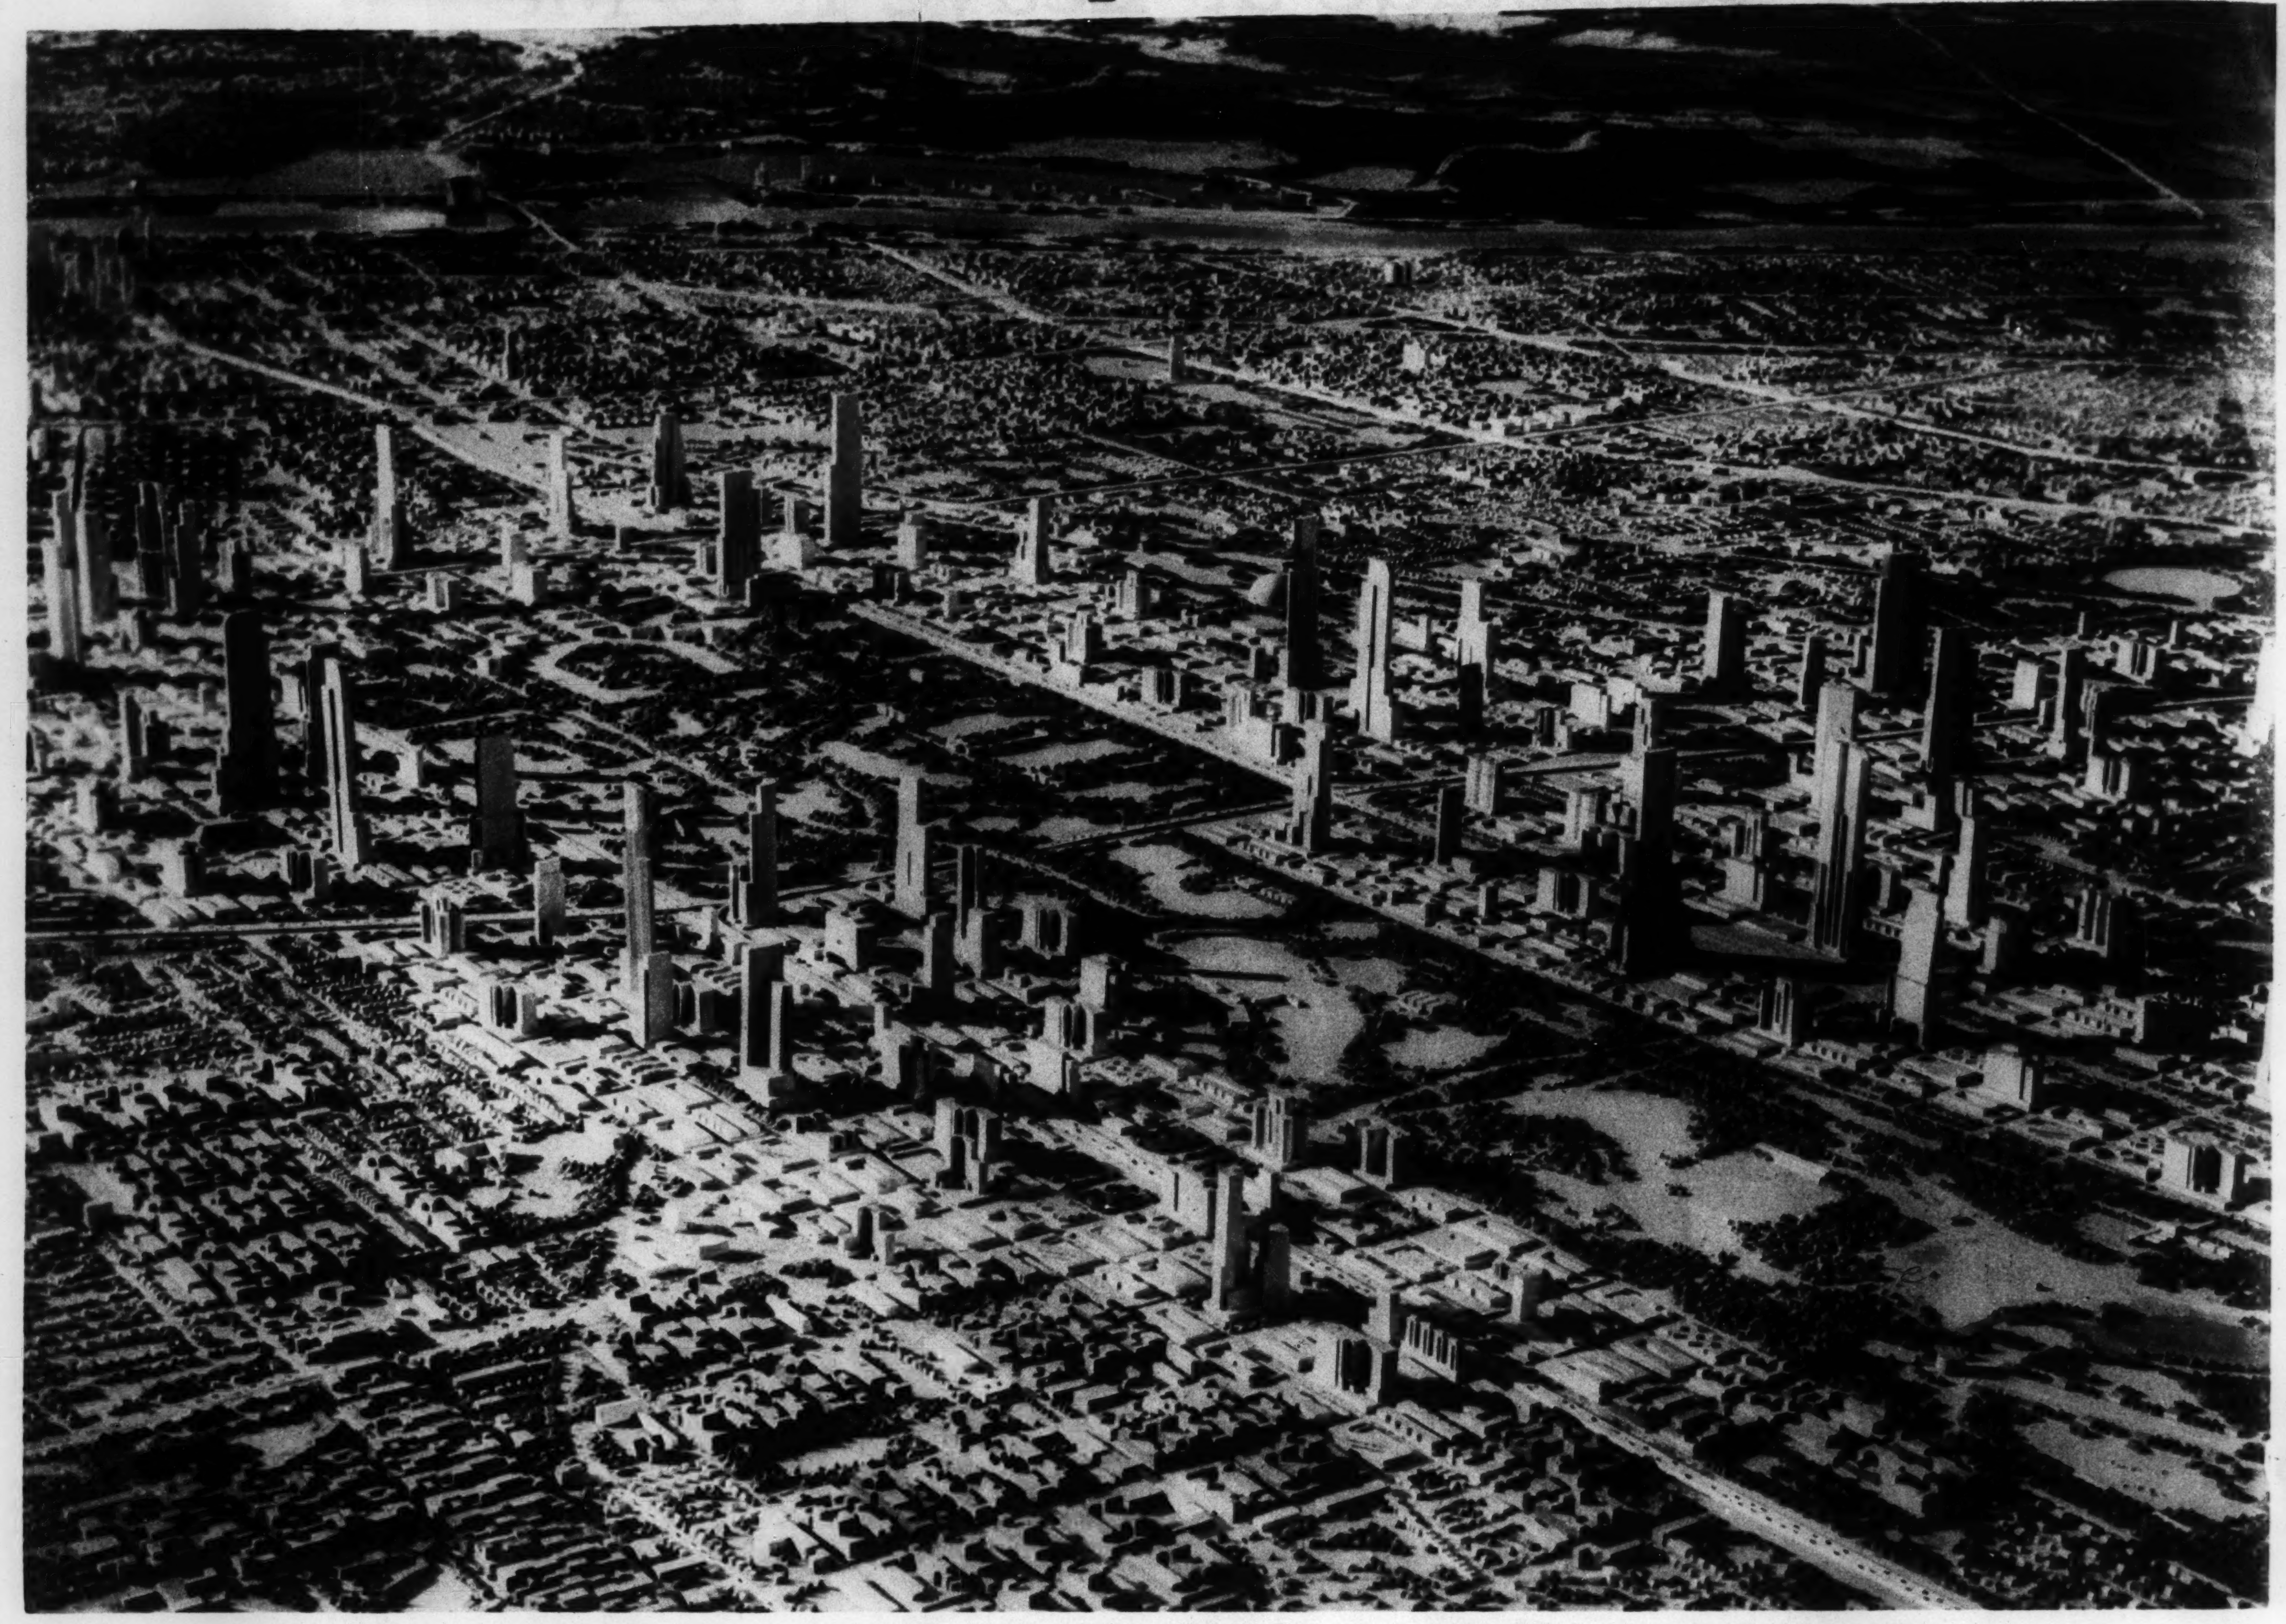
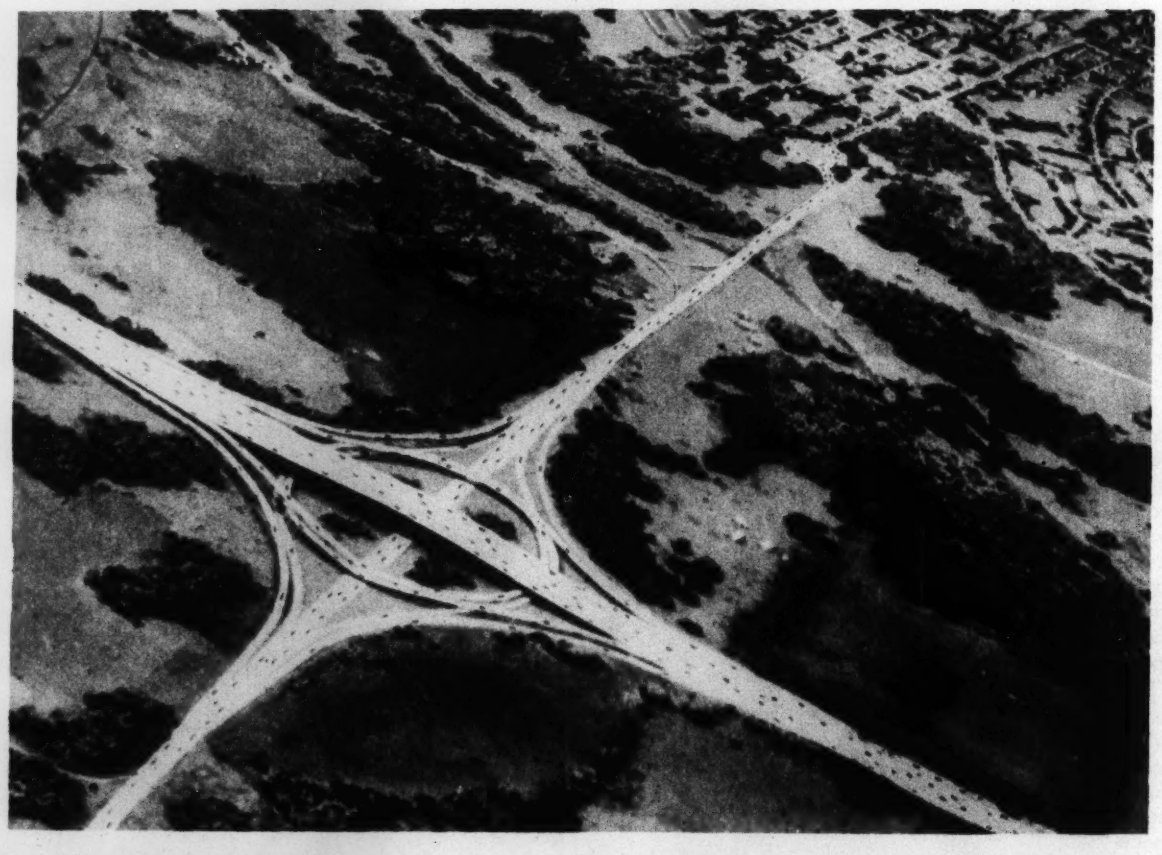
American Metropolis of the Future



A forecast of what a large American city will look like in 1960. This metropolitan scene in miniature, with its striking architecture, broad streets, parks and carefully planned traffic system, is part of a New York World's Fair exhibit called the Futurama, a scale model representation of a section of American countryside of the near future. The exhibit, designed by Norman Bel Geddes, occupies more than 35,000 square feet, with a half-million miniature buildings.



Detail of motor traffic management in 1960 as presented in the Futurama. This is the crossing point of two double-directional express highways, one of which passes above the other. Ramped loops permit cars to make right and left turns at considerable speed; some turning-off lanes are elevated, others depressed. There will be 10,000 model automobiles in operation in the Futurama.

Visitors to the Futurama will tour the exhibit in these moving sound chairs. The exhibit extends a third of a mile on several levels.

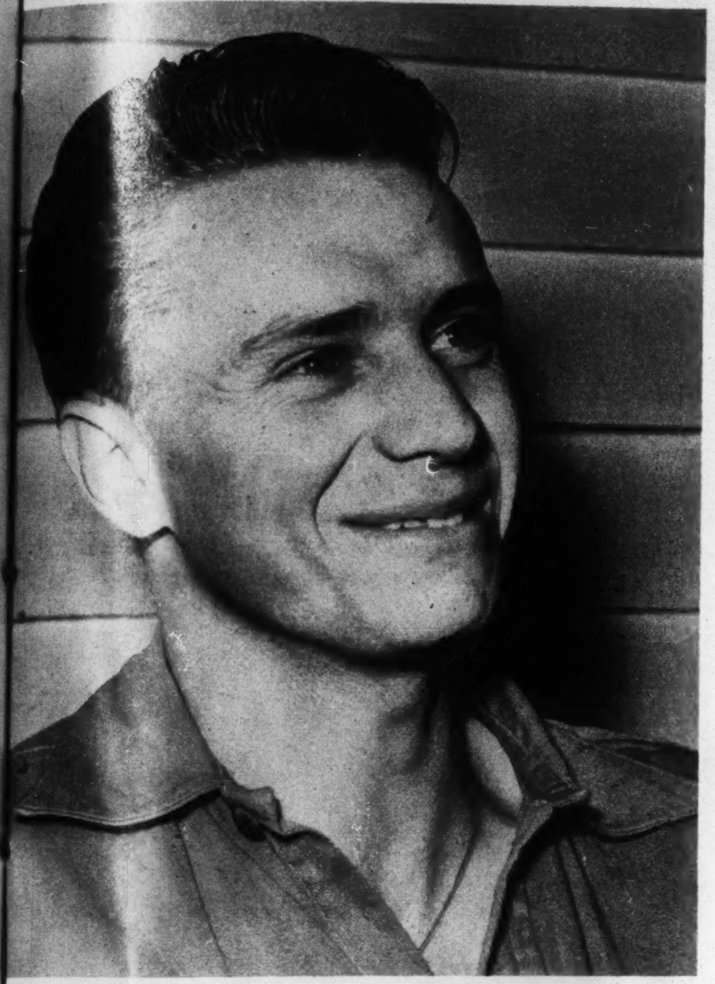
Missouri's Outstanding Distance Runner



John Munski, Missouri's outstanding distance runner.

Studying in his room. His scholastic standing is good.

Bandaging one of his very useful feet.

IF A GOOD many experts don't miss their guess, the University of Missouri is going to supply one of the members of the team that represents the United States in the 1940 Olympic Games. He is John Munski of Lewistown, Missouri, distance runner, whom Glenn Cunningham, the great Kansas miler, has hailed as the coming champion of the country at that distance. Munski, a 21-year-old junior, is a son of Polish immigrants, the ninth of their 13 children; he was born at Kendall, Montana. In both high school and the university his scholastic record has been unusually good. At the recent Drake relays at Des Moines, Iowa, Munski, running as the anchor man of his team in the distance medley race, showed good early season form by running his mile in 4:15 to give Missouri the victory. Last spring he ran a 4:10.1 mile, the fastest for a sophomore in this country. At both the one mile and two mile distances he has broken several of Cunningham's Big Six records.

IT'S a fact—women everywhere say they've never before used a fine-fabric suds to compare with Dreft! And they're right—for it's the greatest suds improvement in 1,000 years! So remarkable, that even the finest soap flakes can't offer these advantages of Dreft:

2. SUDS OF NON-ALKALINE MILDNESS ...giving you greatest protection against wash-fading
3. RICH SUDS IN HARDEST WATER ...five times more suds than any soap you ever used

Think of it! No horrid hard-water scum is left in Dreft-washed woolens! They come out soft and fluffy—their colors protected against wash-fading by Dreft's true, non-alkaline mildness. And in water hard as nails, Dreft always makes oceans of suds!

Equally important . . . in any water, at any temperature, Dreft dissolves instantly. So woolens can be washed at the right cool-water temperature to guard against shrinkage!

Give your woolens the benefit of this new, safe way promised by Dreft. You have to see the results with your own eyes to realize how really wonderful Dreft is! Ask your dealer for Dreft today. Procter & Gamble.

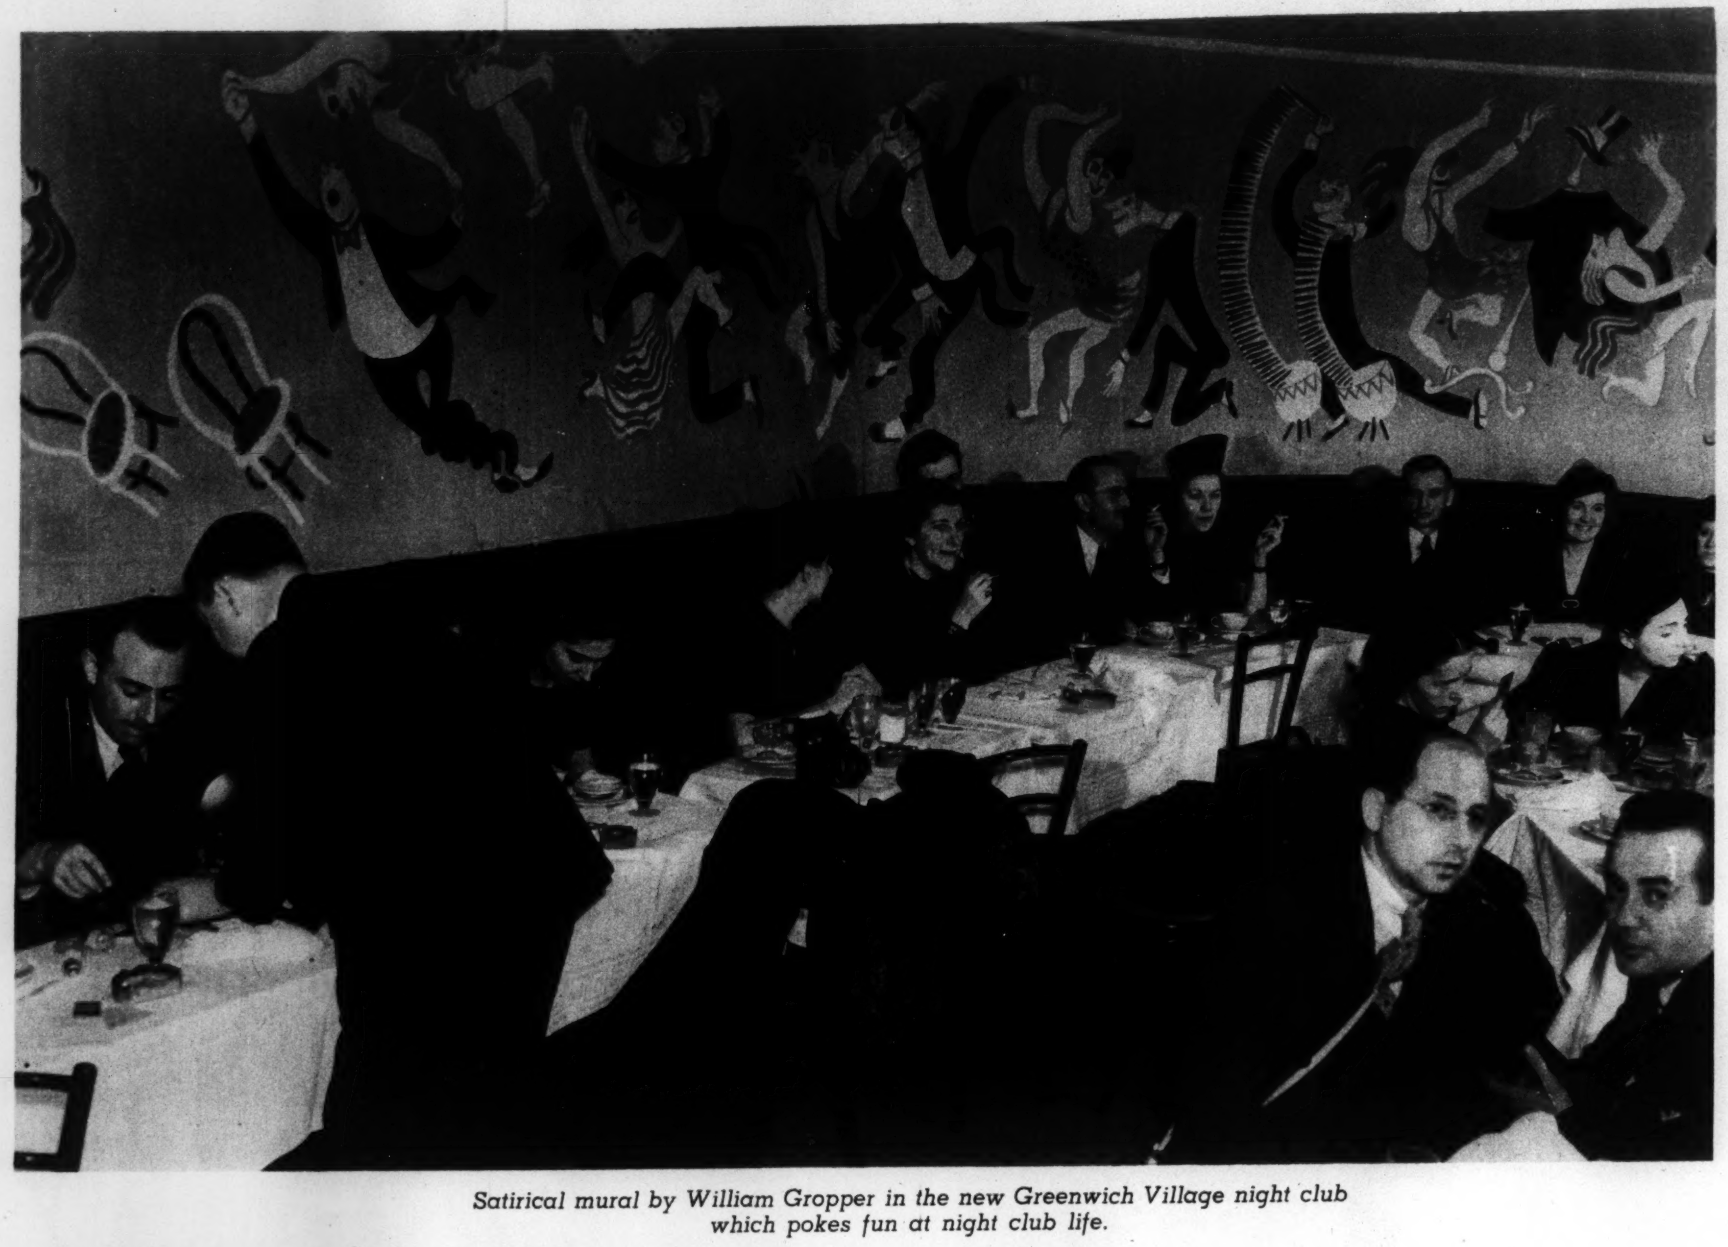
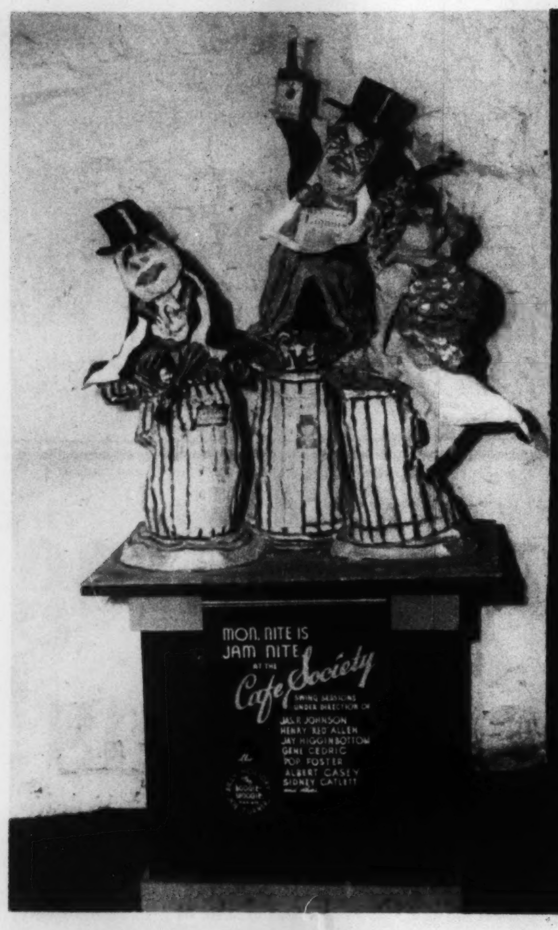
AN ANTI-CAFE SOCIETY CAFE



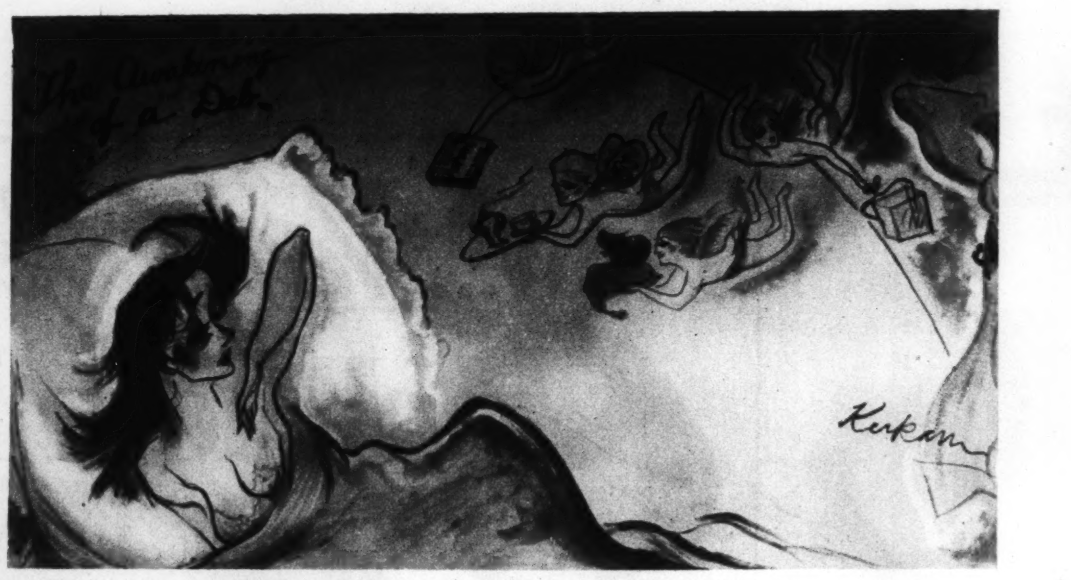
Satirical mural by William Gropper in the new Greenwich Village night club which pokes fun at night club life.

Barney Josephson, Trenton shoe dealer, who founded Caf Society as a gibe at cafe society.

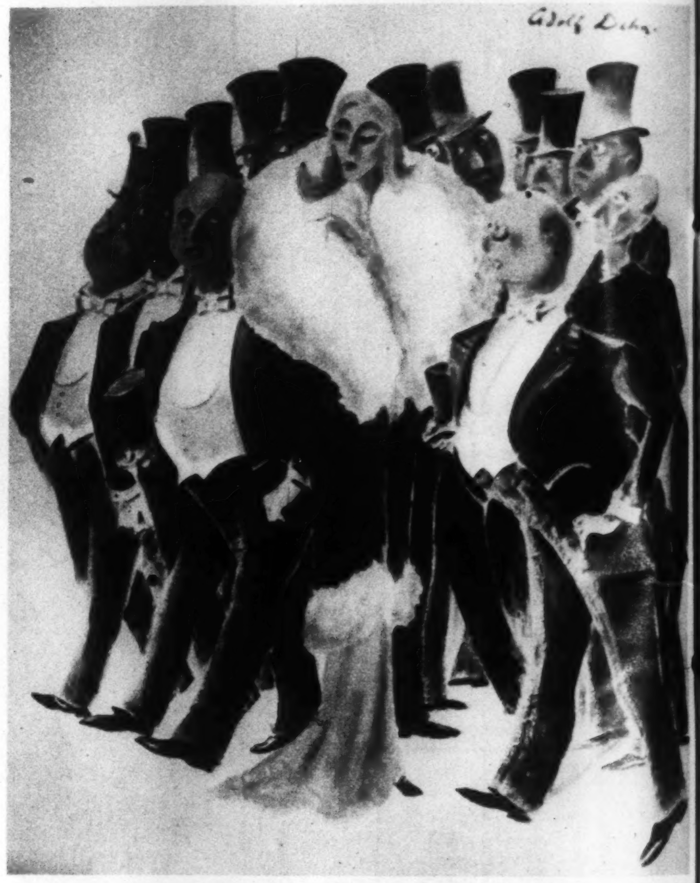
THE current vogue for making a face at that night club phenomenon known as cafe society has found expression in a night club itself. One of the newest and most popular of New York's nocturnal entertainment places is named, not too subtly, "Cafe Society," and its bid for favor is based on its satirizing, in decoration and entertainment, the business of making a career of being seen and photographed at night clubs and the like. The walls of Cafe Society—which is in Greenwich Village—are adorned with murals by well-known caricaturists depicting foibles of gilded pleasure seekers, and the master of ceremonies, called the malinguist, frequently contributes iconoclastic verbal jabs. Barney Josephson, a prosperous shoe dealer of Trenton, New Jersey, founded the cafe, and was helped by John Hammond, a young member of a wealthy and socially prominent New York family. Soon after its opening Cafe Society began to attract, naturally, many of the kind of people it satirizes.



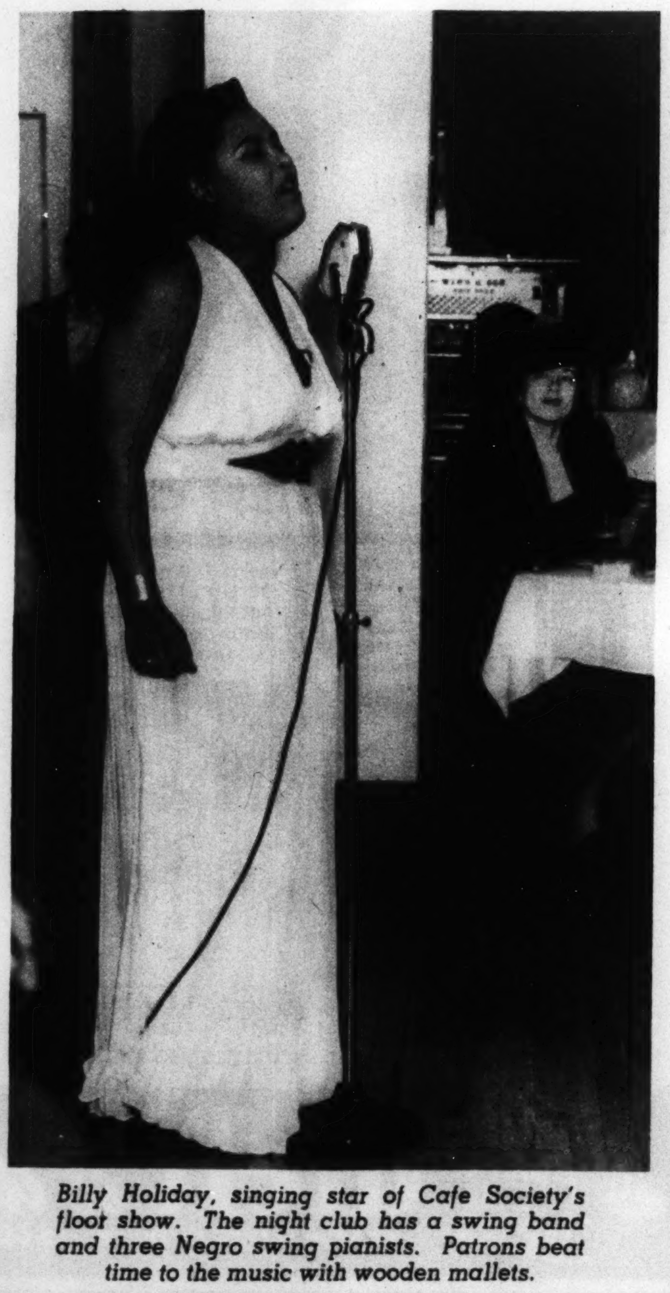
At the entrance of Cafe Society appear these figures sculptured by Eugenie Gershoy, and called "Three Pillars of Society." Some see in the figures resemblance to Cholly Knickerbocker, the society reporter (left); Lucius Beebe, chronicler of cafe society's doings, and Elsa Maxwell, one of its most acclaimed hostesses.



Another iconoclastic mural painting in Cafe Society.



An unflattering representation of cafe society painted by Adolph Dehn on a wall of the new night club.



Billy Holiday, singing star of Cafe Society's floor show. The night club has a swing band and three Negro swing pianists. Patrons beat time to the music with wooden mallets.

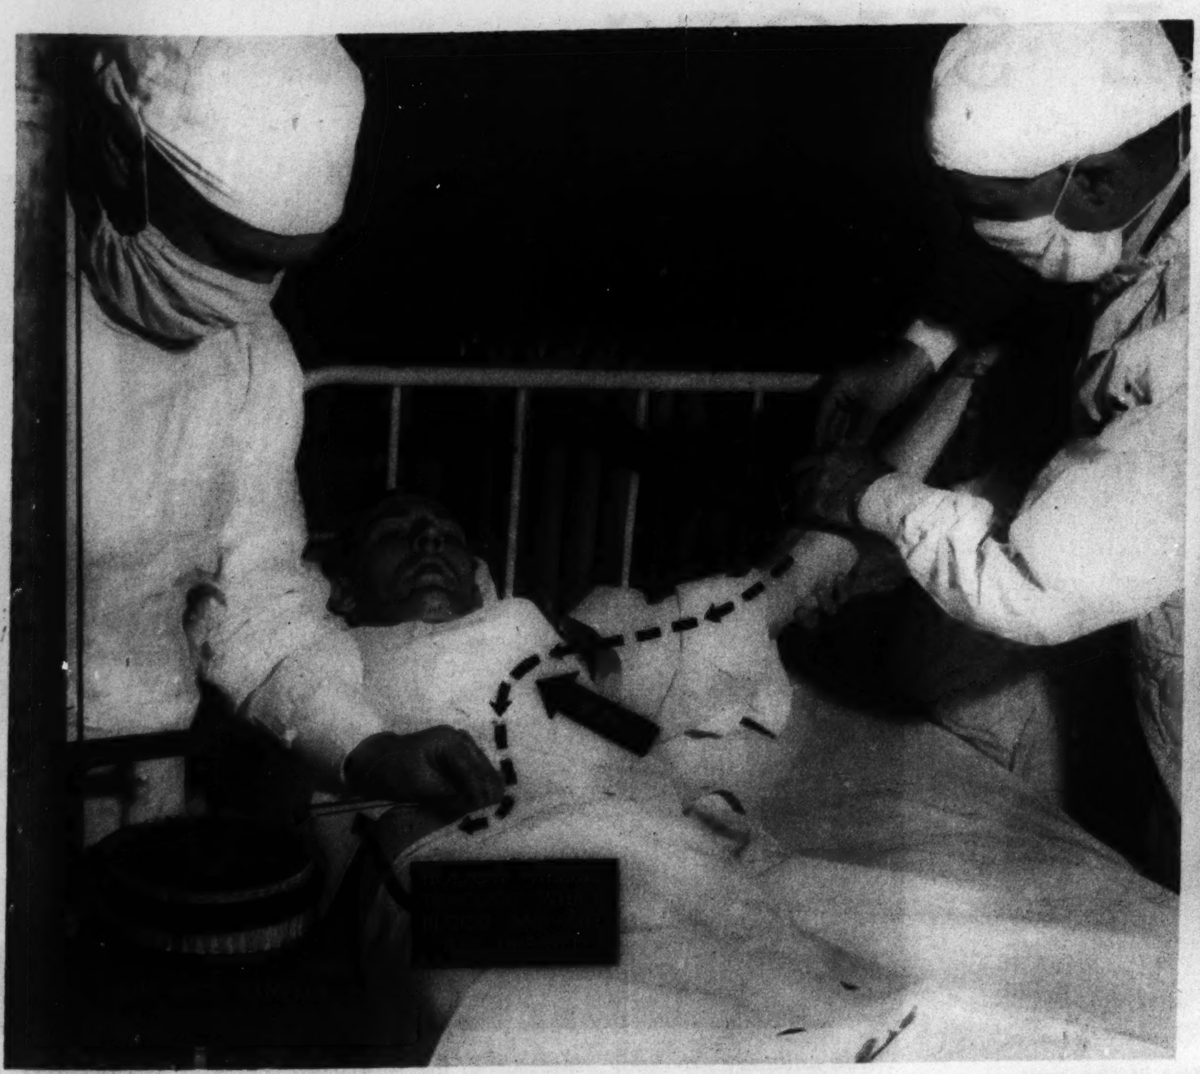
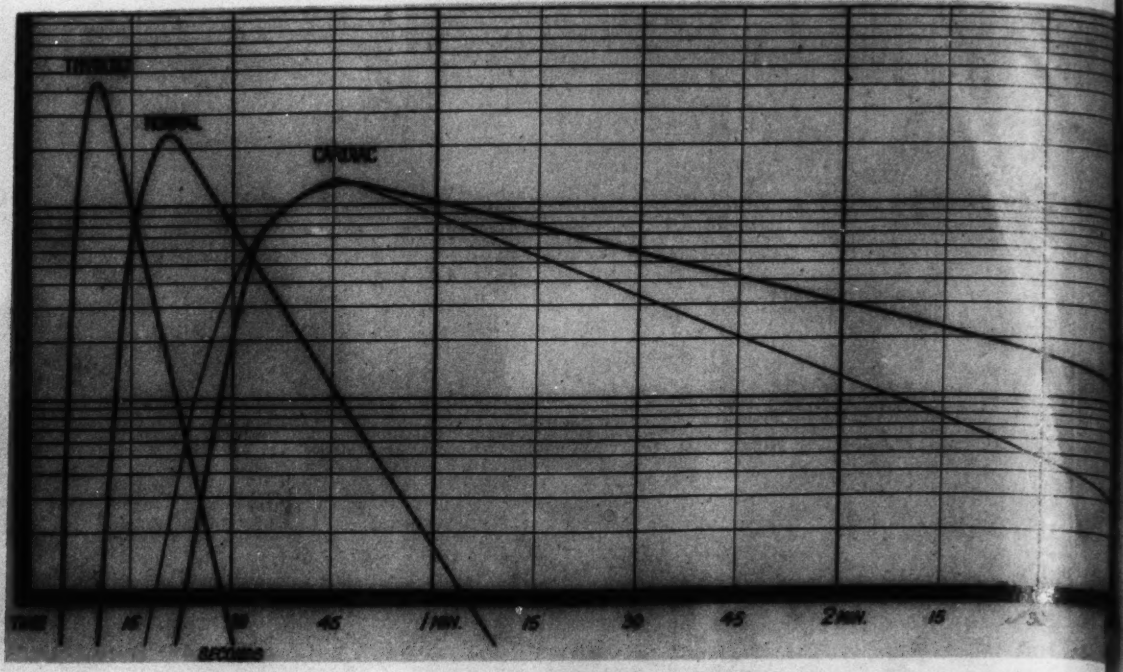
Testing Efficiency of the Human Heart



Dean Moore and Professor Kinsman demonstrating their method for testing heart efficiency.



A graph showing how normal and defective hearts pump blood at different speeds. The lines start at first appearance of dye in blood and reach highest points at greatest dye content. The numbers show time from injection of dye in arm until completion of circulation. Two "cardiac" lines show an ailing heart before and after treatment.

THE photographs on this page illustrate a method of testing heart efficiency, originated seven years ago by Dean John Walker Moore and Professor Murray J. Kinsman of the University of Louisville Medical School and now used throughout the country.

A dye, which does not dissolve in blood, is injected into the patient's blood stream at the left arm, and after it has been pumped through the heart, is drawn out from the semoral artery, high on the inside of the right thigh, through a curved hollow needle which carries the blood and dye into tubes which revolve on a drum. Thus is measured the time it takes the heart to circulate the blood. Slow circulation means poor heart efficiency—that the organ is not fully contracting and expanding. Such inefficiency means that the blood flow is slightly dammed at the heart. This is indicated at advanced stages by such ailments as dropsy, but the test enables discovery of the defect before such a stage is reached.

Research assistant testing blood from each of tubes on drum to determine dye content.

A nurse records each heart beat on the drum underneath the tubes by pressing the button each time she sees blood spurt into the tube. She holds a stop watch in the other hand.

MARIE McMILLIN, PARACHUTE JUMPER

THEY LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL
LIFE AS A CHIEF TEST PILOT MUST BE PLENTY EXCITING, JOHNNY!
YES AND NO. FLYING THESE NEW PLANES IS SAFE AND EASY COMPARED TO THE OLD DAYS. I REMEMBER YEARS AGO...
SOUNDS LIKE A STORY COMING. HOW ABOUT LIGHTING UP A CAMEL?
"IN 1931 I HAD A ROUTE FROM SANTIAGO, CHILE TO MENDOZA, ARGENTINA. PASSENGERS WEREN'T FLOWN IN UNCERTAIN WEATHER, SO ONE DAY I WAS JUST FLYING MAIL OVER THE ANDES—24,000 FEET UP..."
LET'S SEE NOW—ONLY 150 MILES TO GO—GAS FOR 3 HOURS—O.K. SUFFERING CATS—A STORM!
30,000 FEET, YET I CAN'T CLIMB OVER THIS GALE. I'LL HAVE TO DIVE DOWN TO THE CANYON!
"BUT THE STORM DROPPED TOO. THE 400-YARD-WIDE CANYON GOT DARK—WIND CURRENTS SMACKED ME UP AND DOWN..."
IT'S NO GO! I'VE GOT TO TURN HER BACK ON A DIME!
"HEART IN MOUTH, I BANKED VERTICALLY, TURNED SHARP —MISSED THE CLIFF BY A SCANT SHIP-LENGTH..."
"BUT TO MY HORROR, I SAW MY GAS WAS TOO LOW TO FLY BACK TO SANTIAGO. MY ONLY CHANCE WAS TO FLY BLIND THROUGH THE STORM TO MENDOZA..."
"BUT I WON! I 'SAT DOWN' IN MENDOZA WITH HARDLY A DROP OF GAS LEFT."
JOHNNY WAGNER! WE'D ABOUT GIVEN YOU UP—
NEARLY GAVE MYSELF UP. HOW ABOUT ONE OF YOUR CAMELS FOR ME?
I THINK I'LL LET UP AND LIGHT UP A CAMEL MYSELF. WON'T YOU HAVE ANOTHER ONE, TOO?
THANK YOU! YES...
CAMELS HAVE A RICH, RIPE TASTE THAT I LIKE —AND REAL MILDNESS TOO. AND CAMELS NEVER JANGLE MY NERVES. THAT'S WHY, FOR MY SMOKING, I LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL!
I WANT ALL THE PLEASURE THERE IS IN SMOKING—SO IT'S CAMELS FOR ME!

TELL ME, TERRY,— DO YOU HAVE ANYBODY OUT IN "HANG-KNOT" AS LAZY AS THE JUDGE?
YES, BALDY,—WE GOT SOME LAZY CRITTERS OUT THERE WHO HAVE TH' JEDGE BEAT, HANDS DOWN!
EH,— WHAT'S THIS?
ACK-SPUFF OF ALL THE NERVE. —FAP— BLAST YOU BOTH!
TH' FUST ONE THAT COMES TO MY MIND IS "LEANING LESTER"!
THE PAINTER COULDN'T MAKE "LEANING LESTER" MOVE AWAY FROM FOSTER'S BARBER POLE, SO HE JUST HAD TO PAINT TH' RED AND WHITE STRIPES AROUND HIM—
THEN THERE WAS "TIRED TIM" WHO COULDN'T GET UP ENOUGH ENERGY TO COMB HIS HAIR, SO EVERY DAY HE'D STAND BY TH' TRACKS WAITING FOR TH' "COYOTE LIMITED" TO COME ALONG—
AND THE RUSH OF AIR FOLLOWING THE EXPRESS WOULD BLOW HIS HAIR BACK INTO A POMPADOUR—
"LAZY LUKE" WOULD GET WORN OUT FROM WINDING HIS ALARM CLOCK,— JAN 1901
AND HE'D WAIT UNTIL HE YAWNED SO HE COULD PUT THE CLOCK BACK UP ON TH' SHELF WITH TH' YAWN STRETCH—
HO— WAWF-F-P
BUT TH' CHAMP WAS "DOPEY DAN"— ON HIS 50TH BIRTHDAY TH' BOYS GAVE HIM A CAKE—
BLOW OUT THE CANDLES, DAN!
WAIT UNTIL TH' WIFE COMES IN. — SHE HAS HAY-FEVER!
SO YOU SEE, BALDY, TH' JEDGE COULDN'T COMPETE WITH THOSE FELLOWS! —THEY'RE TALENTED WITH LAZINESS!

NOW! Leading Washing Machine Makers are SWITCHING to NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL
As the Soap They Officially Recommend for Whiter, Brighter Washes
Thor
I NEVER HAD A PAL LIKE YOU BEFORE, OXY!
WE WERE JUST MADE FOR EACH OTHER.
OXYDOL
SUE! I SIMPLY HAD TO COME OVER AND SEE HOW YOUR NEW THOR WASHER WORKS -- BETTER THAN MY OLD MACHINE?
OH, I'M SURE IT DOES -- CLOTHES COME SO WHITE -- MUCH WHITER THAN MY OLD MACHINE GOT THEM.
I'M USING THAT NEW SOAP THE THOR WASHER PEOPLE RECOMMEND* -- HIGH-TEST OXYDOL. LOOK -- I WANT TO SHOW YOU HOW IT WORKS.
GOODNESS! AREN'T ALL SOAPS ALIKE IN A WASHER?
HEAVENS NO! HIGH-TEST OXYDOL HAS A NEW INGREDIENT IN IT... AND TESTS SHOW IT GETS CLOTHES UP TO 25% WHITER THAN SOAPS WITHOUT THIS INGREDIENT. I'LL PROVE IT!
IT CERTAINLY MAKES MOUNTAINS OF SUDS.
THAT'S THE NEW INGREDIENT WORKING. SEE.. UP TO TWICE THE SUDS.. AND THEY STAND UP TO 2 TO 3 TIMES LONGER.
BUT ARE YOU SURE IT'S SAFE FOR WASHABLE COLORED THINGS?
ABSOLUTELY! THEY SHOWED ME COTTON PRINTS WASHED SCORES OF TIMES IN NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL AND THEY WERE BRIGHT AS A NEW DOLLAR.
SHORTLY AFTER
TALK ABOUT SPEED! THIS SHIRT'S WHITE AS SNOW ALREADY. I'M GOING TO CHANGE TO NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL TODAY!
YES, AND BEST OF ALL.. THEY FOUND IT GOES UP TO 25% FARTHER. THINK HOW YOU'LL SAVE ON SOAP!
Trade Mark Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
YOUR DEALER NOW HAS NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL
The Same Orange and Blue Package—but What a Difference in the Soap!

Attention Washing Machine Owners!

For a free demonstration of High-Test Oxydol, in the new Thor Super-Agitator Washer—product of America's oldest maker of reliable home laundry equipment—

SEE YOUR THOR DEALER!

No Cost No Obligation

"FOR WHITER WASHES, USE NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL"

Advise Thor Washer Dealers Everywhere

HERE'S great news for washing machine owners. Since the introduction of new High-Test OXYDOL, leading washing machine makers are switching to it—as the soap they urge their customers to use.

For example—the makers of the well-known Thor washer now say: "For whiter, brighter washes, with SAFETY, use new High-Test Oxydol in your washer, new or old."

The Thor people recommend new High-Test Oxydol because it is a revolutionary new advance in laundry soap. It contains a remarkable new ingredient—and does these amazing things, as shown by independent laboratory tests against less efficient soaps:—

(1.) Gets white clothes up to 25% whiter than well-known, advertised soaps that lack its new, "miracle" ingredient. (2.) Gives up to TWICE THE SUDS—and they last 2 to 3 times longer.

Yet High-Test Oxydol is so SAFE that cotton prints, given the equivalent of more than a full year's normal washing, showed no perceptible sign of fading—stayed truly bright!

What's more, High-Test Oxydol soaks out dirt while the washer is running—gives double-action wash.

High-Test OXYDOL is economical, too. Each cup goes up to 25% farther than less efficient soaps. Try it, in your washer, today. Procter & Gamble.
